Supplier Walkout Idles 51,000 Ford Workers After Labor Act Truce

Taft-Hartley Dispute Settled Temporarily, But Stalls Output With Parts Shortage

Detroit, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. avoided a strike of 107,000 workers today but at the same time announced a layoff of 51,000 starting within 24 hours.

Each development stemmed from the same general source—the consequences of a dispute over penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

In avoiding a strike, Ford compromised its differences through a last-minute truce with the CIO United Auto Workers and kept its car production moving.

Less than six hours after the deadline for the strike that never came off, however, the company announced it would halt until next Tuesday all assembly operations at the close of tomorrow's work.

This was necessary, the company said, because of a parts shortage caused by the strike of 7000 workers in a supplier firm over the Taft-Hartley penalty provisions.

Union Wins Year's Grace

The Murray Corp. of America, which supplies car bodies and parts to Ford and other auto manufacturers, has been closed for nearly two weeks by a CIO-UAW strike. The union at Murray demands an immunity clause in its contract to protect against employer damage suits permitted under the new law.

A scant eight hours before a strike deadline, Ford and the UAW sealed a truce providing for a joint effort to secure a "solution" to the Taft-Hartley union-posed problem. The settlement gave the union at least a year's grace from any strike damage action under the law.

D. S. Harder, vice president and director of Ford manufacturing, said the assembly-halt order would affect 35,000 Detroit area employes and 16,000 at branch plants through the Nation. Since July 25 a total of 40,300 workers on the Mercury and Lincoln assembly lines has been idle.

In the meantime Detroit's persistent 90-degree heat was blamed for idleness of an estimated 10,000 others. They were off the job in strikes or layoffs attributable to the weather.

Many Ford Absentees

These included 8000 at the Hudson Motor Car Co., 1900 at Chrysler's Kercheval plant, and another 800 at Chrysler's Dodge foundry.

Ford, after its late-hour compromise with the UAW-CIO in the Taft-Hartley squabble, reported a 10 per cent rise in absenteeism for the workday. The heat was held partly responsible, however.

The compromise allowed up to one year for a study of the Taft-Hartley penalty provisions by a bi-partisan four-member commission and deferred any strike action for at least 10 days.

It left terms of a proposed $15,000,000-a-year pension system as

Conservatives Alarmed

Attlee Asks 'Power Over All' In Bill for Industry Control

London, Aug. 5 (AP).—Legislation to give the Labor government far-reaching powers over Britain's industries and workers was introduced in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Attlee.

The surprise legislation, filed on the eve of the Prime Minister's announcement of the government's rigorous program to meet the growing economic crisis, brought protests from the Conservative opposition and threatened to postpone the scheduled adjournment of Parliament this weekend.

Meanwhile an authoritative British informant said that United States sources have indicated willingness to talk about relaxing the Anglo-American loan agreement to aid Britain in easing her critical dollar shortage.

Attlee was received by King George at Buckingham Palace tonight.

The government's new legislation—described by the British Press Association as "the power-over-all bill"—was the opening gun in the Attlee program which authoritative sources have said would call for longer working hours for British workmen; sharp cuts in the nation's armed forces and German occupation costs; restrictions in imports of "luxury" foods, tobacco, films and oil; and "incentive" measures to boost dollar-earning exports.

The key phrase in the two-page Attlee bill would extend the government's power to take action "generally for insuring that the whole resources of the community are available for use, and are used, in a manner best calculated to serve the interests of the community."

Conservative Leader Winston Churchill made no comment, but called top-ranking Conservatives to an emergency meeting to study the legislation's full implications.

In a speech yesterday, Churchill said the opposition would support "all sensible proposals" by the Labor government to combat the crisis.

A government source said tonight that Britain had outlined Attlee's program" to United States officials and had proposed "early" Anglo-American talks looking toward relaxation of two of the loan agreement's controversial clauses:

1. The "convertibility" clause under which other nations may demand payment from Britain in dollars, rather than pounds sterling, for debt incurred in current trading.

2. The "nondiscrimination" clause under which Britain may not increase her purchass in other countries at the expense of her purchasing program in the United States.

Perrow Wins Race for Va. Senate Seat

Primary Involves 12 Memberships In Upper Chamber And 43 in House

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Senator Mosby G. Perrow, of Lynchburg, today defeated Russell E. Coleman, also of Lynchburg, in the first Virginia Senatorial District to report conclusive returns from today's Democratic primary.

The Democratic nomination for 13 senatorial seats and 43 House seats was involved in the primary in addition to county offices.

Returns from 21 of the 33 precincts in the Campbell-Lynchburg Senatorial District gave Senator Perrow 2470 votes to 640 for Coleman. All of the missing precincts were in the county, where Perrow was leading Coleman as well as in the complete city returns.

A close race was raging in the Twenty-first senatorial district, composed of Franklin, Montgomery and Roanoke counties and the city of Radford. With 21 of 71 precincts reported, C. Carter Lee, commonwealth's attorney of Franklin, was leading Ben Chapman of Roanoke County, 960 to 854. The district is now represented by Ted Dalton of Radford, a Republican.

Close Race in Roanoke City

Another close contest was in the Twentieth senatorial district in Roanoke city where 8 out of 19 precincts gave Earl A. Fitzpatrick 1844 votes to 1072 for Walter H. Scott.

Senator L. W. Noland of Newport News had a lead in the Thirty-third district over Stanley S. Garner in early returns, too few to be conclusive.

Also in the Twentieth senatorial district first early returns gave Senator J. C. Carpenter of Clifton Forge a lead over Eldon K. Crowder of Covington.

Complete returns from the Lancaster-Richmond House district showed that W. Tayloe Murphy, former delegate and former State treasurer, had won the House seat over Dabney Overton, 773 to 472.

In the Lynchburg House district, Cecil W. Tayloe defeated James M. Tinsley, 1897 to 542, in complete returns.

GOP Watches Returns

Republicans kept an eye on the vote for an indication of their chances in the general election three months hence. The Republican Party has promised the Democrats the greatest number of contests in a generation.

Observers were forecasting a total vote of between 8000 and 9000 in Roanoke city where one of the most bitterly fought campaigns in years stirred up the electorate. Walter H. Scott, a member of the House, and Earl A. Fitzpatrick, a former member, battled it out for the Senate seat vacated by Leonard G. Muse. Six candidates sought Roanoke's two seats in the House. They are James Bear, incumbent member; E. Griffith Dodson, jr., son of the House clerk; William L. Martin, Julian H. Rutherfoord, Murray A. Steller and Mosby J. Williams.

Danville also reported a heavy vote with interest rising in the fight for the House between incumbent Delegate Landon R. Wyatt and E. B. Fergurson, president of the Danville Typographi-

AAF Officers 'Derelict in Duty' On Hughes Plane Contracts, Elliott Roosevelt Tells Inquiry

Post Reporter

Elliott Roosevelt yesterday wound up his story of wartime relations with Hughes by charging that the Army Air Forces procurement officers had been "derelict in their duty in connection with Hughes Aircraft contracts.

If the procurement officers had followed his recommendations, Roosevelt said, the Government would not have lost 22 million dollars when Hughes failed to produce a single photo reconnaissance plane for the war. His recommendations, he said, were that Hughes not be paid unless he produced.

The tall, broad-shouldered second son of the late President admitted to the Senate War Investigating Committee that he had probably violated Army directives by accepting some entertainment from the Hughes concern.

Hotel Bills Paid

He strenuously denied that John W. Meyer, pudgy Hughes publicity agent, had spent on him anywhere near the $5000 Meyer's expense accounts showed for rounds of cocktail parties and night club visits.

Roosevelt admitted that he had permitted Hughes to pay a $576.85 hotel bill for him and his three children in California in December 1944.

He also testified that Jack Frye, then head of Transworld Airlines, controlled by Hughes, who was also on Hughes Aircraft Co. payroll, had paid $850 in hotel bills for him on the occasion of his marriage on December 8, 1944, to Faye Emerson, beautiful motion picture star.

Thanks Senator Ferguson

Both of these, he said, were wedding presents. He said he had known Frye for years and Frye wanted to give him a present.

He said he had a check all made out to pay the hotel bill for himself and his children when Meyer rushed up and told him, "You cannot pay this bill," and added that Hughes wanted to give it to him as a wedding gift.

As Roosevelt concluded his testimony, he turned to Subcommitter Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and thanked him for the very fair treatment he had received.

He said he withdrew earlier charges that Ferguson and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) had been unfair and intended "to smear him." That responsibility, he said, should fall at the door of certain sections of the press.

"I have been given an opportunity to testify very freely and frankly," Roosevelt declared, "and I am happy to cooperate in any way with the committee."

He said he had urged the purchase of Hughes' "red-hot wagon," the F-11, only because it was a

U. S. Rejects Explanation By Hungary

Strongly Worded Protest Denounces Arrest, Beating Of American Man

By R. H. Shackford
United Press Reporter

The United States accused officials of the Communist-dominated Hungarian government yesterday of "inadmissibly insolent" conduct toward American diplomats and rejected as "unsatisfactory" Hungary's explanation of the arrest and beating of an American citizen in Budapest.

The Hungarian government to date has refused an apology and still contends that it acted within its rights in making the arrest.

It was the first official brush between the United States and the new Hungarian government which Secretary of State George C. Marshall has denounced as an illegal Communist puppet regime.

The American protest on this incident was one of the most angrily worded to emanate from the State Department since American planes were shot down over Yugoslavia nearly a year ago.

The incident involved Stephen T. Thuransky who was arrested by the Communist-dominated Hungarian police last Friday allegedly because of "his revolting and scandalizing vilifications in public" of the Hungarian President and other members of the government. It occurred at Balassagayarmat, north of Budapest.

U. S. Minister Selden Chapin in Budapest delivered the American note, which concluded with a warning that the United States took a "most serious view" of the incident and that unless its three demands were met the arrest of Thuransky would be the cause of "most serious concern" to this government.

The department released its own version of what happened in Hungary, highlighted by the following:

Thuransky, whose American citizenship was well known to Hungarian police, was arrested last Friday under the defense of the republic act on charges of "anti-democratic utterances" against the Communist regime.

After Thuransky was brought to a Budapest prison on Saturday, Harrison Lewis of the United States legation went to see him and to demand his delivery in the custody of American officials. Lewis claimed that he had a right to demand such delivery under the armistice terms since the peace treaty is not ratified.

After hours of delay and refusals, Lewis found Thuransky's wife outside the jail and put her in his car.

While still arguing with Hungarian police, Lewis heard Mrs. Thuransky scream and ran out to the car. He found Thuransky on the floor of the car with his feet hanging out the open door. Reports from Budapest said he had

Jews in 'Commando Squads' Guard Homes in British Riots

40 Seized in Biggest Palestine Roundup; Exits Closed to Jews

Jerusalem, Aug. 5 (AP).—The British today began the biggest roundup of Jewish leaders since underground resistance turned the Holy land into a battlefield—a roundup punctuated by a terror bomb that ripped off the front of the Labor Department building and killed three British policemen and probably an Arab watchman.

More than 40 prominent Jews were seized in the swoop by the military and Palestine police, some of whom reportedly were marked for deportation. An official source said 20 more were being sought.

The first official list of those arrested included David Stern, brother of the late Abraham Stern, founder of the Stern gang, and named 35 lawyers, businessmen, journalists and Jewish officials.

Among those reported arrested were dissident members of Hagana, illegal Jewish defense organization, who had opposed the organization's "moderate" policy of opposing terrorism, and the mayors of the four all-Jewish cities of Tel Aviv, Ram at Gan, Petah Tikvah and Natanya.

Damage to Property Runs Into Thousands; Scores Jailed, Fined

London, Aug. 5 (INS).—British Jews in Manchester tonight formed "Commando Squads" to guard their shops and homes from anti-Jewish demonstrators who have been smashing windows for four straight nights.

Property damage has run into thousands of dollars, and London police reported scattered incidents again tonight.

Scores of the demonstrators were jailed and fined during the day in many big British cities.

Police patrols were strengthened as magistrates and government spokesmen both condemned the "stupidity" of the demonstrators, some of them believed to be members of Sir Oswald Moseley's pre-war Fascist band.

A mob of 700 persons smashed windows in eight shops in a demonstration at Eccles, near Manchester, late last night and early today.

Those caught were fined heavily for costs and also got jail sentences.

The increasing disturbances followed last week's Jewish hanging of two British soldier-hostages in Palestine after the British had

Clayton Seen In New Move to Aid British

Sharing in Dollar Cost Of German Occupation To Be Recommended

By Kingsbury Smith
European General Manager, International News Service

Paris, Aug. 5 (INS).—American informants said tonight Undersecretary of State William Clayton will recommend to Washington that the United States undertake to share immediately the dollar cost of British occupation forces in Germany.

These informants said he also would ask that pressure be put on France to agree to an increased level of industry for Germany as part of the Marshall Plan to put Europe back on its feet economically.

Works on French

Clayton, who has been talking for two days with topmost American State Department representatives in Europe, was understood to have made a new effort to persuade the French during a dinner which Premier Paul Ramadier gave tonight.

He was a guest at the dinner attended also by French Foreign Minister Bidault.

Clayton has been shuttling around various capitals from the Geneva World Trade Conference. In Paris he has been talking at a special parley with Jefferson Caffery and Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassadors, respectively, in Paris and London, and Robert D. Murphy, adviser to the American military government in Germany.

These four men were said to have reached their first conclusion after the British bluntly warned them that Britain can no longer bear the full burden of dollar costs in her German zone.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Board of Trade president, warned Clayton last week that Britain must reduce those costs as part of the drastic plan to check the exhaustion of her dollar reserves.

These reserves now amount to

'Numbers' Man Changes Plea On Jail Threat

Judge Declares Fine Only Licensing Fee For Gambling Racket

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A reputed "big time" numbers runner was allowed to withdraw a plea of guilty yesterday in Municipal Court when he learned the judge planned to send him to jail.

The judge, George D. Neilson, then denounced the general practice in the court of merely fining members of the numbers racket here. The judge promised that he would consistently jail both "big shots and hirelings in the lottery game."

Judge Neilson became visibly angered when Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson recommended a maximum $500 fine without a jail term for Henry S. Ellis, 48, of 11 Q st. ne. Ellis pleaded guilty to possession of numbers slips. He was convicted of complicity in the racket some years earlier.

Judge Calls Conference

Judge Neilson then called a conference at the bench between himself, Wilson and Defense Attorney Denny Hughes.

Said the judge at the conclusion of the parley:

"I am allowing Mr. Hughes to withdraw the plea of guilty and present a plea of not guilty for his client, the case to be tried before a jury on September 11. I am doing it because there is a misunderstanding as to what the defendant believed he was going to get for the crime.

"I want to say, however, that I should not permit a fine alone in a numbers case, especially when the defendant has already been convicted of a similar charge. He should get straight time in jail in addition.

Judge Neilson then asked De-

Egypt Takes British Treaty Row to U. N.

Premier Demands Troop Withdrawal; Cadogan Retorts

Lake Success, Aug. 5 (AP).—Egypt today asked the United Nations Security Council to order the immediate evacuation of all British troops from her soil. Britain immediately countered with a demand that the Council throw out the complaint as unfounded.

Appealing to the U. N. to free Egypt from "British imperialism," Premier Nokrashy Pashe said "the very existence of Egypt as a sovereign state is here at stake" with the presence of British troops a "potential peril" to peace in the Middle East.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, said British troops were in Egypt under a 20-year treaty signed in 1936 and the Council could do nothing but dismiss the case.

Cadogan said that if anybody was threatening peace in that area it was Egypt and not Britain.

The 10,000-word Egyptian speech with translations took up the entire morning session.

The Premier said that Egypt no longer felt bound by the treaty. He said the pact was signed under duress and was contrary to the U. N. Charter.

After hearing the Egyptian and British statements, the Council postponed discussion until next Monday to give delegates time to study the arguments.

Nokrashy made two specific demands:

1. The immediate, complete and unconditional evacuation of all British forces from the Valley of the Nile—from the Sudan as from other parts of Egyptian territory. This would include the strategic Suez Canal zone.

2. The termination of the administrative regime maintained by the British in the Sudan since 1899.

Indonesians Charge Dutch Broke Pact

Say Netherlanders Fought 2½ Hours Beyond Deadline

Batavia, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Indonesian army charged tonight that Dutch troops on two fronts had violated the cease-fire orders in the East Indies and both Dutch and republican leaders indicated their forces would answer shot for shot any resumption of hostilities by opposing units.

Area republican army spokesmen declared in a broadcast that a three-pronged Dutch force—operating in a central Java zone approximately 60 miles west of Jogjakarta—had continued attacking for 2½ hours after last midnight, the cease-fire deadline.

As a result of this action, the spokesman declared, the Dutch seized the town of Gombong, on the trunk line linking Batavia with Jagjakarta, the republican capital.

Another Violation Claimed

The spokesman's accusation was repeated in a republican communicat oinwhich declared a violation also had occurred near Demak, 15 miles east of the north coast city of Semarang. The Indonesians claimed a Dutch amphibious force which landed near Semtinued its advance southward after the deadline.

There was no confirmation of these actions from the Dutch, who previously had questioned whether the Indonesians could enforce a cease-fire among Republican troops.

Fighting took place along the strategic north Java coast until shortly before midnight, a front dispatch said. Dutch columns speeding from opposite directions linked up a few hours before the deadline, giving The Netherlands complete control of a coastal area extending from Batavia 218 airline miles eastward to Semarang, this account said.

Court to Review Funds for Roses In Will Contest

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5.—The State Supreme Court here today agreed to review a will dispute between brother and sister over their dead brother's bequest of a "perfect rose," each Saturday to the girl of his heart—who is now married.

The dead man, Valentine Browne Lawless, of Norfolk, died in military service in Europe in 1944. He left the bulk of his $3600 estate to his brother, Edward Kirwan Loveless, directing that it apply to "a special purpose," the Associated Press reported.

The living brother, named executor, says the "special purpose" was explained in a letter; that it involved the "rose a week" request, and that the will required that the estate be turned over to him.

The sister has contended that the rose bequest was neither practical nor proper and has asked a court-directed division of the estate. The girl Lawless designated in his will has been married "several years," it was learned.

Most Negroes Unchallenged But Few Vote in Mississippi

Grand Jury Frees Seven Men in Mob Of Kidnap Charge

Jackson, N. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—Seven white men accused of kidnaping a young Negro sawmill worker in a lynch attempt were freed by the Northampton County grand jury today a few minutes after the jury failed to indict the Negro on a charge of attempted rape of a white woman.

Within hours after the verdict, Gov. R. Gregg Cherry ordered a Superior Court judge to investigate the case and bring the men to trial in an adjoining county. He acted under a lynching act of 1893 to clear up "a reflection on the State which does not represent the attitude of the better citizens," he said.

Godwin (Buddy) Bush, 24, who was snatched from the county jail here May 23 by a mob, but escaped into the swamps, slumped slightly as Judge J. Paul Frizelle told him the grand jury had refused to return a bill against him.

"Thank God," he said and returned to his seat to await the verdict against the white men charged with kidnaping, conspiracy and breaking and entering a jail with intent to kill or injure a prisoner.

The seven, like Bush from nearby Rich Square, N. C., stood quietly after the no-billing action was announced but their faces were jubi-

First Election Held Under New Law Proves Uneventful

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 5 (AP).—Most Negro voters went unchallenged today as Mississippi's new white primary law got its opening test in a Democratic election for the nomination of a full slate of State and county officers.

Only a comparative handful of Negroes was in the throng which crowded the voting places.

Reports indicated election officials generally let would-be Negro voters cast their ballots without being required to swear that they subscribed to such party principles as opposition to Federal antilynch and antipoll tax laws.

New Challenge Authorized

Last March the Legislature prescribed that voting applicants may be challenged in connection with their allegiance to "party principles, set forth by the State Democratic Executive Committee, included disapproval of the Fair Employment Practices Commission, and support of the "traditions" of the South.

White candidates for Bolivar County offices challenged the votes of Negroes at Mound Bayou, Mississippi's all-Negro town, but the election commissioners decreed that the challenges were frivolous and some 30 Negroes had cast their ballots by noon.

'Workable, Constructive'

New Plan for Unity Offered Chest, Social Agencies Group

A "workable" plan to simplify and unite inter-organization of the Washington Community Chest and the Washington Council of Social Agencies was submitted yesterday to both groups.

It was devised by a joint committee of the two organizations which met twice weekly for the past several months to study the problems.

Spokesmen of the joint committee who described the proposed plan as "workable" also termed it "more constructive" than varied and conflicting recommendations recently made public by a special, 25-member Citizens' Chest Survey Committee.

The joint committee is headed by Lee D. Butler, president of the Chest, and Dr. Ernest S. Griffith, president of the Council.

Basically, the suggested unification calls for consolidation of administrative functions of the two organizations under one board and similar consolidation of the boards of trustees into one large, and more representative, body.

The two groups are asked to act individually on the recommendations, with directors of the Council of Social Agencies scheduled to consider the plan at its regular meeting tomorrow. No date had been set last night for discussion by the Chest group.

Serving under Butler on the joint committee are Coleman Jennings, H. L. Rust, jr., Mrs. Milton King and Charles E. Smoot. Committee members under Dr. Griffith are Capt. Rhoda Milliken, Col. Campbell C. Johnson, J. C. Tur-

Winchester, Va., Aug. 5 (Spl.).—A general alarm fire here today swept a six-story frame storage building, a warehouse, an apple box factory and two dwellings. Damage was estimated at about $190,000.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke and heat in fighting the six-hour blaze. No one was injured seriously.

The storage plant blaze was believed under control in midafternoon, when two ammonia tanks exploded, spreading flames to adjoining buildings and across Cameron st.

Firemen blocked off streets within one block of the fire, and ordered persons out of the area. Damaged were the C. L. Robinson ice and cold storage plant, a warehouse being used by Zeropak, freezing company, the apple box factory of Thomas Cathers, and two dwellings occupied by Negro families.

A two-story frame structure owned by the Winchester Cold Storage Company and occupied by two fruit and packing companies, was ignited at one end and suffered small damage.

The fire, of undetermined origin, was believed to have started at the base fo an elevator shaft in the oldest portion of the Robinson plan. The section, which was being razed to make way for a new structure, was virtually destroyed.

Explosions spread the blaze to the metal-frame warehouse owned by Glaize and Brothers and leased

Two Atom Bombs Could Blast U. S., Educator Asserts

Chicago, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, said today that two of the atomic bombs which now can be manufactured, exploded simultaneously, could make the United States uninhabitable.

"We know that some other country will have the atomic bomb within five years," he said. "We know that when that happens we are all set for the final catastrophe.

"The task before us can be stated as the task of civilizing the entire world in not less than five years."

Hutchins spoke at a convention of the National Association of Visual Education Dealers. He said widespread distribution of educational films "might do more than any other single thing to unite the world and save us from destruction."

AAF Officers Derelict in Duty, Elliott Roosevelt Tells Group

good plane and that no White House influence had been used.

It took the Army Air Forces procurement officers 11 months to get final arrangements for it under way, he said, and their changes in specifications had caused delay in a vitally needed plane.

Doesn't Like 'Procured'

Roosevelt lashed out at what he termed a "dispicable insinuation" that publicity man Meyer "procured" girls for him.

He told the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee that "I deny with my whole heart and soul . . . that Meyer ever ever got a girl for me."

He demanded that Meyer, Howard Hughes' pudgy front man, be called to the stand again and that he be permitted to question him.

Meyer's expense vouchers for the "E. Roosevelt" acount, as made public by the committee, included these items:

August 21, 1943—"Presents for four girls, $200."

August 22, 1943—"Presents for two girls, $75."

August 27, 1943—"Dinner, Statler Hotel (in Washington), $76; girls at hotel (late), $50."

When Meyer took a witness chair near his own, Elliott turned to him and said:

"Were any of the girls you got and paid money to or gave presents to for the purpose of getting in with me . . . were they procured for me?"

Meyer replied:

"I don't like the word 'procured.' Because a girl is invited to go to a party and given a present doesn't mean that she was 'procured.'"

Met Faye in New York

Meyer added that during the rounds of parties in question, young Roosevelt was almost constantly in the company of Faye Emerson, who later was to become his wife.

Elliott shot back that he "resented" insinuations on Faye's name.

"It is the last thing in my mind," Meyer replied.

The hot and bitter exchange was touched off when Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) asked young Roosevelt if Meyer "at any time on your account spent money for the procurement of girls."

Roosevelt had just told the committee he visited New York on a weekend around August 20, 1943, and that he met Faye there. Asked if Meyer had told him that Faye would be there, he said that "other people beside Meyer told me things."

He said Meyer had asked him to visit New York, but that he had declined Meyer's invitation. Nonetheless he visited New York, and met Faye there.

Almost Constantly There

Questioned by Roosevelt, Meyer said that his expense account reports of lavish gifts for party girls did not necessarily mean they were for the direct entertainment of Roosevelt. "There were always 20 to 25 people in my apartment . . . The Colonel was almost constantly there," he said.

"You mean to say that you did all this—this gaining of scintillating conversation—just to entertain me?" Elliott asked.

"Well you were pretty busy with Miss Emerson," Meyer answered.

"You put my name down because it was easy," Roosevelt told Meyer concerning the expense accounts.

"I put it down because it was the name of the most important person concerned," claimed Meyer.

After the luncheon recess, Roosevelt again began finding fault with Meyer's expense vouchers, and said the party giver apparently liked to charge everything to the Roosevelt account—whether he was present or not—"just because it was a good name."

Thumbing through the sheaf of documents, he came across one listing "business" expenses of more than $300, including hotel bills, bar bills, and a $20 tip for the maid at the home of a Mr. and Mrs. Morrison in Palm Springs, Calif., in November, 1944.

Sent Her Flowers

"Mr. Meyer has put in and charged to Hughes Aircraft a tip to a maid for $20," Roosevelt said. "Now, I tipped that maid myself. I didn't happen to be as rich as Mr. Meyer, so the poor lady got only ten bucks.

"But my point is this—Mr. Meyer is there on a personal visit, and he tips the maid $20 and puts it in as a business expense—and charges it up to me!"

Ferguson recalled that Meyer also sent Mrs. Morrison $18 worth of flowers.

"And charged it up to me!" Roosevelt cut in, thumping his chest.

"In addition to that," he went on, "I sent her flowers and paid for them myself. I should have charged them to him."

He said there were "a lot of amusing things" in Meyer's accounts, but there was one he considered the "most ghoulish expense I've ever seen."

It was an entry by Meyer for $15 for auto hire and tips for Elliott's wife, and the wives of James and John Roosevelt on their arrival in Washington on April 13, 1945.

Came for Funeral

"These ladies arrived here to attend the funeral of my father," Elliott commented, handing the voucher back to a committee investigator.

Meyer broke in to explain that he was in Washington when the late President died at Warm Springs, Ga., on April 12, that year, and he arranged to have Elliott's wife flown here from the West Coast in Jack Frye's private plane. But he denied that any of the expenses were charged up to the Hughes company.

The committee then asked Roosevelt about a $132 item which Meyer had said represented a purchase of nylon hose for Miss Emerson.

"I never heard of any such item, and it was not given to me, and I couldn't wear it," Roosevelt said.

He questioned a number of other of Meyer's night club and dinner checks, including one which mentioned entertainment for a Miss Janet Thomas, a friend of Meyer's.

Ferguson turned to Meyer and asked what this had to do with the airplane business.

Name Attracted Him

"Because she is a very attractive girl," Meyer said.

Roosevelt finished his study of the accounts with the remark that "You can see that the name of Roosevelt had a very particular attraction" for Meyer.

He said he felt he had "exploded item by item" the various charges during his cross-examination, and that he had succeeded in showing that "only two or three are properly charged."

Meanwhile, Roosevelt disclosed—and Meyer admitted—that the publicist went to Hyde Park in November, 1944, because some of Elliott's "boys" had been invited out to lunch with Mrs. Roosevelt. They "interceded" with Mrs. Roosevelt to get Meyer an invitation, too.

Ferguson asked Meyer why, then, he had charged off the price of railroad tickets "as a tax-deductible item."

"That's what I'd like to know!" Elliott exclaimed.

"Because I considered it business to be invited to Hyde Park," Meyer said. "It was a good contact."

"Contact with Mrs. Roosevelt!" Elliott exploded. "Does she run the aircraft production of the United States?"

"It was a good contact," Meyer repeated firmly. "There were many important people there that weekend."

Unusual Exercise

Roosevelt got permission to ask Meyer a "pertinent" question. He told Meyer that, since he was invited to lunch at Hyde Park because an officer interceded, "I'd be very interested to know why the Hughes Aircraft Co. would have benefited from that contact with Mrs. Roosevelt."

"That I can't answer," Meyer replied. "She was very charming and gracious."

Pepper observed that any man in the country "would have jumped at the chance" to have lunch at Hyde Park.

"Jumped," said Meyer. "He would have caught a plane!"

Roosevelt laughingly told Meyer he understood his mother had taken the publicist on a hike "which is a very unusual type of exercise for you."

The audience roared.

"You know that from experience?" Ferguson asked Elliott.

Staying at White House

Roosevelt then challenged Meyer regarding an August 27, 1943, expense voucher which read "entertainment by John Meyer, dinner—Statler Hotel (Washington), $76; girls at hotel (late), $50."

"Will Meyer swear that I was present 'late' in any way and that it is a legitimate charge to me?" Elliott asked.

Meyer replied that there had been 12 people present for dinner.

"'Late' . . . 'late' . . . let's clear that up," Elliott said. He added that he met Meyer in a hotel corridor before the hearing, that he "challenged" Meyer on this point and that Meyer agreed he had not been there.

Elliott declared, "I was staying at the White House . . . the White House records will prove it."

"Well, we weren't sitting in the Jungle Room at the Statler alone," Meyer shot back. (The Jungle Room is in the Carlton Hotel; not the Statler.)

Both men shouted at once with Elliott bellowing, "Look at the White House records."

Senator Breaks In

"Well, maybe Eidson (Lieut. Col. Harry Eidson) was there 'late,'" Meyer said. "My policy is to jot down the name of the most important man in the party," he persisted.

"Well the 'most important man' wasn't there," Elliott replied.

"Let's clear up my moral record here," Elliott said.

Senator Owen Brewster broke in to ask that the committee desist from "this comedy relief." He said that Senators weren't "fortunate enough" to be acquainted with New York clubs.

Under close cross-examination by his fellow witness, Meyer freely admitted using Roosevelt's name on expense accounts when Roosevelt was out of the country. He insisted he had told the committee that in secret session.

"I used his name because the other officers were friends of his," the publicity man explained. "The colonel is absolutely right when he says I was unfair to charge him."

Ferguson: "You were entertaining them for influence?"

Meyer: "Business."

Roosevelt: "What is your idea of business?"

Meyer: "My impression of business would be the F-11 (Hughes photo plane) contract."

Roosevelt: "Did you think I had any possible connection with the F-11 contract—or that the officers you claim were part of my organization would have been able through me to influence in any way the F-11 contract?"

For Business Reasons

Meyer: "That I did not go into. I just did this entertaining for business reasons."

Roosevelt: "So that would explain why in 1944 you charged to business the entertainment of officers you say were able to influence that contract through me."

Meyer: "I would say what I said before—I used Elliitt Roosevelt's name because he was the most important one in the group:

Pepper: "What period are we talking about? What year was this?"

Meyer: "August, 1945—but we are now skipping lastly to 1944, just before the election."

Ferguson: "You wouldn't have given that entertainment unless they had been friends of the colonel?"

Meyer: "That's right."

Roosevelt "That is a very interesting point. Members of my organization in Europe had returned to the United States on temporary duty, leave or for permanent transfer. These officers, as well as enlisted men coming back to the country, I gave letters of introduction to my mother. These men, all of them, used to drop in and tell her what we were doing overseas.

Got on Bandwagon

"They told her they were going to New York for the weekend, and there they met Mr. Meyer. They did not meet him through me, but through Colonel (Clarence) Shoop, who had returned a long time previously.

"They told him (Meyer) they were going to Hyde Park and suggested they would call and find out whether they could bring you (Meyer) and they said that they were sure Mrs. Roosevelt wouldn't mind."

Elliott paused for breath, then added:

"And that is just how Mr. Meyer happened to get on the bandwagon and go to Hyde Park."

"That is absolutely right," Meyer said.

Pepper interrupted to say that the "greatest vice" was not "giving a few cocktail parties, a few pocketbooks, a little entertainment," but the grosser expenses—the shielded, guarded contributions to political campaigns."

Ferguson thought it "would be good for the people of the United States to know how much is put in political expenditures."

Brewster snapped that "we had little success" under the Democratic Congress "in managing to get the facts."

Elliott Interrupts

He said the next case to be explored by the War Investigating Committee concerned "the very free amount of advertising by war contractors with political undertone and overtones, and the employment of former Government officials by contractors."

Ferguson said that since Pepper "wanted to put politics into this, let's put politics into it."

"You're not suggesting that I'm the first one on that!" Pepper exclaimed.

Here Elliott begged time to say that he hoped the committee did not regard him "involved with either the Democrats or the Republicans."

"I have no political ambitions," he said. "I hope the Republicans will bring everything out that might have been hidden by the Democrats," he added with a smile.

Then Elliot broke in to ask permission to give his "complete concept" of his war-time relations with Meyer.

He explained that Meyer was a friend of Faye Emerson, as they had worked together at Warner Bros. motion picture studio. He added that Faye "became friendly with Howard Hughes," and that "they all moved in the same social circle."

"I now find that he (Meyer) didn't regard himself as a member of a social group, but regarded it as a business interest . . . There is a definite cleavage in our concepts of relations there," he added.

Others Entertain

Elliott said that Meyer "knew nothing" about war planes, seldom talked about them and was "more interested" in movie production phases of Hughes' work. "My impression was that Meyer's principal duties were with Hughes Productions (motion pictures)."

As Ferguson asked once again what the entertainment had to do with plane production, Elliott broke in to observe:

"I would like to know how any of it was applicable to the aircraft industry."

Elliott said that Meyer once did visit him in the Pentagon with Frye. Frye, not Meyer, pleaded that Elliott support Hughes' plans to build the F-11 planes at a new plant in Wichita, Kans., and reserve the Culver City, Calif., plant for production of the Hughes-Kaiser flying boat.

"I opposed the plan," Elliott said.

At one point, Ferguson asked Roosevelt to tell him what other airplane companies had entertained him. He had the answer written on a sheet of yellow paper.

"For the record," he said, "I would like to state that before the war and during the war I was entertained by Douglas, Lockheed, Fairchild, the Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals, Pratt & Whitney, Curtiss Wright, Girdler, General Electric, Ford, Chrysler, Pan American——"

The audience tittered.

Continues With List

"Excuse me for bringing that in," Roosevelt said, smiling.

"Why?" asked Ferguson.

Roosevelt said there had been "a lot of effort to bring that in—" and he didn't think it was germane.

Hughes has accused Brewster of offering to call off the inquiry if Hughes would merge TWA with Pan American Airways.

Roosevelt resumed reading the long list of firms that had entertained him.

Roosevelt stressed that his connection with the F-11 ended after he had made recommendations for its purchase to Arnold. He said:

"I had nothing to do with the negotiations of the contract whatever, or the carrying forth of my recommendations, which were: Get us an airplane and get it to us fast."

Roosevelt recalled saying then that "if you have to make them out of wood, go ahead and do it if you can get us the airplane."

Blames Echols

Roosevelt attributed delay in completing the Hughes photo plane to the Air Forces materiel command and to Gen. Oliver P. Echols, then its head. He said Echols had placed "political innuendo" in testimony previously given the committee.

"I challenge the faith of General Echols in maintaining that the United States Government . . . cannot manufacture wooden airplane and that they can't be used," Roosevelt said.

He added that material command "was extremely interested in having war contracts (for planes) performed by those already in the field."

He suggested that the committee question Echols "as to whether, possibly, his judgment might not have been swayed by the fact that he is now working for these war contractors who did not want to see criticism of them spread on the record after the war." Roosevelt said Echols is now employed by the Association of American Aircraft Manufacturers.

Spoke Rudely

The testimony turned back to night clubs, and Roosevelt again said he paid a good portion of the checks himself.

Ferguson asked Meyer about his former statement that "I never saw anybody else pick up a check in my entire war."

"Is that true or false?" Ferguson asked.

"That's a statement I'll probably regret," Meyer said. "I said it rather freshly and rather rudely.

"I never saw him pick up a check," Meyer went on. "But he could have picked up five checks while I was out of the room.

"There is a custom in night clubs—which you Senators are probably unfamiliar with—of bouncing around from one table to another. Somebody could have paid for checks while I was at another table. I could have paid for somebody else's check at another table."

Roosevelt maintained he spent "an equal if not greater amount" of his own funds the night Meyer put $106.50 on his expense account for visits to three night clubs in New York.

Denies Drinking Up $115

Elliott brought up a $115 item of "liquor for apartment" charged by Meyer to the "Roosevelt account" on August 20, 1943.

Meyer, he said, had invited him to a party, explaining that he was attempting to get a contract for the release of Hughes' motion picture, "The Outlaw," and that Hughes had promised him (Meyer) a $25,000 bonus if he succeeded.

Roosevelt said the party was attended by 40 to 60 people, including Grad Sears, United Artists executive.

"I resent the implication that I drank $115 worth of liquor," Elliott said.

Likewise, he professed ignorance about $50 which Meyer said he paid Chic Farmer, a photographer, to keep a night club picture of Elliott out of the newspapers.

"The implication is that it was a picture of Faye and I . . . I never object to pictures of Faye with me," he said, adding that he never asked that publicity be stopped by Meyer.

Hughes Wings Way To Washington in B-23

Los Angeles, Aug. 5 (AP).—Millionaire Plane Builder Howard Hughes took off for Washington at 3:32 p. m. (PST) (6:32 p. m., EDT) today to keep a date with the Senate War Investigating Committee, a spokesman announced.

He flew in a B-23 converted bomber.

A spokesman declared that Hughes' associates still do not know whether he planned to fly to Washington with a stop for fuel or make an overnight halt en route. If he should fly with only one stop for gas, the trip might take 10 to 12 hours, the spokesman figured, which would get Hughes to Washington between 4:30 and 6:30 a. m. (EDT) tomorrow.

N. Y. Harbor Fetes Liner Queen Mary

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The liner Queen Mary, fastest passenger vessel in the world, sailed majestically into New York Harbor today.

Spouting fireboats, low-flying airplanes and blimps and dozens of craft in the harbor gave a traditional welcome to the 81,273-ton liner, which responded with deep blasts from her horns.

Spick and span after 10 months of reconversion from troopship status, the Mary brought 1897 passengers from Southampton.

Woman's Death Laid To Dog's Friendliness

Chicago, Aug. 5 (INS).—The friendliness of the family dog brought death to a 73-year-old woman today.

Mrs. Lena Heilman of Tiffin, Ohio, died of a skull fracture suffered two weeks ago when her daughter's 70-pound Boxer, released from its leash after its nightly airing, bounded for home and knocked her over. Her head struck the sidewalk.

Disabled Veterans Get More Jobs

Attitude of Employers Now Much Better As Applicants Prove Their Mettle

Employment of disabled veterans has picked up during the past year with a marked improvement in the attitude of employers, it was disclosed yesterday.

The United States Employment Service reported that of the 2,500,000 persons now unemployed only 130,000 are disabled veterans. This compared with 170,000 disabled who were unemployed a year ago.

An official of the Veterans Administration said that employers, partly because of the war, now are generally more willing to hire handicapped workers. Their ability to perform good work was demonstrated when they were hired as substitutes during the manpower shortage.

"The public finally is recognizing that the handicapped worker in the right job does as well as anyone else," the official said.

Employers who still hesitate to hire the handicapped do so largely because they fear that the workers may be injured by machinery or lose time from work, the VA said. Actually, it said, absenteeism among disabled employes is less than that of other workers.

About 211,000 disabled veterans now are being rehabilitated under a program provided by Congress in 1944. Of these, 106,000 are studying in schools or colleges, and 105,000 are enrolled in on-the-job training programs.

Another 190,000 disabled soldiers of World War II still are in hospitals.

Slow Count of Heavy Voting Delays Returns in Arlington

The political battle expected in Arlington County's Democratic primary yesterday was still unsettled late last night, with election judges still counting what apparently was a heavy vote.

While other nearby Virginia counties were reporting election returns nearly or completely counted, Arlington County, had tabulated only two precincts.

Charles E. Fenwick was leading his opponent Frank L. Ball, jr., by a comfortable margin in the battle for the State Senate. Fenwick polled 632 votes to 266 for Ball.

Magruder Leading

In the House of Delegates race, Incumbents J. Maynard Magruder and George A. Damm also had a sizeable margin over their two opponents.

The count was Magruder, 734; Damm, 635; Harrison Mann, 268, and Albert A. Caretta, 190.

Harry K. Green, present commissioner of revenue, had 819 votes to 159 for his opponent, James E. Rice. Denham A. Rucker polled 749 votes to 195 for Malcolm Miller in the race for Commonwealth's attorney, and Judge Hugh Reid, incumbent trial magistrate, had 761 votes to 212 for Clarence E. Hodges.

Incumbent Faces Defeat

In Fairfax County, one of four incumbents faced apparent defeat and another was running a close race as 25 out of 26 precincts gave Robert J. McCandish, in the House of Delegates race, and John E. Taylor, a candiate for sheriff, leads over their opponents.

Edwin Lynch, who defeated McCandlish—then in service—for a seat in the Virginia General Assembly at the last election, was trailing his opponent by a count of 1341 to 1631.

Eppe P. Kirby, sheriff of Fairfax County for the past 20 years, was apparently being defeated by John E. Taylor, a Falls Church real estate dealer and veteran of World War II. The unofficial count, based on incomplete returns, gave Kirby 908 to 2089 for Taylor. Farmer L. Stubbs polled 105 votes.

John W. Ferguson, incumbent commissioner of revenue, polled 2379 votes to 613 for Richard M. Smith. Lewis M. Coyner, incumbent county treasurer, had 2426 votes to 554 for G. Wilson McGlincy.

Brookfield in Front

The board of supervisors contest, in five of the county's district, was as follows on the basis of incomplete returns:

Falls Church District, John W. Brookfield, 141, C. B. Runyon, 79.

Lee District, E. C. Sheads, 115, J. Golden Blincoe, 10, Paul C. Kincheloe, 102.

Providence District, G. Wallace Carper, 378, Lisle A. Smith, 295.

Harrison Leads

In Loudoun County, returns from 27 of 28 precincts gave Stirling M. Harrison, acting commonwealth's attorney and a candidate for that office, and S. Reed Galleher, who seeks the office of treasurer, comfortable leads over their opponents.

The vote was 1350 for Harrison to 1073 for Albert F. Anderson, a Leesburg attorney, in the commonwealth's attorney race. In the competition for treasurer, Galleher polled 1319 votes to 1179 for Monroe.

In the Jefferson District incumbent J. Homer Mock was returned with 283 votes to 202 votes for J. Holmes Thomas in the board of supervisors. One of the two precincts in Leesburg District gave Birtrand McKimmey 118 votes to 12 for Benjamin Bridges, incumbent.

Voting Apathetic

In Alexandria, apathetic voting settled the city's only contest. Miss Camille DeLane and George Z. Boteler won places on the Democratic Executive Committee from the Sixth Ward, nosing out Mrs. Katherine B. Demaine. Miss DeLane, incumbent, had 173 votes, Boteler, 216, and Mrs. Demaine, 83.

Only 285 votes were cast in the ward, although there are about 2800 registered Democrats there. Unopposed party candidates who will face Republican opposition in the November general elections are Andrew W. Clarke, present State Senator; Armistead L. Boothe, who seeks reelection to the Vriginia House of Delegates.

Unopposed for posts on the Democratic Executive Committee from other wards are A. F. Campbell and Talbot Sinclair, Second Ward; Raymond D. Hellmuth and Charles Sherwood, Third Ward; Mrs. Margaret Bailey and James V. Dyson, Fourth Ward, and Gilbert Cox, Fifth Ward. Still to be appointed are two committeemen to represent the First Ward, and one for the Fifth. No candidates filed for these posts.

In Prince William County, a single precinct gave Frank P. Moncure 57 votes for the House of Delegates to 20 for Edgar G. Parrish. J. P. Kerlin polled 50 votes to 16 for Wallace Partlow.

R. S. Hall polled 40 votes to 37 for J. L. Dawson for the board of supervisors.

'Numbers' Man Changes Plea

tective Sergt. Paul Clarke of the vice and gambling squad to explain why the big men of the numbers racket are not apprehended and the lottery game broken up.

"Big Shots" in Maryland

Clarke explained that Ellis is a "runner" and as such is the biggest fry in the numbers game that operates here. Clarke said the bosses of the game receive the money in nearby Maryland and do business there, collecting from runners such as Ellis.

"Well, then, get cooperation from Maryland authorities," said Judge Neilson.

After he left the bench, Judge Neilson elaborated on his position. He said:

"The numbers racket is perniciously evil and enormously lucrative, taking from the gullible public and opening the door to even more vicious crimes.

"I believe that the $50 fine which is usually imposed in numbers slip possession cases is merely a licensing fee for these mobsters. They must go to jail if law enforcement is to be effective.

Asks Cooperation

"In Ellis' case, police believed that his boss lives in Washington but operates in Maryland where our police can't touch him. It is common knowledge that fabulous sums are gambled away here and a percentage goes into the pockets of the professional gambler. It is also common knowledge that the streets and highways of Washington are used to deliver the day's take to the big bosses of the racket. I for one am willing to fight the racket, but there must be cooperation between all concerned."

the other major issue barring complete agreement on a new contract.

Renew Talks Tomorrow

The two sides scheduled a meeting Thursday to begin consideration of this final important obstacle.

Meanwhile, the company, the union and a Congressman who sponsored the new labor law hailed the strike-averting accord on the Taft-Hartley issue.

Henry Ford 2d, husky young president of the company, who flew back from a vacation to face the crisis, termed the compromise "an eminently fair solution to a particularly thorny problem."

"Under today's settlement," he added, "opportunity has now been provided for finding in less hectic surroundings a solution within the spirit of the Taft-Hartley law acceptable to both the company and the union."

In Los Angeles, Representative Hartley expressed himself satisfied that the agreement was "an honest effort to comply with terms of the act and is not an evasion."

The union indicated that it expected no serious difficulty in wrapping the pension proposal into a new agreement, but cautiously emphasized that the strike threat was not entirely dissipated.

Richard T. Leonard, UAW-CIO vice president and director of its Ford department, promised that no new strike deadline would be set before August 14, if at all.

He appeared today before the national Ford council of the union, composed of delegates from 46 plants, to give them a resume of the dramatic 18-hour bargaining marathon that averted the strike.

It was an anticlimax for the council, which had stood by in readiness to issue the strike call which would have taken the thousands of production workers out of the plants at noon.

The union demanded protection against legal suits for breach of contract as provided under the Taft-Hartley measure.

The compromise protects the UAW-CIO for one year from suits by Ford while the commission, with two company members and two from the union, attempts to work out a contract clause covering the matter.

Fifth Man May Decide Issue

A fifth man would be added to the commission if, the four are unable to agree unanimously.

The Ford settlement raised hopes in industry circles that the UAW-CIO might be able to reach an agreement with Murray Corp. of America, where 7000 employes are on strike in a similar demand for protection from Taft-Hartley penalties.

The two sides scheduled another negotiating session for 10 a. m. (EST) Wednesday.

The Murray shutdown two weeks ago forced the closing of Ford and Mercury assembly lines, idling 4500 employes indefinitely and threatening thousands of others with temporary layoffs.

only one billion dollars, less than a third of the original American loan, and the American officials are convinced that Britain will need aid before any congressional approval can be obtained.

In return for such emergency relief, the American Government will expect Britain's private agreement to the American plan for reorganizing the management of the Ruhr coal fields in an effort to increase production.

Britain, contrary to some published reports from London, is not considering cutting her occupation forces in Germany. Hence there would be little likelihood of American troops taking over additional security responsibility.

The British consider Germany one of the cheapest places to maintain their troops abroad. Their maintenance is less costly than in the Middle East and Africa, where reductions are more likely.

The European Economic Cooperation Committee meanwhile announced it had received answers to the questionnaires submitted to the 16 nations participating in the Marshall Plan preliminaries.

Floods Evict Chinese

Tsingtao, China, Aug. 5 (AP).—Thousands of persons are homeless in the Shantung Peninsula as the result of floods caused by incessant rains. Refugees, particularly from the fruit-growing Laiyang area 80 miles north of Tsingtao, reported vast acreages inundatetd.

by Zeropak; to the Cather factory, and to the two dwellings.

H. Delmar Robinson, jr., acting manager of the cold storage corporation, said that the damaged portion of his plant had been recently sold to the Arrow Wrecking Co. of Washington, and that approximately 25 per cent had been torn down before today's fire.

Covered by Insurance

The damaged section, he said, is fully covered by insurance still in force. He estimated that damage at "between $75,000 and $100,000."

Cather, a former barrel manufacturer, said that his barrel and box factory had not been in production since before the war, but was being used as a warehouse for apple boxes and baskets. He estimated his building loss at $10,000, but could not immediately set value to the contents destroyed.

Fred Glaize declined to estimate damage to the warehouse occupied by Zeropak pending an inventory. He said many supplies and much equipment was destroyed, but that 17,000 cases of applesauce stored in one section of the warehouse were apparently unaffected by the blaze.

Treated at this city's hospital for smoke and heat nausea were Firemen Clyde Wise of Stephens City, Christian Duke of Front Royal, and Donald Jones and Steve Spanos, both of Winchester.

All available Winchester fire apparatus was summoned to the scene. Other units came from Martinsburg, W. Va.; Stephens City, Front Royal, Strausburg, Clearbrook, Leesburg, Middletown and Berryville, Va.

cal Union, who has CIO backing. A heavy vote was also polled in Pittsylvania, a traditional political battleground, with almost all county offices contested in addition to the three-cornered race for two House seats between Samuel W. Swanson and Lindsey L. Moore, incumbents, and L. M. Giles.

Brunswick-Mecklenburg Vote

Another race which brought out a heavy vote was the senatorial contest in the Brunswick-Mecklenburg district between Shelton H. Short, jr., and A. S. Harrison, jr., for the seat vacated by Y. Melvin Hodges. Mecklenburg also had a House contest between F. C. Bedinger and C. W. Cleaton while in Brunswick M. Hill Abernathy, incumbent, had opposition from J. W. Bland.

Throughout the State the story was much the same—a heavy vote, enough to puzzle most observers who had expected light voting in view of the listless campaign in most areas. Some upsets were expected.

Tabulation of the vote for county supervisors and members of Democratic committees slowed counting of the ballots. Many areas had long ballots.

Another campaign which developed some heat was the senatorial race between William F. Young and Curry Carter in the Staunton-Augusta-Highland senatorial district. The seat was vacated by W. Stuart Moffett.

Issues, where they were any, varied widely over the State. Many campaigns were purely a matter of personal qualifications or personal canvassing.

Russian Serfs Held Interest Of Lincoln

A keen interest in Russia on the part of Abraham Lincoln is indicated in a letter in the Robert Todd Lincoln collection opened July 26 at the Library of Congress.

The letter, written December 28, 1863, by Bayard Taylor, poet, lecturer and secretary of the American legation at St. Petersburg, to the President, discloses that Lincoln suggested Taylor lecture in the United States on the Russian emancipation of serfs.

Taylor, then on a lecture tour, expressed desire to comply but added "it is rather late, this winter, to prepare a new lecture."

Taylor played an important role in keeping Russia friendly to the North during the Civil War and Lincoln is believed to have suggested the serf lecture series to bolster his own emancipation policy and also to strengthen Russian relationships.

"My own short experience has satisfied me that no country (except, perhaps, our own) has been so misrepresented as Russia," Taylor wrote the President.

Emphasizing "only slight resemblances" existed between Russian serfdo mand Southern slavery, Taylor added "the complete success of the scheme of emancipation in Russia has much significance for this Nation ta the present time."

Truck Collision In Texas Kills 21 or 22 Persons

Waxahachie, Tex., Aug. 5 (AP).—Either 21 or 22 persons were killed today when a gasoline tank truck and a truck loaded with Negro workers collided and burned at dawn near here. Four others were injured.

The condition of the bodies was such that officials said they could not determine exactly how many persons had been pinned beneath the trucks.

The trucks blazed for hours and officers had to close the heavily-traveled highway.

Truman Tells Teen-Age Boys Their Task Is World Peace

"Boy-President" Edmond Gong is welcomed to the White House yesterday by Mr. Truman. This is President Truman's first picture since the death of his mother 10 days ago

President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall yesterday told a teen-age delegation studying the national Government at first hand that it would be their task to achieve world peace based on freedom of the individual.

Clustered about the President on the White House terrace, the 103 delegates to the American Legion Boys' Forum of National Government were told:

"The great outlook in the world is to come. We will eventually wind up by having peace in the world and by having people live as free individuals, regardless of race, creed or color."

Chats Informally

Chatting informally with the 16 to 18-year-old visitors from all over the country, President Truman told them they were living in what will be the "greatest age in history" and urged them to continue their efforts to become good citizens.

"I am perfectly willing to turn the country over to you when your time comes," he told the delegation.

The President shook hands with all of the boys and invited camera enthusiasts to take his picture.

Later, the group, here for a seven-day visit that will end tomorrow, was told by Secretary of State Marshall during a visit to the State Department that they should attempt to find out all they could about American government and people of foreign countries.

Early Study Urged

Oure relations with other nations are handicapped, Secretary Marshall said, because people in this country, "who are so lucky," don't understand the position of people who are not as well off.

"It is important that young men start at an early age to learn something practical about government," he said. "The problems of government are not at all simple. You cannot settle them by getting mad. They require great tolerance and great patience."

Yesterday's visits included the Interior, Navy and Labor Departments, where top Government officials explained what makes the wheels go round. Like all good politicians, the delegates took time out last night to be guests of Clark Griffith at the Washington vs. Boston ball game.

Today's crowded schedule will clude a mock Senate session directed by Edward McGinnis, Senate sergeant at arms, followed by a mock Supreme Court session for which George T. Washington, Assistant Solicitor General of the United States, has prepared a special case for the youngsters to handle. A visit to the Naval Academy at Annapolis will top off the day.

Doctor, No Dentist Puts Town in Pickle

Donna, Tex. (U.P.).—Donna is a city of 5000 with plans for a modern hospital—but only one doctor.

Citizens raised $35,000 for the hospital while a similar amount was being pledged by a town benefactor. Then residents learned that one of their two doctors was leaving Donna.

The town also is without a dentist, although a new office building has a suite set aside for dental offices just waiting for a dentist to move in.

Chimpanzee Tests Hit Theories on Learning Powers

By studying chimpanzees first reared in darkness, a Yale scientist said yesterday he had produced results that "may require changes in current theories" of learning and visual perception.

Up to now, Dr. Austin H. Riesen wrote in the technical journal, Science, it generally has been believed that man gradually develops an inborn power to learn by seeing.

But he said the chimpanzee tests, amplifying previous investigations in man, have shown that the ability of an adult to learn promptly by the use of the eyes is not something that is inborn. Rather, he said, it is a capacity that requires "a long apprenticeship in the use of the eyes."

One Wall Too Many

County Orders Enforcement of Wiring Code

Strict inforcement of the electrical code for carnivals was offered yesterday by the Prince Georges County, Md., commissioners.

Members of the Electrical Board of Examiners and Supervisors for Prince Georges County appeared before the commisisoners at their meeting in Upper Mariboro.

A delegation from a Knights of Columbus committee also appeared to protest closing of their carnival in Mount Rainier Monday night.

John H. Webb, secretary of the electrical board, had ruled that the wiring used at the carnival does not mee the specifications of the underwriters code and that it is dangerous.

Adopt Resolution

The commissioners, following a heated discussion, decided they could not overrule a legally constituted board enforcing regulations prescribed by the General Assembly.

The board then adopted a resolution requiring that all applicants for permits be informed that they must conform with the national code and must have installation supervised by a licensed master electrician, who must have wiring inspected and approved by the County Fire Underwriters.

Street Work Begins

The Knights of Columbus group, headed by Joe A. Plumer and Gregory O'Connor, contended that the electrical inspectors had been neglecting carnivals until it was time for them to open. They said they would try to get approved cable, but would not be able to held the opening, scheduled for last night.

County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman reported to the commissioners that work of patching streets in Hampshire Knolls under the county patching program had been started yesterday morning.

The commissioners approved street improvements for Haydon rd., Avondale rd., and construction of curbs and gutters on La Salle rd., for Improvement District No. 1, Avondale.

Asuncion Put In Desperate Straits by Coup

Buenos Aires, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A brilliant surprise counter-offensive by northern Paraguayan rebels today appeared to have thrown the government of President Higinio Morinigo into confusion, forcing him to take desperate measures to defend his capital of Asuncion.

Amid a welter of unconfirmed reports that fighting already was going on in the city's outskirts, that Morinigo had fled the city, resigned or died, the only undisputed fact was that the rebels were moving closer to Asuncion after achieving a strategic coup by pulling out of their own capital of Concepcion to descend on Asuncion.

It appeared that Morinigo had drained all military forces from his big Campo Grande base in Asuncion and other nearby garrisons in order to send them north in the government's offensive against Concepcion.

When the rebel capital was taken last Thursday, it proved to be an empty victory because revolutionary forces already had evacuated it and begun their southward drive along the Paraguay River.

La Prensa reported this morning that Morinigo had mobilized every one in Asuncion capable of bearing arms and that some 5000 persons had been arrested over the weekend as the jittery government feared a possible uprising in its own backyard.

The United Press correspondent in the Argintine border town of Formosa reported that the rebels had announced three new landings: At Villa Hayes, Olivares and Villa Cue, all within 18 miles of Asuncion.

He said the rebel radio station voice of victory claimed that these forces had "begun a march that won't stop until they reach Asuncion itself."

The Rebel radio also reported that the river gunboats Humaita and Paraguay which had gone up the Parana River from Argentina, were preparing to force their way into the Paraguay River in order to shell Asuncion, simultaneously with a rebel attack on land.

West Wasn't Wild, Says Ex-Cowboy

Saybrook, Ill. (U.P.).—Movie fans would be disappointed in Guy P. (Shorty) Blakeman, 68-year-old former cowpuncher. He remembers the "Wild West" as not so very wild.

Blakeman was born at Deadman's Gulch, Kans., and worked as a cowhand and cook in Kansas and Oklahoma. But he never saw a shooting and never carried a six-shooter.

"I wasn't a very good shot," he admitted.

He did play poker, though—once.

"Lost $1.17," he said. "Never played again."

Mayor of Natanya Held by British

30-Foot Clock to Tell Chicagoans the Time

Chicago (U.P.).—A 30-foot clock with a minute hand weighing half a ton will be included in one of the world's largest electrical signs to be built on the roof of the Illinois Central office building.

Dominating Michigan Avenue and Grant Park, the sign will flash news and ads in moving letters 10 feet high. The 20 miles of wiring and the two thirds of a mile of luminous tubing in the 80-ton sign will burn as much electricity each night as do 150 average suburban homes.

Pony Express Was Financial Flop

Salt Lake City (U.P.).—The Pony Express was a financial failure.

This colorful Western exploit, inaugurated in 1860, went broke after 16 months of operation when the overland telegraph was completed.

During its operation, the Pony Express used nearly 500 horses and employed more than 200 men to transport mail over a 2000-mile route from St. Joseph, Mo., to California.

Big Roundup Of Jews Begun

Ben Ami, who went with troops to the eucalyptus grove near Natanya where the bodies of two "executed" British sergeants were found swinging in nooses last week, had repeatedly appealed to the underground to release the two soldiers.

Among the arrested were top officials of the Revisionist Party, accused by the government last year of being the forerunner of Irgun Zvai Leumi, the underground organization.

The bomb that tore off the front of the Labor Department building in the Street of the Prophets exploded just after a telephone call had warned "the building is mined."

The blast blew in the windows of the American Baptist Mission next door, injuring Mrs. Mildred Fried of Memphis, Tenn., and shattered windows for a block around.

The British at once announced that the dusk-to-dawn curfew on most of the Jewish quarter of Jerusalem, which was to have been lifted tonight, would be reimposed.

The blast coincided with military investigations of a report from excited Arabs that they had observed six armed Jews kidnap a Briton and take him into an orange grove near Tel Litwinsky camp.

Another unofficial report said five British soldiers and their military vehicle were missing from Tel Aviv.

Exits Are Barred

As the Palestine-wide roundup began at dawn the government halted the movement of all Jews from Palestine by land, sea and air.

Unconfirmed reports said Jews carrying American passports were affected by the ban on travel, and among those arrested was Max Kirtzman, an American Jew who has been a defense lawyer for a number of terrorists.

The high commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, also outlawed Brith Trumpeldor, a youth movement.

Uniform Tickets Cut Traffic Accidents

Chicago (U.P.).—Use of a uniform traffic ticket on which are listed six principal traffic violations has reduced automobile accidents in five Michigan cities.

Because these cities standardize traffic violations, motorists know what to expect from traffic cops in the several communities. Major traffic violations listed include speeding, improper passing, and running stoplights.

The International City Managers' Association, after observing the results of the Nation's first Statewide system for traffic law enforcement, said that during the late months of 1946, when accident rates mounted rapidly toward a holiday peak in most cities, auto mishaps in the five "test" cities increased only 1 per cent.

The five "test" cities which used the plan for six months and found it satisfactory are: Bay City, Saginaw, Jackson, Battle Creek, and Kalamazoo.

executed three Jewish underground members.

Hundreds of British Jews in Manchester and Salford, still fearful of violence, imposed a voluntary 10 p. m. curfew on themselves tonight.

The violence, mostly confined to window smashing, ocurred in London, Liverpool, Cardiff, Hull, Brighton and other places.

Four rabbis in Birkenhead declared they were unable to kill 130 animals intended for the London Jewish market because of a refusal by anti-Jewish slaughtermen to handle the meat.

Viscount Hall, first lord of the admiralty, expressed the government's condemnation of the outbursts in a speech in the House of Commons.

The Earl of Perth also deplored the outbreaks, saying "it is not the custom of the country that innocent victims should be made to pay for crimes committed abroad."

Police attributed much of the work to unorganized, irresponsible "hooligan youths," and were handicapped by inadequate police forces and the lack of sufficient street lighting due to Britain's economic difficulties.

been beaten with a rubber hose.

"There were a number of guards and other people present but nobody attempted to interfere nor did anyone speak to Mr. Lewis," the department's version said. "As the man was apparently in immediate danger, Mr. Lewis ordered the driver to drive off and brought Mr. Thuransky and his wife to the United States chancery for safety."

The Hungarian note gave a different version, implying that Thuransky escaped from Hungarian police with the help of unnamed American persons. It said:

"At the very moment when the above named Stephen Thuransky was accompanied to the criminal court for his hearing, he was carried away by unknown individuals who pushed him into a car just driving up and bearing an American tag and dashed off."

Leave Budapest by Air

Budapest, Aug. 5 (AP).—Stephen Thuransky and his family left Budapest by plane today after a weekend of excitement during which the former Columbus, Ohio, farmer escaped from Hungarian political police who had arrested him for talking against the Communists.

With him as he boarded an American plane for Vienna and possibly for the United States were his wife, Teresa, 43, whose screaming and clawing had aided his successful break for freedom, and his daughter, Margit, 26, and Mary, 22. He and the daughters are United States citizens, but Mrs. Thuransky is not.

Thuransky's escape, which occurred last Saturday practically at the front door of the Marko Jail, produced diplomatic repercussions.

Thuransky said that while he was being held the Hungarian police had dropped large sandbags on his back and also had threatened to shoot him.

It was reported that during the scuffle outside the jail Thuransky, swinging his handcuffed fists, felled one of his three guards, his wife grabbed another and the third guard knocked him unconscious. The United States official said later that the three Hungarian policemen "just stood there and stared" when he drove off with Thuransky.

Held 14 Times

Circleville, Ohio, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Police Chief William F. McCreary said today that Stephan Thuransky, arrested Friday by Hungarian police, was held here 14 times during 1940-41 for selling policy slips.

McCready said he remembered Thuransky as "a very clever man" who was fined several times for selling "numbers" while he lived on a small farm near here.

The police chief said Thuransky went to work for the Curtiss-Wright Corp. in Columbus in 1941 as an expert toolmaker and that he claimed to be a veteran of World War I.

Louis Peterfy, manager of a home for Hungarians in Columbus, said Thuransky came to this region in the early '20s and operated two small chicken farms here.

Quiet Marks White Primary

State Executive Committee chairman, reported:

"Indications are for a record vote, and one of the quietest elections in the history of Mississippi. I haven't heard of any challenges. The reports I received indicate there are no efforts to evade the allegiance to party principles."

Percy Greene, Negro editor of the weekly Jackson Advocate and regional vice president of the National Progressive Voters' League, said he had heard of no challenges of Negroes on the point of party principle. Nor, he said, was there "evidence of intimidation."

President T. B. Wilson of the Progressive Voters League said, "I think the voting is going better for the colored people than ever before. Some have been turned down for reasons I don't think are exactly right, but the results are encouraging."

Wilson predicted yesterday that as many as 6000 Negroes would seek to vote.

Austrian Dispute Looms as Soviet Seizes Refinery

Vienna, Aug. 5 (AP).—A new battle in the Allied Control Council over Austrian property was predicted today following disclosure that three truckloads of Russian soldiers had seized physical possessions of the Logan Oil Refinery in their zone on the outskirts of Vienna.

The plant was built by the Germans during the war and was owned by the Oesterreichische Mineraloelwertke MBH Lobout, a subsidiary of two German-incorporated companies of Socony Vacuum Oil Co. of New York and the Co. of London.

As a result of the Russian seizure, Soviet occupation forces are now in direct control of oil from the disputed Zisterdorf fields, from the derricks of the field to the tank barges on the Danube.

ner and the Right Rev. Msgr. John J. Russell.

The Citizens Chest Survey Committee was named by the Community Chest last March to make an impartial examination of structures of the inter-related organizations. The request followed attack on the Council of Social Agencies by many civic groups for its inter-racial activities, or, more specifically, a racial survey conducted with $55,000 of Chest funds.

Civic organizations charged that the larger council dominated activities of the Chest, primarily a money-raising organization for welfare activities of many of the council agencies.

Indians Here First

Chicago (U.P.).—Dr. Paul S. Martin of the Chicago Natural History Museum says there never has been a highly civilized people who preceded the American Indian in North America, a theory some hold because of large burial mounds that are hard to account for. Careful archaeological work has shown "without a shadow of a doubt" that the mound builders were American Indians, Dr. Martin said.

The total number of Red Cross personnel engaged in service to the armed forces as of January 1, 1947, stood at approximately 6000. About one half were overseas.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

broadcast the Republican charges of Dutch violations, field advices from Semarang indicated the cease-fire was working out well in that area, previously the scene of persistent sniping and mortar fire.

Comply With U. N. Call

The cease-fire orders of the Dutch and Indonesians complied with the call of the United Nations Security Council for a termination of the 15-day-old conflict in the rich Pacific islands.

Major political conflicts apparently were shaping up on the questions of forthcoming mediation efforts and territorial occupation.

The Dutch said they wanted mediation carried out by the United States. The republic, however, requested that the matter be handled by an international commission appointed by the United Nations.

Indonesian leaders in Jogjakarta indocated they hoped, at least, to secure representatives of India and Australia on that commission.

During mediation attempts the Dutch intend to hang on to those rich areas their troops have occupied, announcement by The Netherlands army and navy indicated.

Contracts Granted U. S. Firms As Aid to Greece Is Launched

The United States began putting the "Truman Doctrine" to work in earnest yesterday by granting the United States Steel Corp. and five American engineering firms $82,400,000 in contracts for reconstruction and rehabilitation work in Greece.

The contracts were awarded by the State Department which also announced the departure by air of an "advance party" of three American contractors and an Army engineer to put the contracts into operation.

These moves were the first definite steps taken to get the 300-million-dollar Greek aid, stop-Communism program under way since the departure of Dwight Griswold, who as chief of the United States mission to Greece, will direct the plan.

To Repair Ports

The contracts call for reconstruction and rehabalitation of Greece's 9000 miles of highways, 1600 miles of railroads and railroad bridges, the three major ports of Piraeus, Salonika and Volos, and reconstruction of the Corinth canal.

The department said the contracts were negotiated by the engineers corps on a cost-plus, fixed-fee basis.

The department broke down the $82,400,000 by categories as follows:

For highway repairs—$10,300,000 plus $38,700,000 in Drachma for local expenditure.

Railroads—$8,500,000 plus $[illegible]500,000 in Drachma for local expenditure.

Ports and canal—$11,600,000 and $5,900,000 in Drachma for local expenditure.

Contractors Enroute

The $900,000 to U. S. Steel Corp. brings the total to $82,400,000.

The three contractors already on their way to Greece are Wilfred Painter of the Starr, Park & Freeman firm, and B. A. Byrnes and Earl Jennett, both of Atkinson, Inc. They will be joined by a larger group of contractors within two weeks.

Also enroute to Greece is Col. D. W. Griffiths, United States Army Crops of Engineers, who will be in charge of execution of the contracts.

Man Again Confesses Rape-Killing of Girl, 5

Norristown, Pa., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—John H. Fay, mild mannered self-admitted sex murderer, today signed a second confession to the rape-slaying of a 5-year-old girl whose battered body was found in a well.

State Police Detective William B. Miller said he was "convinced Fay is the right man." Earlier Montgomery County authorities labeled Fay's first confession, made to police in Pittsburgh last Thursday, a "product of an overworked imagination." Fay also is charged with the rape of a 5-year-old child at McKeesport, Pa.

Area Body Gets Hyattsville Mud Problem

Complaints of flooded cellars and mud-covered streets made by residents of the West Hyattsville area have been referred by the Hyattsville City Council to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

A delegation of residents from the vicinity of 30th and Hamilton sts. told a Council meeting Monday night that streets of the area were covered by mud and clay after rain storms.

Councilman Frederick M. Coxen, chairman of the Council's drainage committtee, said that the commission has plans for strengthening the drainage system of the area, but lacks funds for the work.

City Fire Marshal Wayne C. Read said that fire equipment may be used to pump out cellars only in cases where health is endangered.

The Council also recommended condemnation of two town landmarks—the Hyatt Mansion on Rhode Island ave. and the Octagon House on 42nd pl.—as unsuitable for living quarters. The Council was given authority to make such recommendations by an act of the State Legislature passed at the last session.

Civil Air Patrol Placed Under New Command

The Civil Air Patrol, a volunteer semimilitary organization of air-minded civilians, has been placed under the command of the Air Defense Command of the Army Air Forces, with headquarters at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

The Civil Air Patrol was formerly under direct control of AAF headquarters in Washington.

The AAF, announcing the change yesterday, said Brig. Gen. F. H. Smith, jr., will continue as commander of the patrol and his headquarters will remain in the Capital.

Gen. Carl Spaatz, AAF commanding general, said the change is in line with the reorganization program to centralize control of civilian component forces and auxiliary and cooperative groups under air defense.

The patrol is organized into 49 wings, one for each State and Hawaii. About 75,000 boys and girls, age 15 to 17, are being given ground control training by senior members of the patrol so that CAP activities complement those of the Air Reserve, the Air National Guard and the Air Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Coeds' Love Cures Sick, Retarded Baby

Albuquerque, N. Mex. (U.P.)—Loving care and attention given by coeds at the University of New Mexico, and their faculty supervisors, made a well and smiling baby of a sick and miserable infant brought to the school's home management house.

Florence Schroeder, director of the project, said the infant was retarded mentally, suffering from a skin rash, and in such a complicated emotional state that medical science was stumped.

Within two months after the baby was brought to the nursery, it was rid of its rash, had normal reactions, and had begun to laugh and coo.

"It was nothing but love," says Mrs. Schroeder. "And love can sometimes be better than medicine. The doctors say so themselves."

Tornado Competitor Of U. S. Air Mail

Turon, Kans. (U.P.)—The recent Oklahoma-Texas tornadoes provided errant air mail service in Kansas.

The morning after the big blow which took 132 lives to the south, Roger W. Lightner of Turon found an envelope in his yard addressed to Albert Duggin of Woodward, Okla.

Apparently it was blown the 107 air line miles from Woodward to Turon.

Eccentric Kills Officer and Dies Fighting Off Eviction

Lyndhurst, N. J., Aug. 5 (AP).—A tiny, gnome-like eccentric who claimed to be an American Indian was shot to death in a half-hour battle with police today after he had fatally wounded a policeman attempting to evict him from the lonely house he claimed was his.

He said he was "Charlie Longboat," and tiod police he had "permission from Washington" to occupy the house, owned by Joseph Adavers. He had threatened in District Court to "kill anyone" who attmepted to remove him.

Longboat asserted he owed no rent, and Adavers said no rent had been paid in three years. Longboat had occupied the property five years.

A District Court constable arrived this morning with two policemen to serve an eviction notice on the tenant. As Patrolman Albino attempted to force the barricaded front door, Longboat poked a single-barreled shotgun through a glass panel and blasted the policeman in the chest.

Later a cordon of police hurled tear gas into the house for 30 minutes, but the lone defender laid down such a barrage with his shotgun that the policemen were not even able to reach Albino, who lay fatally wounded.

Finally, Longboat, his eyes streaming from the gas, staggered into the kitchen. Police Capt. James Vogle had crawled up to the kitchen window. A single shot from Vogle's pistol fatally wounded Longboat, who staggered outside and collapsed.

Ford Settlement

What would have been a costly strike in the Ford Motor Co. has been averted at the last minute through intelligent labor-management compromise. A prolonged shutdown of the Ford assembly line would have affected far more persons than merely the 107,000 Ford employes. It would have thrown people far and wide out of work; it would have aggravated the continuing shortage of new cars; it would have contributed to the gray market in which only slightly used autos are resold for exorbitant profits; it would have boosted inflation another notch. A strike at Ford would have been particularly senseless in view of the manifest desire of the new company regime to go halfway in labor matters and of the fact that the matter in dispute was not wages, but a frankly political interpretation of the applicability of the Taft-Hartley law.

As we have stated before, we are not in sympathy with union attempts to evade the Taft-Hartley law by insisting on clauses in contracts to circumscribe its provisions. Undoubtedly unions are under strong temptation to do just this as a result of the goad established by the "willing and able to work" hedge in the coal contract. The UAW effort to obtain relief from financial responsibility for breach of contract on the part of its members was in such a category. The Ford company's substitute proposal was an offer to waive suits in return for union assistance in quelling and denouncing wildcat strikes. The agreement finally attained is in the nature of a compromise between the two positions. A committee of union and company members will be appointed to work out a solution of the question of union liability in a calmer atmosphere divorced from the eleventh-hour tension. Meanwhile the company has promised not to institute suits for one year while the procedure is being implemented.

The suspicion will arise that peace was bought at the price of something closely approaching a negation of a portion of the Taft-Hartley Act. To our mind the agreement cannot be so stated, but leaves the dispute in a twilight zone for the time being, and we may have a test in the courts. For the welfare of labor as well as management, that test can best come through means other than a disruptive strike that would penalize the whole country. In abandoning inflexibility for the conciliatory attitude that brought the compromise, both parties to the Ford dispute gave evidence of the sort of maturity that it is to be devoutly hoped will now become the pattern in American labor relations.

Success Cult

A warning that a college degree is no guarantee of worldly success has been voiced by Dean David M. Trout of the Central Michigan College of Education. His caution is timely, as this fall will witness another stampede to enter college. Veteran enrollment is expected to reach its peak with a probable 1,300,000. National prosperity has also increased the number of high school graduates who aspire to campus life. Included in both groups are many young men and women brought up on the American tenet that the world is the oyster of anyone who has been to college. This college success cult, Dean Trout believes, has been fostered largely by studies which show that a large majority of successful Americans attended college, and that almost half of them held at least one higher degree. However, Dean Trout points out that "enough school leavers and academic failures" were found among the eminent and financially successful to disprove the theory that degrees and high marks were all anyone needs to get ahead. Nevertheless, the dean emphasizes that a college education is generally an aid to subsequent success, as it adds status, establishes self-confidence and opens the road to knowledge.

Respect for college experience is so general in this country that even many successful and cultured self-educated persons suffer from the great American frustration, "I didn't get to go to college." Even the achievements of Abraham Lincoln are of no comfort to those who think themselves academically underprivileged. The eagerness with which veterans have taken advantage of their college opportunities has led to the fear that they perhaps overvalued the material side of what college training and degrees would bring them. Yet the many who are taking technological courses have no alternative but to get all the training they can in the fields they have chosen. Indeed, all the servicemen at college seem to recognize they will need all the mental equipment possible for holding their own in the competitive world ahead. Unlike many prewar college Joes, they are not on campuses for good times, social status or contacts, and the Office of Education reports they are making good records as serious students. Even if they should be disillusioned as to what their sheepskins can do for them when they are on their own, they will find themselves strongly reinforced by what they did for themselves during their college years.

Atomic Anniversary

Many of us today will recall the psychological shock we felt when exactly two years ago we read of the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima. One airplane, a blinding flash, and a town bigger than Richmond had ceased to exist. The imagination was almost numbed. All we could think of at first was that at last the world of the comic strips had become the world of actuality. This wonder was followed by a wave of relief that a scheduled invasion of Japan which would have cost perhaps hundreds of thousands of American lives was ruled out. The end of war with Japan followed swiftly upon the launching of atomic warfare on Japan. Three days after Hiroshima came the bomb on Nagasaki, dropped in the midst of the surrender discussions on Japan, and five days later Japan gave up.

As time has gone on this feeling of relief has been succeeded by a gnawing doubt stemming from fresh data that Japan was already in extremis when the bomb struck Hiroshima—a doubt that the use of it may have been hideous and gratuitous. Ought we not at least to have given the Japanese a harmless demonstration somewhere off her shores? Mr. Stimson has sought to assuage this sense of shame, this moral bewilderment. He says that, in spite of President Truman's threat to the Japanese that "they may expect a rain of ruin from the air the like of which has never been seen on this earth," we only had a couple of bombs in our possession. In other words, we would have shot our bolt, not Japan's, in a demonstration. Moreover, there was no surety that our bombs would not prove to be duds, in which event the demonstration would have been a real boomerang.

The disclosure and use of atomic energy via a bomb was almost as if the introduction of electricity had started with the equipment of the death chair. That lethal birthmark is still upon atomic energy. Some day we may have atomic-driven transport, atomic-lighted houses, atomic tools of medicine—but nobody knows when. Two years after Hiroshima the predominant thought about atomic energy remains concerned with its lethal properties. This has been frankly acknowledged by Chairman Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Lilienthal is not to blame. Nor is our Government. The military emphasis of the work of our atomic managers is due to the failure of the nations to agree upon a system of world control of the genie now that we have released it. That is the tragedy of the modern world. The domestic control we have ourselves imposed still has to be transformed into world control, and two years after the burst over Hiroshima a great gulf divides the nations, or, rather, Russia and the rest of the world, on ways and means. Russia, indeed, insists on going it alone; that is to say, she refuses to let her sovereignty give way to the cosmic force that has annihilated barriers and demonstrated our planetary oneness.

It would be folly to say that the resulting stalemate has got the world in its grip. The atomic phenomenon is academic to most people of this world because they are haunted by a more immediate specter. The specter is the twin evil of insecurity and want. Yet a land of Canaan was opened up for suffering humanity when the scientists rubbed this Aladdin's lamp! It all goes to show that our basic trouble is not with the forces of nature but with the cussedness of human nature. That is the note on which we closed our dimly felt observations two years ago. What we really seem to need, we wrote, is a new era in the understanding of the nature of man, and whether it is really the kind of nature that makes it desirable for him to play with such toys as atomic energy. That is why the puzzle remains, as one of the scientists said, as to whether the issue of the scientists' work will prove them to be fiends, or dreamers, or angels.

The conclusion is as inescapable now as it was then: if the peoples of the world cannot now live in unity and peace, they will presently not live at all. The atomic bomb merely added "or else" to the Biblical commandment to love one another. If we don't, the story of homo sapiens will become, as the late Lord Balfour once said, "a brief and unpleasant episode in the history of one of the minor planets."

House Partner

There is abundant justification for Representative Halleck's demand that the Administration recognize the House of Representatives as "a full-fledged partner" in foreign affairs. The Constitution, of course, vests the primary responsibility for dealing with foreign governments and the treaty-making power in the President, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate. As we noted recently, however, "in these days, when dollars are counting more than treaties, the House must be reckoned with." For it is the House which holds the initiative in the appropriation of funds necessary to execute foreign policy. This is a reality which the President has not yet fully recognized. And the failure to recognize it has been responsible, at least in part, for the meddlesome role which the House Appropriations Committee under the stern and sometimes myopic leadership of Mr. Taber has played in respect of foreign affairs.

If the House is to play a useful role as a partner in the foreign field, it must be informed as to the development of policy and the circumstances upon which policy is based. On its own initiative the House is acting toward this end. The Herter Committee will leave for Europe shortly to study problems in connection with the Marshall Plan. Whatever the United States ultimately does in respect of this plan must win House approval, and this kind of forehandedness is the best possible augury for a sympathetic and intelligent reception here of such proposals as may come out of the meetings now going forward among European governments.

Elliott's Round

It seems to us that Mr. Elliott Roosevelt has plainly won the first round of his contest with the senatorial inquisitors. Although he had ostensibly been summoned to answer questions, he appears to have done most of the questioning himself, and to have kept the committee and its principal witness, Mr. Johnny Meyer, the professional picker-up of other persons' checks, on the defensive throughout most of the proceedings. Bashfulness has never been one of Elliott's temperamental defects; and there is no reason to suppose that he was at all disconcerted by all the microphones and movie cameras, or by the vast audience that had come to watch him perform. Indeed, he was probably stimulated by the discovery that the greater part of the audience was sympathetic, and by the applause it gave him when he scored a point.

The greatest applause, of course, came when he asserted that he would fight to the death to preserve the good name and record of his father, though among those who applauded there may have been some who regretted that Mr. Roosevelt's filial solicitude had not prevented him from permitting the book called As He Saw It to appear with his signature. However, General Roosevelt's implication that the main purpose of the inquiry was to make political capital undoubtedly struck home. He was, as he said, not the only officer who had received favors in one form or another from manufacturers interested in obtaining war contracts. Nor had he taken them exclusively from Mr. Howard Hughes, or his representative, Mr. Meyer. Mr. Roosevelt told the committee of a half dozen other aircraft corporations whose representatives had also given him entertainment. He managed to make it seem probable that by no means every item that went into Mr. Meyer's prodigious expense accounts with Elliott's name attached to it represented any direct largesse to himself. In short, the committee seemed further than ever from having demonstrated that Mr. Meyer's hospitality had in any way influenced the nature of Mr. Roosevelt's report recommending Mr. Hughes' photo-reconnaissance plane.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt picked up as many checks as Mr. Meyer is, of course quite irrelevant. The point is that in permitting Mr. Meyer to entertain him on such a grandiose basis, Mr. Roosevelt was doing exactly what dozens or possibly hundreds of officers and civilians connected with the purchasing activities of the Army and Navy were doing, though we doubt that many besides Elliott carried this parasitism to the point of permitting interested manufacturers to finance their weddings. That the officers and officials who accepted these favors were guilty of a degree of bad taste amounting to irresponsibility goes without saying. But it also goes without saying that if Mr. Roosevelt were not, as he said himself, the son of his father, he would not have been the first officer who has been called upon to explain his conduct before a committee dominated by his father's political enemies.

Imaginary Invasion

To those who remember the German Reichstag fire, the Dominican Republic's fuss about an impending "invasion" has a slightly secondhand smell. The same phony cry of "Communist revolutionaries" that the Nazis used in 1933 to assess blame for a conflagration they themselves set is now being brandished in Ciudad Trujillo. For several weeks stories have emanated from the Dominican capital about three boatloads of freebooters allegedly on their way from Cuba to overthrow Dictator Trujillo. More recently American officials have been put in a tizzy looking for seven former United States war planes that supposedly were preparing to take off from Florida to aid in the coup d'etat. It is scarcely surprising that neither threat to the satrapy of Trujillo has materialized. Indeed, while the State Department maintains a discreet silence, customs officials have been utterly unable to locate the planes. This gives weight to the assertion of Dominican exiles in New York that the planes actually landed on Trujillo's own estate last week.

The purpose of these theatrics is not hard to perceive. Imaginary threats are the inevitable accompaniments of police rule—and Trujillo's state is the closest thing to totalitarianism in the Western Hemisphere. His bloody repression has brought the round condemnation of the Dominican Republic's neighbors, including ruptured relations with Guatemala and the flat refusal of Venezuela to recognize him. That Trujillo should be resorting to the tactic of crying "wolf" so soon after a manufactured election that gave him 93 per cent of the "vote" indicates that perhaps the ghosts of his dead opponents are beginning to haunt him.

Trial By Ordeal

The Washington Post was criticized by "Former Government Employe" on July 29 for publishing on July 24 a cartoon entitled "Loyalty Test" on the ground it represented distorted thinking. She implied that the cartoonist and The Washington Post seek the downfall of our free institutions by attacking them with totalitarian propaganda.

Such a charge is unwarranted. Since this and other cartoons appearing in The Washington Post have profound historical significance, "Former Government Employe" would greatly benefit by enrolling in a good history course. The cartoon in question did not, as she thought, imply that loyalty to our Government is like walking on live coals. Rather it attacked with clarity those who would destroy our free institutions and drag humanity back to the Middle Ages when walking on live coals was a regular court procedure. No doubt many charges in those days were as groundless as some in modern times.

Trial by ordeal (which the cartoonist undoubtedly had in mind), compurgation, battle, and the dusty foot were only a few of several terms of savagery which gave birth to our modern concept of justice, namely, trial by jury. Justice by compurgation was measured by the ability of the respective litigants to recruit the greater number of witnesses who could manufacture the fastest and smoothest alibis. Under such a system, Mr. Andrew May and Mayor Curley of Boston, could have, no doubt, fared much better. Trial by battle was more violent. But the accused had a sporting chance. Sometimes he was placed in a pit where he could outwit his accusers (sometimes women) who used clubs in an effort to dislocate his brain. If he survived, it was res judicata. (I do not know if this is the origin of the use of the rolling pin.)

Out of this travail came Magna Charta, the landing at Plymouth Rock, constitutional government. It is to be hoped that eventually a civilized and educated society will emerge. "Former Government Employe's" integrity and wholesome expression of devotion to the cause of democracy are to be admired. But her apparent lack of understanding of turbulent world conditions is not at all heartening. It indicates the mass confusion which threatens destruction of democracy—and our free institutions.

Homeless People

Much discontent has been expressed over the efforts of President Truman to give sanctuary to some of the homeless persons of Europe. Criticism of the President's effort has ranged from mild grumbling to vituperative attack.

One of the most vehement expressions of opposition, by Mr. Gary A. Mallon of Philadelphia, appeared in The Washington Post of July 22. Mr. Mallon condemned the President for wanting to admit the DPs and at the same time blamed him for doing so little "about the poor devils who fought for this country."

To keep the record straight, it seems only just to place credit or blame where it rightfully belongs.

President Truman is guilty, if guilt there is, of placing the fundamental human needs of the homeless DPs before what some claim to be "economic considerations." His effort has been blocked by the Eightieth Congress.

President Truman is also guilty, if guilt there is, of placing the needs of our own veterans for housing, lower rents, and lower prices before what some claim to be "economic considerations." These efforts have also been blocked by the Eightieth Congress.

Rather than set themselves in opposition to the homeless and needy displaced persons of Europe, Mr. Mallon and others of like persuasion could more logically identify themselves with these unhappy people. Not Mr. Truman, but rather certain Congressmen are to be condemned who have worked to block proposals by the President to solve the problems of both homeless Americans and homeless Europeans.

Atomic Energy Story

The Washington Post merits the commendation of all Americans for its attempt to interpret the story of atomic energy in language that the average reader can understand.

This effort to enlighten the people should not be confined to those who read The Washington Post but should be made available to the people of all the world.

This writer believes that it would be a profitable expenditure toward the cause of peace if this Government would assume the responsibility of sending reprints of The Washington Post supplement to every newspaper in this country and also to newspapers in every other country in the world with the hope that each paper would publish the material in its national language.

Price Comparison

Slightly over a year ago one of next year's aspirants to the Presidency was chiefly instrumental in having all price controls removed. His assertion was that there need be no great apprehension about skyrocketing prices. Everything would be settled according to the laws of supply and demand.

Somehow, the opposite happened with the ludicrous, yet tragic result that our very good neighbors across the border pay less for products than we do, despite the fact that duty is paid on some such items.

Comparing the grocery ads in The Washington Post and the Toronto Star of Toronto, Canada, both of Thursday, July 31, this is what I found:

TORONTO STORES
Butter, lb.	44c

WASHINGTON STORES

Could it be that in "supply and demand" there is omitted the word "racketeer" before the word demand? Or mustn't we use that gruesome word in an era of ridiculous hawkshaw investigations, misguided in wrong directions?

Positive Program For Korea

The Russian-American conference on Korea is at last officially admitted to be "deadlocked," according to The Washington Post of August 1. This means that 23 months after the surrender of Japan, "liberated" Korea is still cut in two by the iron wall built on the thirty-eighth parallel. A Russian army still rules the Northern zone, and an American army the South. The two questions of importance are: Where does the blame lie? What is to be done now?

The blame clearly lies upon the Soviet Union. Despite Molotov's assurances to Marshall before this conference convened on May 21, the Russians have insisted, as they did a year ago, that only Koreans who favor trusteeship (i.e., only Communists) could be consulted on the formation of an all-Korea government. And once again, as they did last year, the American delegation refused to yield on an issue that would have turned all of Korea over to Soviet control through formation of a puppet Communist regime.

Some superficial observers have laid part of the blame for the deadlock upon Dr. Syngman Rhee, nationalist leader who has led the anti-trusteeship movement. They say Dr. Rhee's insistence on this issue has "hampered the Americans in negotiating with the Russians." This could only be true if it were the American purpose to appease Russia by agreeing to set up a Communist-dominated coalition government in Korea.

If Americans are really trying to apply the Truman Doctrine of stemming the further expansion of communism, Dr. Rhee has rendered the United States a great service by his dramatization of the fact of Korean opposition to trusteeship (under joint Russian control) and to communism. Dr. Rhee made it easy for the American delegation to insist that a Communist coalition government was contrary to the wishes of the great mass of the Korean people, and therefore could not be accepted by the United States.

Whoever is to blame, Korea remains divided, and no solution for this problem is in sight. The division was agreed upon by Russian and American officials, not by the Koreans. The continuance of the division has serious political and psychological evils for Korea, but the economic miseries it causes are more tangible and bear more hardly upon individual lives. There are positive steps the United States can take to help mitigate the evils.

1. We can proceed immediately to hold an election in South Korea to set up a government of, by, and for the Korean people.

2. This government should be aided economically by the United States to help it offset the serious loss of the mineral, coal, forest, hydro-electric, and heavy industries resources now sealed off in the Russian-occupied zone.

3. A small security force of American troops should remain in south Korea until a Korean army has been trained and equipped to counterbalance the 200,000 Soviet-trained and led troops that have been conscripted in North Korea.

4. Since almost two million North Koreans (including many of the most capable democratic leaders) have fled as refugees into the American-occupied zone, the new South Korean government should be recognized as the de jure government of all Korea. Russia will not like it, but why should we continue to sacrifice principles of justice and decency in the vain hope of winning Soviet approval?

5. The United States should support the application of this new Korean government for membership in the United Nations. If Russia vetoes the application this would be one more of many reasons why the U. N. may have to be reorganized without Russian participation.

6. Efforts should be continued, as part of the general Asian peace settlement, to secure Russian withdrawal from North Korea. These efforts should be fully predicated upon the fact that Russia participated in only the last 22 days of the Asia war, during the whole of which period Japan was already seeking to apply the machinery of surrender.

Congressional Perennial

By Malvina Lindsay

Party Life Inquest

FOR THE THIRD time in little over a year the public has been peeping through the keyhole, via a congressional investigation, at high life parties alleged to have been held in connection with war contracts.

These parties, like revelations in penny arcade machines, have all been somewhat overbilled. They have also been exaggerated in their importance to the issues involved. But they have been good publicity for congressional hearings primarily concerned with duller stuff, and also for legislators conducting the investigations.

In the Hughes aircraft hearings, the entertainments have been froth on the deeper currents of political and financial conflict—the war still being waged over the ghost of President Roosevelt, the tussle between Henry J. Kaiser and his industrial rivals, and the struggle between airline interests for the fat postwar travel business of the world.

Yet these parties are significant in that they emphasize how such carryings-on have always been the accompaniment of war. At the same time—aptly enough on the second anniversary of the atom bomb—they raise the question as to whether such social sidelines will continue.

PARTIES of the last war, so far investigated, follow a similar pattern. Those engineered in Hollywood and New York by the Hughes publicity representative featured good food and public figure guests, as did the well appointed dinners given by lobbyist John Monroe in the "Big Red House on R Street" in Washington, and the Garsson wedding suppers in New York and Washington.

The Hughes parties added one touch of glamour the others lacked—Hollywood beauties as entertainers. But one point overlooked in the questioning of witnesses, which would have quickened feminine interest in the investigation, was a detailed account of menus with recipes for the more exotic dishes, and the color and weave of the nylon hose given women guests.

From Nero on down some people have always banqueted and bathed while others faced gunn or fire. Often the partying has been merely due to callousness or escapism, or as cynics put it "just human nature," with no personal gain involved. One criticism of Gen. George B. McClellan while commanding the Army of the Potomac was that he gave elaborate dinners in Washington with a variety of wines nearly every day while Confederate forces were converging on the Capital.

However, droves of Government contractors, merchant tailors, horse dealers, saddlers and blacksmiths, who had descended on Washington at that time in search of business, were also giving dinners. And in 1917-18 men with trucks and other twentieth century supplies were likewise inveigling official bigwigs to dine. Now it is aircraft entertaining that Congress looks into.

NATURALLY many wonder if an atomic war would bring subterranean dining and dancing with the checks picked up by rocket bomb manufacturers. Or would instantaneous Government regimentation eliminate contractors, lobbyists and press agents? And would potential diners be otherwise occupied caring for the millions of casualties and digging holes for their own survival?

Of more immediate interest is the extent to which commercial entertainment of public and semi-public figures has become a part of American life in peace as well as war. As Mr. Hughes and his publicity representative point out, it's a matter of business competition and "all the other airplane companies do it." They might have included most of the other business firms, and have added that such handouts in widely varying degrees of value are accepted by a surprising number of men and women connected with Congress, Government offices, Army and Navy, newspapers and radio, and other fields in which they are in position to participate in the "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" game.

Such entertainment offers one of the most lucrative fields of modern gold digging. It is not surprising that those providing it are led to the crass and cynical assumption that the way to the goodwill of almost any person is through his stomach, and that dining, cocktailing, night clubbing, are necessary aids in doing business with almost everyone, including Uncle Sam.

Air Force Waste

Not more than a month ago the Air Force was complaining to Congress about the small budget it had been granted for the current fiscal year. Yet, Friday the Air Force staged spectacular "air shows" all over the country that must have cost a small fortune.

I, as a tax-paying citizen, would like to know the cost of flying eight B-29s from Tokyo to Washington. The gasoline and oil alone on this flight must have cost several thousand dollars. There was no doubt in the minds of the Air Force that the B-29s could accomplish such a flight. Then, what was the constructive purpose of the feat?

On page 5C of The Washington Post of August 1 there is a headline over an Associated Press story reading "Air Forces Have Gasoline for 90 Days." With only a 90-day reserve of gasoline it seems to me that the Air Force is jeopardizing the Nation's security by expending its meager gas supply for show purposes. Could not the gas used in "Air Force Day" celebrations have been put to valuable use in constructive training? DAWN J. STEWARD.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Breaking Truce

THE PATTERN of the future in the whole labor scene may well be established in the next few months. On the one hand, the outcome of the current negotiations between the CIO's United Automobile Workers and the Ford Motor Co. will become a standard of measurement in post-Taft-Hartley Act labor relations. On the other hand, a test of strength of even more significance for the long term future of American politics, may also be in prospect. For it is possible that all-out, eye-gouging, shiv-sticking political warfare withia the CIO itself is in prospect.

The battle, if it comes about, will be between the CIO leadership, including President Philip Murray, and the CIO's Communist-dominated minority. At present an uneasy truce between these factions hardly masks a dagger-and-bludgeon, poison-in-the-soup struggle which goes on behind its facade. But those who have the best means of knowing what goes on in Philip Murray's always honest but often vacillating mind suspect that this truce may soon be broken; indeed, that the process has already begun. Such mind-readers have in the past been forced to rely on the most inconclusive signs and portents—Murray's sudden emotional storm on the Communist issue before the Automobile Workers' board, a more recent and more violent explosion before the CIO executive board, and so on. But now the mind readers can point to something more than hot words.

THE OFFICIAL CIO newspaper, the CIO News, for a long time edited by slight, professional Len De Caux, has rarely deviated from the straight Stalinist line. Thus, when the British Parliament voted to free India, the News not only joined the Daily Worker in implying that this was mere British imperial trickery, the editors also exhumed ancient photographs from the files, purporting to show British soldiers savaging the Indian natives. By odd coincidence, Murray had just signed a cable to British Prime Minister Clement Attlee congratulating him and the British people on their great and historic act. When Murray saw the current issue of his own organization's official newspaper, he hit the roof. De Caux, and two of his cohorts received their walking papers. The CIO News is now in other hands.

This was a major development in CIO internal politics, since the organization's newspaper is the main channel of official CIO policy to the rank and file. It has, moreover, been followed by other developments. Robert Lamb, personable secretary of the CIO legislative committee, has resigned. The secretaryship of the legislative committee is another key spot, and most of the non-Communist CIO leaders consider Lamb's departure a victory for their side. Finally, Emil Rieve, textile workers' chief, has been given office space and an important policy-making position in CIO headquarters. Rieve's name follows only those of David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther on the Communists' extensive hate list, as he is one of the most effective anti-Communist labor leaders.

FOR ALL these developments, final responsibility rests with Philip Murray. It is thus little cause for wonder that careful students of the Daily Worker have noted a certain falling off in that journal's tendency to sing paeans of praise to "our great leader, Philip Murray." To be sure, the Worker has yet to attack Murray with the exquisite delicacy for which Andrei Gromyko set the pattern when he remarked of his compatriot, Victor Kravchenko, that "when a dog has nothing else to do, it will often lick it's belly." Yet such tributes, according to informed labor circles, may quite possibly be on the way.

For in these circles there is a somewhat tentative tendency to believe that Murray is at last determined to move really decisively in the next few months, before the next CIO convention, to solidify non-Communist control of the CIO. If that is indeed Murray's intention, Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, and key "left-wing" strategist, is certain to go the way of De Caux and the others. When and if that happens (and it is still a very big if) it is universally expected in the CIO that Communist knives will be sharpened for the most ruthless kind of political warfare against Pressman's present boss, Philip Murray.

One reason why Murray has already moved with such unaccustomed decision is, in the opinion of those who know him, that he is a deeply patriotic man, increasingly disturbed by the developments abroad, and by the relationship between these developments and the American Communist Party. Another reason is undoubtedly Walter Reuther's remarkable victory in the devious Communist effort to take over the United Automobile Workers. Reuther's success has almost certainly assured non-Communist control of the CIO's largest union, which in turn gives Murray a solid base from which to operate.

There is an obvious moral to all this. As long as the American economic system functions reasonably well, in the context of civil and political liberty, the American labor movement itself can be relied upon to deal with the tiny minority of its members who serve a foreign interest. The Communists can hope to gain control of American labor only in two ways. One is the total failure of the economic system, in which case it no doubt deserves to be replaced. The other is a real threat to traditional American civil liberties, such as contained in that legal monstrosity, the House-passed Rees bill. Such a threat will tend to rally a really important segment of the American left, for the first time in American history, around the Communists.

Washington Calling

Taft-Hartley Law Challenge

JOHN L. LEWIS' contract with the coal operators looks like a bigger victory with each day that passes. One thing Lewis did was to set a goal for every other labor boss.

Childs

That is the real meaning of the controversy between the just-settled Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers. Lewis' contract exempts the United Mine Workers from the penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley law covering wildcat strikes. So now, naturally, the Auto Workers want the same kind of exemption.

In this interim period, they can strike at will. The Taft-Hartley law does not go into effect until August 22. After that date, the union would be subject to the 60-day cooling-off period.

Because of its widespread repercussions in industry Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota has focused his inquisitorial eye on the Lewis contract. Ball is chairman of the joint Senate-House committee named to oversee the operation of the Taft-Hartley law. Before he left on a brief vacation, Ball told associates that one of his first aims on returning would be to investigate the remarkable contract that Lewis signed with the coal operators.

Senator Robert A. Taft and Representative Fred A. Hartley disagreed on that contract. Hartley said it violated the law. Taft said it didn't. Ball, one of the prime movers behind the drive for restrictive labor legislation, is said to lean to Hartley's view.

THE MEN who sat across the table from Lewis can make a very good case for signing the kind of contract they finally put their signatures to. Even if the Taft-Hartley law had been in effect, it would not have covered the United Mine Workers, since, with the end of Government operation of the mines, they had no contract at all.

Suppose the operators had not met Lewis' terms. Undoubtedly a strike would still be in progress. Steel mills would be closing. Desperately needed shipments of coal to Europe would long since have been suspended. A disastrous chain reaction would have been set in motion while the Government stood by helpless.

This is part of the argument advanced by the United States Steel Corp. In a lengthy analysis, issued July 21, the company said:

"The negotiators for the coal operators were strongly of the opinion that the surest protection against inflation is continued industrial production at a high level in all fields of activity. They were certain that the attainment of maximum industrial production to meet current demands is in the best interests of the Nation and will best promote its general welfare. It is conceivable that a collapse in our domestic economy at this time would have a very serious effect upon this country's foreign program and upon its influence and prestige abroad."

IN THE two years since the war ended, the power of organized labor has steadily forced up the wages rate of the 14 million organized workers. But it is doubtful whether they have made any real gain.

Real wages—that is to say, wages measured against prices—are lower than they were from February, 1943, through September 1945, according to a report of the National Industrial Conference Board. In an inflationary period, the wage-earner is bound to lose out as prices and earnings see-saw upward.

In retrospect, it must seem even to the most militant labor leaders that they would have been better off to have gone out for permanent gains instead of temporary increases. For example, a concerted drive for a guaranteed annual wage might have succeeded in many industries, if union power had been centered on that goal.

This is, of course, spilt milk. Wage increases are being wiped out by prices that inch upward every day. The bitter truth is that wage raises can never catch up with spiraling prices.

While it is very late, it is still not too late to try a new policy. As part of the policy, union leaders would do well to stop their angry abuse of the Taft-Hartley law and prepare to face the challenge realistically. By this time they should have learned that angry words are not enough.

Forrestal Delays Taking Oath To Lay Defense Unity Plans

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal probably will delay taking the oath as the Nation's first chief of a unified military establishment for another 30 days, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

The reason for this delay, it was understood, is to permit Forrestal to launch his term as Secretary of Defense with a program already formulated and ready to put into effect. He is understood to be unwilling to assume his new duties until the groundwork has been laid for an efficient administration from the outset.

Meanwhile he has under study numerous plans and recommendations for increasing efficiency and effecting economies. Many others are in preparation. Among these is one worked out by the Joint Chiefs of Staff for unified command of all forces in the continental United States.

Opposes Drastic Change

He is understood, however, to look without favor upon any immediate and drastic reorganization but rather to favor retaining the Army, Navy and Air Forces as presently organized for the time being. Whatever reorganizations are undertaken will come gradually and as the result of experience and study under the new setup.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff plan was understood to provide for a single commander of the Nation's continental defenses, with a staff of Army, Navy and Air Forces officers. He would be directly accountable to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who would be in control of defensive operations.

Commands Already Unified

Such an arrangement, it has been contended, would provide a flexible force of all arms which could be employed in full force and without delay in meeting any possible attack from abroad.

It was pointed out that overseas theaters already have been placed under single command of an Army, Navy or Air Forces officer, depending upon the military character of the theater.

One detail Forrestal will have to settle by the time he takes office is whether he will have a personal military staff and what form it will take. He already has said that in the field of public information he intends to permit each service to continue as as present, with information on policy emanating from his office.

Evan such an ararngement would require at least a rudimentary information staff in Forrestal's own office to advise and act on "policy" information.

$60,000 Fire Burns Out New Business Building

East Rainelle, W. Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Loss estimated today at more than $60,000 resulted from a three-hour fire which almost destroyed this Greenbrier County town's newest and largest business building.

Only the walls remained of the two-story brick Kroger Building, which housed a grocery store and a number of offices. No estimate of loss was available covering the offices of doctors, lawyers and the W. E. Deegan Coal Co. located in the building.

B-29 Wings 8854 Miles To World Nonstop Record

The Army Air Forces chalked up a new distance record yesterday for its famous Superfortress Pacusan Dreamboat.

National Aeronautics Association officials certified the new world record for nondstop flight —8854.8 miles. The B-29 flew that distance over a triangular course on August 1—Air Force Day—but the record was not announced until today.

The Dreamboat, piloted by Lieut. Col. Albert F. Lassiter of Elizabeth City, N. C., flew twice over a triangular course from MacDill Field, Fla., to Tucson, Ariz., to Andrews Field, Washington, D. C. Flying time was 39 hours.

The old distance record was set in 1939 by three Italian fliers, Angelo Tondi, Roberto Dagasso and Ferrucio Vignoli, who flew a trimotored Savoia Marchetti 3037.8 miles.

The Pacusan Dreamboat had made aviation history twice before. In October, 1946, it flew nonstop from Hawaii to Cairo over the North Pole. On July 30, two days before its distance flight, the B-29 broke the international closed-course speed record by averaging 277 miles per hour over a 10,000-kilometer course.

The Gallup Poll

Voters of Six Nations Think Russia Out to Dominate World

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 5.—On the second anniversary of the atom bomb, mistrust of the motives of Russia and to some extent of the United States is prevalent throughout the Western world.

Dr. Gallup

An international poll just completed in six nations—England, France, Canada, Norway, Holland and the United States—finds a widespread feeling among the common people that certain big nations are out to try to dominate the world. Russia is named most frequently as the chief offender in this respect, although the United States also comes in for a good deal of censure in France, Holland and England.

To the homes of everyday folks in the six nations went public opinion poll reporters conducting the international survey. They asked two questions. The first was:

"Do you believe any nation or nations would like to dominate or run the world?"

	Yes	No	No Opin.
U.S.A.	71%	19%	10%
England	64	21	15
France	78	6	16
Canada	71	12	17
Holland	84	6	10
Norway	52	16	32

The second question asked, "Which country or countries?" The results may be summarized as follows:

In the United States, more than three-fourths named Russia with other answers scattered among German, England, Japan and the United States itself.

In England too, Russia was named by a large majority, but approximately one third named the United States as out to dominate the world.

In France and in Holland, Russia was named most frequently but the United States was a fairly close second.

Among the Norgewians, the largest number blamed Russia but nearly half said that both Russia and, the United States are trying to dominate.

In Canada, more than three fourths singled out Russia, with the United States and England next.

The poll was conducted through the International Association of Public Opinion (Gallup) Institutes, an organization formed in May by the 11 Gallup Poll affiliates around the world.

It is one of a series of international polls which will be conducted monthly by member Institutes of the International Association. Others will cover such subjects as fear of another war, the United Nations, atom bombs, a United States of Europe, and other issues of common interest to the leading nations of the world.

The International Association was created when 10 of the 11 affiliated Gallup Polls sent representatives to a conference held in Sussex, England, May 10-17. The members of the association are the public opinion institutes of the United States, England, France, Canada, Australia, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Finland, Holland and Brazil.

Truman Signs Revised Bill For Support of Wool Prices

Price support for wool, which halted April 15 when the wartime price support law expired, will be resumed August 15, under a new bill signed by President Truman yesterday.

The law requires the Government to buy wool at the "1946 support level" of about 42 cents a pound. The present market price is about 40 cents.

The law also gives the Commodity Credit Corporation authority to sell wool stocks at less than parity. The previous law forbid sales at below parity.

The Government now owns about 400 million pounds of grease wool, bought at the 42-cent price. If that was all disposed of at present market prices the Government would suffer a loss of eight million dollars.

In announcing the new support date, the Agriculture Department also reported an increase in the selling price of the finer grades of clean wool such as used in worsted fabrics from $1.23 to $1.25 a pound.

A world shortage of finer wool grades was reported by CCC with an increase in demand because of resumption of operations by textile mills in war-torn countries.

It was expected that a new government could be set up in time for Nicarauga to present its case before the Inter-American Conference opening August 15 in Rio de Janeiro.

Factory Hands' Earnings Hit $1.22 Hourly, $48.91 Weekly

Factory workers' earnings in June reached an average hourly figure of $1.22 and a weekly total of $48.91, both all-time record figures, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

Despite a slightly shorter average workweek, the weekly earnings are about 4 per cent above those of last January, and the hourly earnings are 5 per cent higher. In the first six months of last year, however, the increase was 8 per cent. This shows that the "first round" of wage increases after VJ-Day was almost twice as great as this year's "second round."

The BLS reported that a worker earning this average weekly wage, and having a wife and two children, would take home about $47 after deduction of social security and income taxes. It would buy about $30 worth of goods in terms of the noninflated 1939 dollar.

English War Bride, Mother 3 Months, Flies Home to Die

Houston, Tex., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—A young English war bride, accompanied by her grief-stricken husband and their baby daughter, was flying back home today to die.

Mrs. Nina Maude Belcoure, 23-year-old bride of only 15 months, was dying of an incurable disease. She wanted to die in her native Norwich, England, and Gen. Carl Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, promised that the Army would fly the couple to England.

Charles William Belcoure, also 23, of Magnolia, Tex., was an Air Forces enlisted man when he met the pretty, blonde English girl.

Three months ago when their baby was born, doctors discovered the disease.

Film Actress, 3 Others Plead Innocent of Kidnap Charge

Hollywood, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Blonde Actress Madge Meredith, 24, and three alleged accomplices today pleaded innocent to charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault against her former manager, Nicholas Gianaclis.

Superior Judge Thomas L. Ambrose set September 18 for trial of the pretty actress and Albert W. Tucker, 29, nurseryman, James A. Hatfield, 33, former Beverly Hills policeman, and Damon V. Klinkenberg, 32, a cook. Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke will preside at the trial.

The four are accused of forcing Gianaclis from his car last month and taking him to an isolated canyon where he was threatened with death.

At a preliminary hearing, Miss Meredith denied the harges and alleged that Gianaclis planned the kidnaping to "frame" her because they were involved in a civil suit over a house. She charged that he deeded the house to her to keep it from his estranged wife.

Gunman in Weird Mask Captured After Bank Theft

Beaver Springs, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—A grotesquely masked gunman robbed a bank and made off with an estimated $8000 today, but he was captured two hours later.

Sheriff Palmer Dinius, who identified the man as Robert Fox, 55, Lewiston, Pa., said he was captured 10 miles from here after his getaway car had crashed into a tree just short of a police-constructed roadblock.

Merine Benfer, bank teller, said the man had covered his nose and mouth with white cotton, splattered with a red substance and held it in place with adhesive tape. He wore dark glasses.

Burmese Arrest 203 In Cabinet Murders

Rangoon, Burma, Aug. 5 (AP).—The government said today that 203 persons had been arrested in connection with the machine gun assassinations of U. Aung San and six other cabinet members July 19.

U Tin, president of the state funeral committee, said the bodies of the slain government leaders would remain unburied possibly six months until Britain gave governmental powers to Burma and the dependency achieved the independence for which U Aung San strove.

Two former premiers, U Saw and Ba Maw, were among those arrested.

Data on Unions Likely to Stay Confidential Under Labor Act

Unions' financial data, which the Taft-Hartley Act requires must be filed with the Labor Department, will probably be held confidential by that agency, it was indicated yesterday.

The unions are required to submit the reports to each of their members, but the law is not specific on whether the Labor Department should also make the data available to the general public. A department spokesman pointed out yesterday that the act's legislative history appears to oblige the department to keep the material confidential.

Forms for the unions' registration were issued yesterday by Labor Secretary Schwellenbach. They call for submission of each union's constitution and by-laws, its initiation fees and membership dues, the compensation of all officers receiving more than $5000 a year, and its receipts, disbursements, assets and liabilities.

Until unions file such information, they cannot be accorded the services of the National Labor Relations Board in matters of elections or complaints.

Switzerland Regrets Pelting of Eva Peron

Bern, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Swiss Federal Council expressed regret tonight that Senora Eva Duarte Peron, wife of President Juan D. Peron of Argentina, had been the victim of stone and tomato throwing incidents during her current visit to Switzerland.

In Bern Monday tomatoes were thrown at a car in which Senora Peron was riding with Swiss Foreign Monister Max Petitpierre. Senora Peron was not hit, but one tomato struck Petitpierre and it splashed over other occupants of the car.

From, Bern, Senora Peron proceeded today to Lucerne where a bystander threw a stone which shattered the windshield of her car.

Church Rivalries Bar World Unity.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—The third world convention of the Churches of Christ was told today that "competitive denominationalism, when we are asking for a cooperative world, mocks our efforts."

Dr. Roger T. Nooe, pastor of Vine Street Christian Church, Nashville, Tenn., declared:

"If peace be indivisible, the hour is come to set our own house as individuals and from the church. Divided minds can do little to unite the world. Spiirtually-split personalities are poorly prepared to bridge chasms between races and nations."

Dummit, Clements Win in Ky. Primary

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—Almost complete tabulations from Saturday's primary elections showed today that Attorney General Eldon S. Dummit, Lexington Republican, and Representative Earle C. Clements, Morganfield Democrat, will meet in the November general election for the governorship of Kentucky.

TRAINED MEN ONLY!

Theirs is the job of constructing and maintaining miles and miles of overhead and underground lines. These lines supply you with electric service.

Two years of "basic" training, plus frequent reviewing in our own Training Classes, is required of every man on Pepco's efficient service crews! These Training Classes are thorough and exacting. In a vast room, completely "set up" with poles, lines, cables, transformers, street lights and traffic light controls, the trainee learns indoors how to meet and solve every problem he will later meet outdoors. He is instilled with the high responsibility of the job he is to fill.

Pepco is a service organization in its fullest meaning Those who take care of the lines overhead and underground are the unsung heroes behind this service . . . the linemen whose training and skill makes "Matchless Service" possible.

Railroad Nets At 204 Million In Six Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net income of Class One railroads totaled 204 million dollars in the first six months this year compared with a deficit of $20,600,000 in the corresponding period last year.

The Association of American Railroads, in estimating this yesterday, emphasized that the first half of 1946 was an "abnormal" period marked by industrial disturbances, work stoppages and the application of rail wage increases. Also in last year's first half the railroads did not have the benefit of freight rate increases authorized later in the year by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Before interest and rentals, net operating income of Class One railroads in the first six months this year totaled $368,422,994 compared with $154,762,587 in the like 1946 period.

Estimated net income for June was listed at $35,500,000 against $14,872,000 in June, 1946.

Ringside Table — With Mary Harris

FRESH AIR FUNNING. Grisha Gregory, master of the Balalaika (due to reopen around Labor Day), writes from Hollywood that he's on his way back; will toss a boat party on the Potomac on Friday. "We'll dance polkas, sing Russian river songs and love songs too. The Potomac does look like the Volga, especially by moonlight," he says alluringly. Who could resist it? Paul Woodbridge hoisted a bright party at the Rod 'n' Reel Club at Chesapeake Beach yesterday. After dinner all hands went cruising on the bay, some for fishing, some just for the ride. . . . Dick Lam, head man of the Lotus, with his Juan and their two children, Elaine and Dick, jr., went fishing at Bill Strickland's Old Cedar Point. Jean and Elaine caught perch, trout, eels, croakers and catfish. The masculine half of the family, Dick and Dick, jr., caught exactly nothing, not even a shred of seaweed.

Ted Alexander
At Old New Orleans

Lee (the Lover) Potter is now playing organ in the Dubonnet Room. This should be lovely news for his devoted femme fans. Lee and his organ alternate with George Berg's fancy tricks at the piano.

BUSMEN'S HOLI-NIGHTS. Bending their discriminating (and approving) ears to the rhythms of Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen in the Neptune Room were Ted Knight, the triple-threat man of radio, theater and the Lounge Riviera, also Maestro Calevas of the Quonset Inn . . . Vincent Gallagher, owner of the King Cole Room, was among the bunch applauding Ted Alexander's songs in the Sazerac Room of the Old New Orleans . . . Fred Miller, co-owner of Restaurant 823, pranced happily to Johnny Robb's music at the Madrillon.

A youthful and sizzling tap team, Charles and Vera Raymond, head the new Casino Royal revue. Other titivating interludes by Ruth Kelly who presents "A Fantasy in Anatomy," the brisk little Elaine Shaffer Dancers, warbling Louise Lee and "Jivin' Jack" Shaffer.

THE VACATIONEERS. George D. (Johnny) Johnson, general manager of the Carlton and Wardman Park Hotels, is enjoying the sun and sand at Rehoboth . . . The Carlton's manager, Thomas Lennon, is fresh back from Wildwood, N. J. . . . "Count" Stefan, head waiter in the Congo Room, has been cruising around the New Jersey and Maryland beaches . . . Willie Biron, owner of Club 1203, has chosen New England for a spot of vacationing . . . Jimmy Lee, manager of the Good Earth, with his pretty wife and small sons, Jimmy, jr., and Bobby, got the sunburn of their lives at Breezy Point. None of them had ever previously experienced a real sunburn. From now on they'll regard the sunshine with great respect . . . Leon Bocek, maitre d'hotel of Hamilton, is vacationing right in Silver Spring. He wants to keep an eye on those carpenters who are putting up his new house.

Most beautiful cocktail around is Michel's "Caucasian Blue." It's partly of vodka but what makes it pale blue we wouldn't know. (Could it be Tintex?) . . . Most potent number is Ciro's "Pan de Sucre." Just call it "Pandy Sugar" and they'll know what you mean.

LISTENING POST. "What Can I Say, Dear, After I Say I'm Sorry" has had its spark plugs sharpened up by Sammy Seymour's Skyliners on the Starlight Roof. Credit to Hugh Barteman for the nifty arrangement . . . Jack Corry's Glen Echo band takes "Across the Alley From the Alamo" and fairly sets it on fire . . . Though the music at Olmstead's is of the wired variety, they can always turn on "Happy Birthday" as their guests desire it . . . "I Was One of the Front Row Girls," a London music hall bit, is refreshingly done by Nora Williams at Merry-Land.

SAD, SAD STORIES. Everyone knows that musicians are not so hot as businessmen. But what happened to some Washington musicians when they started to run their own clubs—well, it shouldn't have happened to washboard players . . . Sasha Lucas, prominent and successful maestro of the Troika and Old New Orleans, took an awful financial whacking when he opened his own Moulin Rouge last year. He's now leading a band at exclusive Saranac Inn, trying to forget all about it . . . Harold Vee, former leader in the Mayflower Lounge, opened a spot up near the University of Virginia a few seasons ago. The war moved all of his prospective collegiate patronage right out from under him . . . Sasha Bartnowsky, long a favorite at the Cafe Parisienne, invested his savings in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., nitery last year. Now he wishes he'd bought Government bonds or even sewed up the money in an old mattress.

First Division Plans Reunion in New York

Veterans of the First Infantry Division, the Army's oldest, will hold their first postwar reunion in New York August 29-31, in conjunction with the American Legion convention, the War Department announced last night.

Chicago Times Stockholders Accept Field Offer

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Chicago Daily Times announced today that "more than a sufficient number" of its shareholders had accepted an offer by Marshall Field III, published of the Chicago Sun, to purchase the Times.

Field, on July 23, offered $60 a share for all stock in the Times, tabloid evening newspaper, with the provision that holders of at least 65,500 shares must accept the offer by August 25.

The announcement was made by Richard J. Finnegan, editor and publisher of the Times, who will remain in that capacity under Field's ownership, and will also be made executive vice president of the Sun.

Finnegan said there were 88,977 shares of Times stock outstanding at the time of Field's offer. Total purchase price of all shares would be $5,338,620.

Field will remain as publisher and editor of the Sun.

Van Introduces A Leading Lady

By Richard L. Coe

BIG CHOP CHOF: Van Johnson, on the Hollywood phone, recalls his early days as a hoofer . . . A chorus boy from Newport, R. I., making the Equity minimum in "New Faces of 1937," "Too Many Girls" and "Pal Joey." . . . Van made the bigtime quick and now his earnest, ratytatat voice suggests he's working hard to keep there . . . Wants to introduce us to Janet Leigh, the late-teen-ager who's making her first screen appearance as his leading lady in "The Romance of Rosy Ridge," tomorrow at the Capitol . . . Van, blandly innocent, asks how come we've had dinner and he's just on his way home at 6 o'clock to "barbecue" some lobsters a batch of Boston critics sent him . . . They must grow critics different up thataway. The gourmet of the local boys expresses horror at the thought of barbecue treatment for lobsters . . . What Van means, it turns out, is cook 'em over the family's open-air grill . . . He'd just come from the set of "Virtuous" with June Allyson and corroborated the fact that a new title is wanted for this one, with $250 as the fee . . . Five-way phone hookup, much chop-chop about weather, "not nice" in Southern California . . . Van sends his best to our old Army pals and his chorus-day roommates, Maurice Kelly, dance directing this summer at Dallas, and Jo Johnston, just pried loose from "Three to Make Ready." . . . And turns us over to:

JANET LEIGH, who tells us that it wasn't a family album picture that got her MGM's movie offer . . . Janet's a great skier, pure California brand . . . Her picture was in a mass of snaps up at Sugar Bowl's Ski Lodge, where Norma Shearer was visiting with her ski instructor-husband . . . "It was the luckiest picture I ever had taken. Miss Shearer picked it out and has taken an interest in my career ever since" . . . Janet's got a pack of telephone poise for a 19-year-old and she plays like a trouper in "Rosy Ridge," which she and Johnson were making a year ago in Missouri . . . It takes that long to get a picture ready for national distribution.

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER" writes he won't be coming to Washington after all . . . Seems that Star Billy Gilbert won't be finishing his Hollywood chores in time to include the National and Baltimore in the old musical's tour, which is now set to start in the depths of Reading, Pa., September 19 . . . The sked leads up to a Chicago run . . . They hope . . . Out in Chicago, incidentally, Tallulah Bankhead's booming fine in "Private Lives" . . . Wish we could get that one.

TALLULAH, by the way, is part of an unintentional joke the Little seems to be playing on the Hippodrome . . . The Hipp's got a Russian film, the fairy tale "Stone Flower," which takes a few incidental jabs at the old regime. So, along comes the Little with another version of the ancient regime, a Lubitsch touch on Catherine the Great, "A Royal Scandal." . . . Also on the Little's new program, opening this morning, are three more Walt Disney cartoons, "Clock Watcher," with D. Duck; "The Legend of Coyote Rock," with Pluto, and "Hockey Homicide," avec Goofy.

CLARA MAY DOWNEY proves as charming with the words as her Olney Inn is with the chow. Mrs. Downey noted, as she puts it, our "slap on the wrist" of some days ago, in which we remarked on how hard it was to dine at the inn and get to the Olney Theater before the first intermission. . . . "But what can we do when guests sit on the lawn until 7:45 or 8?" sighs the chatelaine of Olney, especially when there are so many "short orders." "Nobody's loafing," Mrs. Downey concludes, "and the only solution seems to be that our guests come earlier."

THE THEATER GUILD comes up with a novel broadcast you won't be able to hear, but might if you can get Manhattan's WNEW at midnight August 15 . . . This will be Disc Jockey Art Ford's tribute to the New York and London companies of "Oklahoma!" . . . Harold Keel and Izabel Begley will sing from Drury Lane, Mary Hatcher and Wilton Clary from Broadway, with Keel and Miss Hatcher doing a transatlantic duet for "People Will Say We're in Love." . . . Author Hammerstein and Composer Rodgers will emcee and play at disc-jockey themselves.

OUR E STREET "Oklahoma!" is sold out for the rest of its stay, though if you're lucky you may hit a few turn-ins at the box office. When we run into him on the street Manager Edmund Plohn remarks . . . "'The Red Mill,'" Eddie continues, "looks as though it's going to do pretty well," with the mail orders starting to come in . . . "The Red Mill" and our "Oklahoma!" will be switching theaters over the weekend of the 16th, the Victor Herbert operetta moving in from Detroit's Cass Theater, next "Oklahoma!" stop.

"ONE IN THREE," say the Trans-Lux ads for "Divorce—U. S. A." . . . Last week it was the men dragging their feminine companions into the news-reel house for one of its "Sports Shows." . . . This week it's the reverse, with the ladies pushing their escorts through the turnstile to ponder on why so many marriages bust up . . . There are no actors in this short—simply a series of actual courtroom scenes

Kelly and Sinatra Help a Newcomer

Hollywood.—Lee Turnell, young Copocabana showgirl, is beginning her motion picture career at the top. In Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Pirate," her first film, she dances with Gene Kelly. Now she has been assigned a singing role in "The Kissing Bandit," starring Frank Sinatra and Kathryn Grayson.

Miss Turnell, blonde and blue-eyed, was brought to M-G-M's attention by Producer Arthur Freed, who saw her dancing at the New York Night Club.

In "The Pirate," the young screen newcomer had the benefit of dancing instruction by Kelly. Now, Sinatra is giving her singing lessons.

"Could any girl ask for more?" she asks happily.

'Bells' Did Not Ring but Soma Gets Contract

By Louella O. Parsons

Hollywood, Aug. 5(INS)—Ricky Soma, the Mona Lisa-faced ballerina, who came heer to test for "Miracle of the Bells," didn't get the job. But she pirouetted herself into a contract with David Selznick, and that, my friends, is a lucky break for the girl.

I was very interested to hear that David is mire interested in her as an actress rather than a dancer. In fact, the 18-year-old beauty will give up her ballet work and go immediately into a long period of dramatic coaching.

First, she goes to the La Jolla Playhouse for summer stock appearances, after which she will make a series of screen tests.

Johnny Farrow has settled his difficulties with Paramount. and light and when Alan Ladd and Joan Caulfield tak off for West Point, Johnny will go along, in charge of "The Long Gray Line," the original story by William Wister Haines. This will be the fourth teaming picture of Star Ladd and Director Farrow.

Loves That 'Cass'

Clark Gable told me that he had seen "Cass Timberlane" and he thought it was one of the best pictures he had ever seen. He says that Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner are wonderful.

There's talk that Lana may go into "Homecoming" with Clark, but that, of course, is not settled, because she's had two in a row—"Green Dolphin Street" and "Cass," yet to be shown.

He said he'd like to make another picture with Spence. How about it, MGM? These two were always awfully good together.

Jack Carson Romancing

Chatter in Hollywood: The Doris Day-Jack Carson romance is more serious than outsiders know. Jack hasn't been really that devoted to any girl since he parted from his wife, Kay Germaine—and Doris returns his feeling.

Jack went around the Warner lot sayingfi that in "Romance in High C," in which they were together, for the first time in his life he didn't mind having someone steal the picture from him.

I don't think Jack need worry that anyone can steal it from him. He's so good that he and Jack Warner are talking a 15-year deal.

Irving Rapper was so afraid Alexis Smith would think it was something personal, his not wanting her for "Christopher Blake," that he wrote her a charming letter. In it he explained that he felt she was not matronly enough to play the boy's mother.

QUICK RECOVERY: Washington's John Burwell does a rapid repaint job on Queen Elizabeth's throne after fire had destroyed much of the stage props for "The Lost Colony," now back on the boards of the Waterside Theater at Roanoke Island, N. C. All hands got to work to resume the run of Paul Green's pageant in record time. Burwell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Burwell, 1921 K st. nw.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

HAVE YOU NOTICED that football is burgeoning all over the sports pages these August days? The tonnage of 18 professional teams has swung into early practice from the Connecticut glades to the mountain retreats in Colorado and the Pacific Coast. Coaches are already spouting about "good-looking rookies." The Naval Academy is ready to fly its squad to an island base north of Seattle.

POVICH

The mockery that the Yankees are making of the American League pennant race is clearing the stage for football interest. August, traditionally highlighted by the heat of pennant races, is yielding before the impending football assault. Only the bid the Cardinals are making to overhaul the Dodgers in the National League is keeping baseball out in front.

Along with your August football, you also get the early-season flapdoodle, like the statement the other day by Ray Flaherty, coach of the New York football Yankees, who misplaced his tongue if he didn't have it in his cheek when he said:

"Ben Raimondi, our passer from Indiana, right now looks better breaking into pro football than Sammy Baugh did."

FLAHERTY WOULD LIKE to believe what he said about Raimondi, but he scarcely dares to. He has a double obligation to the Yankee owners—to turn out a good football team and stimulate the advance sales. Willingly he'd settle for a forward passer who isn't quite as good as Baugh, and if Raimondi is only a faint image of Baugh that would also please Flaherty.

All Baugh did when he broke into pro football 11 years ago was to pitch Flaherty's Redskins to the National League championship, beating the Bears in the play-off, and take rank as the greatest forward passer ever to hit the league. If Flaherty's Raimondi breaks into pro football better than Baugh did, his team is home.

I remember a little pep talk Flaherty gave the Redskins 10 minutes before the opening game in 1937. "You guys moaned about having no forward passer last year. Well, now we've got Sammy Baugh, the greatest in the world," he told the Redskin players. "I want you to give him plenty of protection. You know the Giants will be out to get him. Don't let 'em. In fact, get them first before they have a chance at Sammy."

TOM HAMILTON, the four-striper who coaches Navy's football team, has a method in taking his squad to Whidby Island, off the coast of the State of Washington. It's an active naval air base, and Hamilton attributes to the training at the Martha's Vineyard air base last year much of the team's 1946 success.

No Navy team that ever lost an Army game was as successful as Hamilton's club of last season. Rated shockingly inferior to unbeaten Army before the game, Navy had the Cadets reeling at the finish of a 20-18 defeat when the clock stopped Navy's last touchdown drive on the Army 3-yard line.

Hamilton places great store by "good old Navy fight," and according to his friends, it wouldn't have made any difference in the last war if the Japs had come up first with the atom bomb. Hamilton is the type that believes good old Navy fight would have won the war for our side nevertheless. He dins into his lads the fine old traditions of the U. S. Navy and at Whidby Island he will surround them with Navy lore.

AT MARTHA'S VINEYARD last year, former combat flier Hamilton brought Navy braid in a stream into the football players' camp, admirals, Congressional Medal of Honor winners, Navy Cross holders and surface officers, submarine men and fliers who had knocked down big quotas of Japs. "It's to impress the boys," he admitted freely. "I want to show them what they must live up to."

He said another thing. "We have a lot of new boys on the squad who aren't properly steeped in Navy traditions yet. I bring in all these heroes and all this braid and let our kids mix with them. Maybe some of it will rub off on 'em, and that's what I want."

What Hamilton would like to have mostly at this time, however, is some reserves. He's well fixed for a starting line-up with Art Markel back at end, Tackles Dick Shimshak and Newbold Smith back, Scott Emerson at one guard and his swell center, Dick Scott, on hand. So are three fourths of his 1946 backfield—Quarterback Reeves Baysinger, Pete Williams and Bill Hawkins. That's a lot to start with.

Homers Help Cards Clout Cubs, 8 to 2

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—A home run by Del Rice with the bases loaded and another round-tripper by Whitey Kurowski escorted Harry Brecheen and the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-to-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs today.

Breechen carefully distributed 11 Chicago hits, which materialized into two runs—one Bill Nicholson's thirteenth homer of the season in the second and a single and a double in the ninth. The Cardinals pounded three cub pitchers for 14 hits to sweep the two-game series.

A crowd of 17,782, bringing Wrigley Field attendance over the million mark for 1947, saw the Cardinals take off on Claude Passeau for six runs in the fourth, topped by Rice's ninth homer of the season. Kurowski hit his sixteenth circuit blow off Bob Chipman in the fifth. The Cardinals were checked in the final two innings by Bob Carpenter.

After Nicholson had hit his homer to give the Cubs a 1-0 lead in the second, Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter started the fourth with the double and single which tied the score at 1-all. A walk to Ron Northey and an error by Harry Lowrey then filled the bases for Rice's victory-leading blow into the left field seats.

The Cardinals kept going against Passeau for doubles by Breechen and Al Schoendienst which completed the six-run fourth inning.

Pirates Spank Reds

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates jumped on four Cincinnati hurlers for 11 hits and 10 bases on balls today to gain a 12 to 4 victory over the Reds.

Grady Hatton hit his eleventh homer of the season in the first inning to give the Reds an early lead but the Pirates came back in their half with three runs and coasted the rest of the way.

Two of the Pirate tallies were gifts by Elmer Riddle who walked Frankie Gustine and Ralph Kiner with the bases loaded in the seventh.

Mulloy Says Expense Quiz Is 'Surprise'

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 5 (AP).—Gardnar Mulloy, the Nation's fifth-ranking tennis amateur, thought he was being invited to dinner by United States Lawn Tennis Association moguls only to learn today that he would be asked "some questions about his expense accounts."

Holcombe Ward, USLTA president, disclosed the scheduled appearance tomorrow night of the big Coral Gables, Fla., tennis star before the amateur rules committee of the association at the Harvard Club in New York.

The hearing will be a closed one, Ward said, declining any further discussion of details of what charges, if any, had been made against Mulloy.

No Bookie Betting

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—The proposal of a bloc in Baltimore's City Council to legalize horse race betting through bookies didn't get far today with Governor Lane and a member of the State Racing Commission.

The Governor declined to state an opinion, but recalled, "I have vetoed all gambling bills put before me so far."

Keller Loses Disc

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP).—Charley Keller, the powerful New York Yankee outfielder, departed for his Frederick, Md., home today after leaving a hospital where he underwent a spinal operation July 18.

The operation for the removal of a disc in his spine was pronounced a success but it was considered doubtful that he would be able to play baseball again this season.

Griff Probes Pay

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, said yesterday he will send a representative to Havana in "about a week" to investigate charges that the Havana Cubans are exceeding the player salary limit in the Florida International Baseball League.

Griffith said the Nats own "about a half interest" in the Havana team. He added he "knew nothing about" the alleged overpayments.

A league meeting to consider the matter, scheduled for Thursday in Miami, was postponed at his request, Griffith said, to permit time for the preliminary investigation.

'Horsed' Around?

Frankfurt, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—The horse show advisory committee of the State Fair Board informed George T. McLean of Portsmouth, Va., today that it would not allow him to exhibit his mounts at the Kentucky horse show in Louisville this year.

McLean told a reporter that his daughter, Jean, is the "finest horsewoman in America" and that many of her horses are world champions. He felt the Kentucky horse show was discriminating against him because of the likelihood his mounts would win many of the prizes offered in Louisville.

Irish Big Draw

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 5 (AP).—The 1947 Notre Dame football team is certain to play before at least sell-out crowds this fall.

All tickets for the Notre Dame game, to be played in Cleveland November 1, have been sold, Herbert E. Jones, Notre Dame's busines manager of athletics, said today.

The Notre Dame-Northwestern game to be played at Evanston November 15 also is a sell-out and there will be no public sale of tickets to the Notre Dame-Army game at South Bend, November 8.

Rodney's 'It' in Hambletonian

Giant 2-1 Favorite Tops Field of 13

By Sid Feder

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Smilin' Bill Cane, the impresario of Good Time track up here in Orange County, got ready today to rewrite the Hambletonian attendance and betting record books as 13 trotters were entered for tomorrow's twenty-second running of the Corn-Tassel Derby.

Only five of the baker's dozen were given more than the chances of a hot dog turned loose among the hungry thousands pouring into this sleepy village in the Orange County hills. And as far as the grizzled old-timers, gathering from all over the county for the trotting horse's annual top day as usual, the one to beat was a giant bargain-counter stepper from Dixie tagged Rodney, who has whipped practically everything in sight up to now.

This was just about a sure-pop cinch to be the fanciest hayseed scramble of them all up here at Smilin' Bill's horse track, which is shaped like an ice cream cone without the ice cream sticking out of the end.

They'd already sold 18,000 tickets up to tonight, and that figure alone was far over the previous record attendance high of 16,390 which the city slickers and their country cousins set a year ago.

Altogether, the Hambletonian crystal-ball lookers were guessing at a 20,000 figure, which is going to have Goshen (pop. 3073 on the other 364 days of the year) busting out at the seams by the time the gee-gees come out to look at the starter at 2:45 p. m. (EDT) tomorrow.

It was also an easy guess that the folks were going to wipe out the old betting highs of $292,966 for Hambletonian Day and $143,-

Indians Sock Tigers, 8 to 4

Detroit, Aug. 5 (AP).—Pitching one-hit ball through six innings, Bob Lemon required a bit of help in the ninth but hung up his second triumph since his promotion to a starting role as the Cleveland Indians whipped the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 4, today before a twilight crowd of 25,626 fans.

Manager Lou Boudreau of the Indians whacked out a pair of doubles in four times at bat to filch the league batting lead from Detroit's George Kell, who was idle with a pulled leg muscle and probably won't play for three or more days.

Boudrenu's two hits hoisted his batting average two points to .336, a point ahead of Kell.

Outfielder George Metkovitch of the Indians was chased from the dugout for squaking to Umpire Bill McKinley over the way arbiter Bill Grieve was calling balls and strikes in the fourth inning.

'Old-Timers' Are Holding Their Own in 'Skin Camp

Los Angeles, Aug. 5.—Of course it's too early to start separating the men from the boys in the Washington Redskins camp, as the saying goes, but the smiles on the faces of the coaching staff gave forth the indication today that the balance was strongly in favor of the men.

"It's a little early yet to start making estimates of the squad," said Coach Turk Edwards, but we are definitely improved over 1946. The trouble is, so is everyone else. I think the upswing will be sustained in the National League for several years, at least."

Ki Aldrich, who is so torn betwixt just coaching and coaching and playing that he took a swing around the field with the bulky linemen yesterday after the morning drill, puts it this way:

"You can't tell about the new fellows until you see 'em with their hats on."

Which is the great center's way of saying that you have to see the boys take a few knocks before you can really tell.

However, the 'Skins figure they have some great young prospects in hand. Take Ernie Williamson, a 250-pound tackle from North Carolina, for example. Another is Fred Boensch, the 225-pound tackle from Stanford.

"Of course, we were pretty well off at the tackles last year," said Turk. "Take Don Avery for instance. In our game with the New York Giants last year he was the best player on the field."

Avery weighed 255 pounds last year and reported at 270 on Sunday. The normal wear and tear should take that down to about 260, however. John Adams, 6 feet 7½ inches and 255 pounds of former Notre Dame lineman, played a lot at the other tackle spot last year and such rookies as Boensch, Williamson, 250-pound Cliff White.

Kapilow Due Here Thursday

Danny Kapilow, of New York, 41-second loser to Smuggy Hursey on July 2, arrives in Washington Thursday to complete training for his rematch with the Washington middleweight next Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

The Bronx belter has been prepping in New York for the encounter, working with Stablemate Marty Servo while Hursey is also in New York, getting in his licks at Billy Grubbs' Harlem gymnasium.

Hursey arrives here Friday and will work at the Liberty A. C., where Kapilow also finishes his prefight preparations.

Monday's bout will be the third between the two contestants. Kapilow won an eight-round decision in 1945.

Hursey, meanwhile, continues to gain national renown. The latest rankings of Ring Magazine list him the ninth leading middleweight contender, one notch behind Freddie Apostoli, one-time champion.

Servo Knocked Out in First

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 5 (AP).—Joe DeMartino, 145, of Bridgeport, brought Marty Servo's comeback campaign to a stunning halt tonight as he knocked out the former world's welterweight champion after one minute and 28 seconds of the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Candelite Stadium.

No Private Affair

District's Three Public Links Sponsor Tourney August 25

Washington "least private" golf championship tourney, involving public links clouters of East Potomac, Anacostia and Rock Creek courses, opens August 25 at the Potomac Park layout for a three-day run.

Eighteen holes of qualifying play the first day will cut what is expected to be a mammoth field to the championship round of 16, and match play will start the next morning. Two rounds a day will bring on the final match the afternoon of Wednesday, August 27.

Every duffere and expert who has ever played Washington's public courses, doesn't belong to a country club and isn't a professional, is eligible. Entries close at any of the three courses at 5 p. m., August 20.

The S. G. Loeffler Trophy goes to the winner for a year, and permanently if won three times in succession. Earl Marcey, 1946 champion, also won the trophy in 1942 before play was discontinued because of the war until 1945, when Bill Brownrigg was the victor.

National Skeet Shooting Opens

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Top-ranking sharpshooters start blasting away at the clay pigeons tomorrow to determine the Nation's 1947 skeet shooting champions.

Plenty of keen competition was indicated for the five-day shoot—the ninth annual National Skeet championships—with all 1946 title-holders entered.

A record entry of 400 sportsmen and women was forecast. The pre-tournament entry was more than 200.

Ryan Wrestles Macricostas

Featured performers on tonight's wrestling show at Turner's Arena are George Macricostas, the Golden Greek, and Red Ryan, the roly-poly Philadelphian, who meet in a one-hour time limit match.

Stu Hart, the Canadian, and Billy Darnell oppose Jesse James, local Greek, and Sandor Kovacs in a special two-man team bout. Big Ben Morgan, 340-pound bearded Texas, wrestles Farro Rinaldo of Milwaukee in the semiwindup, and Tiger Joe Marsh and Joe Montana raise the curtain at 8:45 o'clock.

Wash. & Lee Lands 310-Pound High School Football Star

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 5. The heaviest football player ever to compete at Martinsburg High School, 310-pound Jerry Jack, has decided to enter Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., this fall, it was revealed here.

The star 17-year-old lineman, for whom numerous colleges had been angling, will report for opening drills at Lexington, August 31. Meanwhile he keeps himself in trim with a heavy summer job at Keyser, W. Va.

Jack, 50 pounds heavier than any local scholastic player, posed a problem for Coach John Coburne in the matter of football equipment until the coach's wife succeeded in splicing together two pairs of pants for his use.

Jack's decision completes the commitments of the East panhandle's top schoolboy stars. Walter Glenn, Charles Town grid and basketball star, recently revealed he would follow in the footsteps of his famous father, "Sleepy" Glenn, and attend West Virginia University.

Sanner Starts Jail Term

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—Roland B. Sanner of College Park, Md., one of two horsemen convicted of entering a "ringer" in a race at Pimlico almost two years ago, surrendered today and was taken to the House of Correction to begin an 18-month sentence.

James S. O'Donnell of Washington also is on notice to surrender and begin a two-year sentence.

Both men have been free on bond pending action on a motion for reargument of their pleas to the Maryland Court of Appeals, but the State's highest court last week affirmed their convictions and denied the reargument.

Sanner and O'Donnell were convicted of conspiracy to run a horse named Flying Kilts under the name "Rounco" in a race at Pimlico in November, 1945.

8500 Watch Baird Boot In Favorite

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5.—Annie's Dream, owned by H. N. Warren of Alexandria, Va., won her sixth straight race of the season today to remain unbeaten, in Hagerstown's opening day feature, the $1200 Bester Purse.

Approximately 8500 fans jammed the outmoded Hagerstown half-mile plant for the inaugural program and established Annie's Dream a lopsided choice at $2.40 for two. Free Valley was second, four lengths behind, and Cabin Creek was third.

Jockey Jimmy Baird got the speedy mare off to a quick start and was on top after a sixteenth of the sprint. Free Valley stuck close by Annie's Dream down the backstretch but could not get by her.

Louray O'Neill Victor

Around the turn and into the short home stretch Annie's Dream began drawing away and at the wire was leaving the field in the dust.

In the Rainbow Room Purse, Army Belle was established a 3-5 choice but failed the form players by winding up a poor third. Louray O'Neill had the speed to score easily ahead of Psychic Fancy, who earned second. Louray O'Neill paid $7.20.

Ray Drury, young apprentice from Annapolis, Md., won the second race of his brief career in the fourth race when he drove Mrs. Samuel M. Pistorio's Run Bud Run along the rail turning for home to win easily from Road Scraper, the 3-5 choice. Nella Jones earned third as the victor paid $15.20.

$33 Daily Double

A $33 daily double resulted when Lord Loudoun, the 8-5 choice, snared the opener and Intelligentsia the second event. The numerical combine was 6 and 3.

J. K. Wynkoop's Lord Loudoun led for the six and a half furlongs to capture the first under Jockey Mike Sarno. Jimmy Baird, who topped the riders at the recent Bel Air meet, rode into the winner's circle for the first time in the second race aboard Intelligentsia.

Swami was the "tip" in this mile and a furlong number but could get only second, beaten by five lengths.

Johnsen and Welsh Hard Pressed To Advance in Mid-Atlantic Tennis

Other Favorites Win With Ease

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Two prime favorites, Dave Johnsen and Barney Welsh, were hard pressed in yesterday's matches in the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament at the Columbia, Country Club, but both finally came through to win.

Johnsen came back from the brink of defeat to down Grady Frank, 10—8, 2—6, 7—5. Frank led 4—0 in the third set, but Johnsen, making a desperate effort, pulled up to 4—4, then went on to win, 7—5.

Welsh, seeded second in the tournament, coasted through the first set against 19 year old Malcolm Fox, of Baltimore to win, 6—1. Fox then turned the tables on the veteran star by taking the second set, 6—1, with a terrific surge of accurate shot-making.

Welsh gained control in the third set, but not until the husky Baltimore youth had given him a bad scare in the second game. Leading, 1—0, it took Welsh 15 minutes to win his own serve. After taking that game, Welsh coasted through the remainder of the set to win, 6—1, 1—6, 6—2.

Top seeded Jim Thackara played impressively in defeating Alphonso Smith, 6—3, 6—1, and Don Leavens, seeded sixth, brushed past Eddie Miller, 6—1, 6—4. John Curtiss also won in straight sets, beating Buddy Adair, 6—3, 6—3, in a match closer than the score indicates.

Ann Gray, No. 1 women's player, downed Sarah Moore, 6—2, 6—2, and third seeded Charlotte Decker defeated Mrs. Custer, 6—3, 6—3.

Lombardo's Boat Hits 95 MPH Clip

Freeport, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Guy Lombardo, defending champion, put his Tempo VI through its first trial today in preparation for Sunday's running of the fortieth International Gold Cup regatta in Rockaway Inlet, Jamaica Bay.

Lombardo was clocked unofficially at 95 miles per hour as his speedboat roared at three-quarters throttle over a test course at Short Beach, Jamaica Bay.

Grid Yanks Plan Scrimmage Today As Squad Is Split

Cheshire, Conn., Aug. 5 (AP).—Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees football team, had his first peek at the 1947 edition of his club this afternoon on the Cheshire Academy campus, where he was one of hundreds of spectators who saw Coach Ray Flaherty put the 52-man squad through a rigorous drill.

After the workout, second of the day, Flaherty announced the squad was being split into two sections tomorrow—the Silvers and the Blues—for the first scrimmage of the training program here. That meant the battle for positions would be on, with some 20 men to be cut by the end of the month, competition was expected to be keen.

shift which was regarded with some significance. Harvey Johnson, who because of a shoulder injury last year was unable to do little more than kick extra points, has moved from fullback to blocking back.

Johnson had a 1.000 kicking average last year, making good 36 extra point boots in 36 ttries.

Kovacs to Coach Aussies

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., formerly a high ranking amateur tennis star and now a professional, said today he had agreed with Roy Cowling, nonplaying captain of the Australian Davis Cup squad, to coach the Australians if they reach the challenge round against the United States.

Rodney Is Choice Today

792 for the trotting world series itself, as they chipped into the iron men.

Winner of 15 of his 20 heats as a 2-year-old last season, and up to now all-conquering in his 3-year-old races—although he was carried to four heats before grabbing the National Stake at Saratoga last month—Rodney figured to be no better than 2 to 1 in the mutuels tomorrow, and probably wouldn't even be that gaudy a price.

Paid Off Well

He was picked up as a yearling for $4600 and already has a bank account well into the thirty thousands.

Bi Shively, the veteran pilot from the Southwest, will do the steering for the tall son of the 1940 Hambletonian winner—Spencer Scott. And around the local inns tonight they were pretty generally agreed that he should bounce home in the necessary two heats to be the head man in this tussle. This would make him the second Hambletonian winner for R. Horace Johnston, the Charlotte (N. C.) horseman who picked up the big paycheck first with Bill Gallon half a dozen years ago.

Of the others, the best chances of getting to the cashier's window in front of Rodney for the $24,979.86 winner's paycheck were voted to the double-entries in the field of 13—Hoot Mon and Volotone, from the Castleton Farm of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Johnson of Lexington, Ky., and Trainer Frank Safford's pair of Buckshot B., owned by Martin Burke of Troy, N. Y., and Scotch Thistle, from the barn of William Erving of Haledon, N. J.

Shotton, Harris Top Choices For 'Manager of the Year'

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—If they were to pick a major league "Manager of the Year" it is probable that the choice this year would narrow down to one of two men, both of whom virtually had to be shoved into their jobs.

Assuming that the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees win the pennants in their respective leagues, and it being the general practice to rate the pilots of winners higher than their rivals, Burt Shotton and Bucky Harris would be the men first considered.

It's not always fair to judge a man's managerial ability on his team's showing, of course. But that's the way it is. The pilot of a seventh-place club, working with a bunch of Class C misfits who thought "inside baseball" was string and a rubber core, might be doing a much better job finishing out of the cellar than the master mind of a championship club.

Shotton and Harris would have a pretty fair claim on the honor as both stepped into hot spots reluctantly and did standout jobs. Harris, who would rather have stayed in the Yankee front office, took over the Yankee field job at Larry MacPhail's insistance.

Shotton was out of direct contact with the game when he urgently was summoned by Branch Rickey to take over, on the eve of the season's opening.

Of the two, Shotton's job would seem to have been the tougher. Harris at least had the benefit of spring training with the men.

Shotton had to start from scratch. Naturally, he had able coaches who could tell him about the individual players, but he had to feel his way along and form his own opinions as the season progressed, instead of during spring games when mistakes didn't count.

Big Shoes to Fill

Shotton also had the task of living up to, or down to if you want to be "catty" about it, the reputation of his predecessor, Leo Durocher. Leo had become a part of Brooklyn. He was a hero to many Dodger fans.

Well, Burt, in a quiet, unassuming way has the Bums practically dressed up for the World Series. The team has been going so well even loyal Durocher fans are wondering if maybe they didn't overestimate him a little. Maybe he just made it look hard.

Both Shotton and Harris are the quiet, gentlemanly type, not given to blowing their tops and taking bad breaks with the same grace they take the good ones. Both have the knack of keeping harmony among their players and getting the most out of them.

Just a pair of aces of diamonds, you might say.

Raadik vs. Vigh

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Anton Raadik of Estonia and Ernie Vigh of Newburgh, N. Y., middleweights, have been signed to fight a 10-round main event at Madison Square Garden on August 15.

Disability Brings End to AAF Career Of Gen. Anderson

Retirement of Maj. Gen. Frederick J. Anderson, assistant chief of the air staff for personnel, was announced yesterday by Army Air Forces headquarters. General Anderson is being retired September 30 for physical disability.

Gen. Anderson

During the last war Anderson commanded the Third Division of the Eighth Air Force from January to June, 1943, when he was named commander of the Eighth Bomber Command.

In January, 1944, he became deputy commanding general for operations of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe and served in this post until the end of the war.

Anderson was appointed to West Point in 1924 from Kingston, N. Y. He graduated in the class of 1928 and a year later from the Army Flying School.

Seal Getting Fur Coat

Tacoma, Wash. (U.P.).—Reversing the customary direction, DuDub, a seal at Tacoma's Point Defiance Aquarium, is getting a new fur coat. He lost all his hair while ill back in 1942 and has been bald since then. A new coat has just begun to grow.

Prowler Leaves Teeth

Seattle (U.P.).—Carroll Reichel is scanning other citizens in hope of finding the night prowler who left a set of false teeth on his front porch. Reichel told police he didn't know who the intruder was but he left his teeth as a clue.

Those Umpires Seldom Get Things Straight

Omaha, Nebr. (U.P.).—The sports writer was taking down the details of a sandlot baseball game.

"And besides tossing a no-hit game, our pitcher fanned 14, walked 6, and let only 3 men get to first base," the voice on the telephone said.

"Wait a minute," the sports writer said. "You say he walked six but allowed only three batters to get to first base? How come?"

"Oh, three of the walks weren't his fault," the voice said. "That umpire was lousy on low balls."

Ex-GIs Crave School

Norman, Okla. (U.P.).—Some veterans want to go to school the year around, a survey indicated. Scores of the more than 6000 veterans at University of Oklahoma disclosed their intention to attend classes this summer.

We Drank Less Beer

Chicago (U.P.).—The national thirst for beer was only half quenched last year, the Encyclopedia Britannica 1947 Book of the Year says. The beverage shortage brought about by reduced grain allotments was about 50 per cent.

Order Delivered

Seattle (U.P.).—A city record for successive births of the same sex was set when 16 boy babies were born at Maynard Hospital. The arrival of Cheryl Ann Peterson ended the 24-hour progression. "I ordered a girl," said Mrs. Peterson.

A Statement by DR. ABBA HILLEL SILVER, Chairman of the American Zionist Emergency Council

TWO British sergeants who had been kidnaped by the Irgun and held as hostages were hanged after three condemned Irgunists had been hanged by the British authorities in Palestine. These sergeants were innocent of any crime. The Irgun was not vested by the Jewish community in Palestine with any authority to judge, sentence or execute men. The conditions attending their execution were particularly revolting. The Jewish Agency and the Vaad Leumi joined in a strong condemnation "of the dastardly murder of these two innocent men."

Taken in and by itself, this tragic occurrence will evoke a natural repulsion which may obscure the full lamentable story of which this is only a part. Justice and fairness, however, demand that we keep the entire picture in proper focus.

Upon learning of the execution of Sgt. Martin, a member of his family in Coventry, England, told reroprters: "We do blame the Government. They should have waited. Surely they know now how desperate these people are and they could have waited until our lads were safe before executing those terrorists."

Why, indeed, did the British Government not wait? What was the frantic rush to hang these three Irgunists? The UN Special Committee on Palestine, foreseeing "the possible unfavorable repercussions that execution of three death sentences pronounced by a military court in Jerusalem" would have, had officially requested a delay.

Why did the British Government refuse to heed the plea of this impartial body representing the United Nations and earnestly bent upon the finding of a solution for the torturous Palestine problem? Why were the sentencing of these men, the confirmation of their sentence, and their execution timed to coincide with the period of the UN Committee's investigation? It was surely clear to everyone that this would provoke violence and bloodshed. The Special Assembly of the United Nations, anxious to afford its Committee of Inquiry every opportunity to work in an atmosphere of calm and order, had called "upon all Governments and peoples, and particularly on the inhabitants of Palestine, to refrain, pending action by the General Assembly on the report of the special committee on Palestine, from the threat or use of force or any other action which might create an atmosphere prejudicial to an early settlement of the question of Palestine."

Why did not the Government of Palestine, the one government most directly concerned, cooperate?

For over a year now, so-called illegal immigrants who arrived off the shore of Palestine were trans-shipped by the Mandatory Government to Cyprus, This was a bitter enough disappointment to the helpless refugees and to the Jews of Palestine. Thirty-two such boatloads of refugees had thus been sent to Cyprus. Why was this policy suddenly changed during the meeting of the United Nations Committee in Palestine? Why were the refugees on EXODUS 1947—4,500 men, women and children—forced to return to Europe? The ship was rammed on the high seas by British destroyers, endangering the lives of everyone on it. It was attacked and boarded on the high seas contrary to all international law. The unarmed refugees were attacked with tear bombs, with fire hoses and bludgeons. Fifty were injured, three were killed, one a former officer of the United States Navy.

Was all this calculated to insure calm and tranquillity in Palestine during the period of the inquiry of the UN Committee? Or was it a stupid act bordering on provocation, on the part of a government which does not seem to be interested in attaining peace and tranquillity in that country?

The British Colonial Secretary, Arthur Creech-Jones, expressed in the House of Commons his feeling of "horror and revulsion" at the slaying of the two British sergeants. But he could not find it in his heart to express sorrow for the slaying of the three men aboard the the EXODUS and the wounding of fifty. These people, too, were innocent of any crime. They were on their way to the Jewish National Home, whither they had every right to go. Mr. Creech-Jones knows, perhaps better than most people, that the restrictions on Jewish immigration into Palestine are without basis in international law, are British-made, contrary to the Mandate, and that they have been condemned by the League of Nations, by Britain's foremost statesmen, and by his own Labor Party. In killing these innocent men of the EXODUS, his Government was as guilty of murder as the Irgunists who killed the two sergeants. Both were carrying out willful, lawless policies which the moral sense of mankind must condemn.

Knowing all this, Mr. Creech-Jones declared in the House of Commons that the two soldiers whom the Irgun executed were "discharging a service in fulfillment of international obligations." Explaining why the passengers of the EXODUS 1947 were forcibly returned to Europe, he also referred to the fact that Britain "must carry out her international obligations." What international obligations, Mr. Creech-Jones? What international body approved the British White Paper of 1939? What international body authorized the setting up of a police state in Palestine to enforce that policy through wholesale deportations, mass arrests ,the screening of entire populations, endless curfews, martial law, and the imposition of death sentences by a military court in peacetime for acts which would call for no such punishment in any civilized country in the world today?

Within the last few days, following the execution of the two soldiers, British troops shot up the village of Pardess Hanna. Riding in armored cars in Tel-Aviv, British soldiers fired upon a bus full of people, all of them innocent of any crime. Five were killed and fifteen were wounded. Then followed a night of terror in Tel-Aviv, during which British troops and police fired shots and threw bombs into restaurants and cafes, into crowds emerging from the theatre; stores and shops were raided, smashed and destroyed. An armored car manned by British police deliberately plunged into a Jewish funeral procession. Similar pogroms were perpetuated in other parts of Palestine.

These acts were undoubtedly irresponsible acts of reprisal, just as were the acts of the Irgunists. Is the British Government prepared to assume responsibility for these dastardly crimes, as they would wish the Jewish community to assume responsibility for the deeds of the Irgunists? Will Mr. Creech-Jones and the British press denounce them as bitterly as they have denounced the slaying of the two British soldiers, and will they call for the arrest and punishment of the murderers?

What is the root of all this evil and corruption? Lawlessness breeds lawlessness. The lawlessness of the unsanctioned British policy aimed at defeating the clear purpose of the Mandate and the Balfour Declaration has led to violence, resentment, punishment, reprisal and counter-reprisal, to the creation of a Jewish underground movement which Jewish authorities are unable to control, and to hooliganism on the part of British troops which the Palestine Government seems to be unable to control.

Where will all this end? The British Government is maintaining today over 100,000 troops in Palestine, at a time when it is forced to consider withdrawing its troops from Germany, Italy and Greece because it is short of funds, because it is short of manpower to run its industry at home. These 100,000 troops, maintained at high cost, have not brought peace to the Holy Land. They have brought war. The British Navy is now waging war upon helpless women and children. British forces are being used by Mr. Bevin to impose a blind and blundering policy upon Palestine which he knows cannot be enforced. That policy must be quickly abandoned, before anarchy sweeps over the Holy Land.

The United Nations Committee is to submit its report within four weeks. All men of goodwill hope that this report may pave the way to a just and satisfactory solution of the Palestine problem. The British Government can make a major contribution to the pacification of Palestine if it will abandon the EXODUS practice of forcibly returning Jewish refugees to Europe and if it will refrain from similar acts of provocation. The Irgun had observed an "armistice" all through the period of the inquiry of the UN Committee until the Palestine Government pronounced the sentence of death upon its men, a sentence which might well have been delayed if reason and political judgment had prevailed. The Haganah has not only maintained law and order, but it fought in every way short of provoking civil war to curb the activities of the dissident Jewish groups. It could not, and cannot, however, stand idly by in the face of acts such as the Government's piratical attack upon the EXODUS and the intensified campaign against Jewish immigration.

Men of good-will seeking for peace will endeavor to keep the total picture in mind, in judging events and in assaying responsibilities.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee hopes to organize a new nonpartisan political party with veterans, farmers, and Federal workers as its base.

He has appealed to the several AFL unions that claim upwards of 500,000 Federal worker members to help him form his party. Union leaders are reported to have rejected the plan.

Specifically, Langer wanted the AFL officials to send to each of their members a "Call to Action" letter addressed to all Civil Service employes. The letter was inserted in the July 28 Congressional Record by Senator Johnston (D., S. C.)

In it, Langer, a Republican, told how he had tried to keep Federal worker problems on a nonpartisan basis by having Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.) join with him in sponsoring the Langer-Chavez bill to liberalize the Civil Service retirement system. The letter then reads:

"In spite of my best efforts, we were unable to get the bill passed. There was money for foreign countries. There was an attempt to reduce the taxes of men receiving incomes of $100,000 or more a year by tremendous amounts. There was money for nearly everything except the Civil Service employe. All we heard was that there were too many Civil Service employes—that it would cost the Government too much money to provide for the widows and orphans or for annuities for Civil Service employes.

"Now, the Hatch Act applies to the employes who are actually working for the Government, but it does not apply to their wives and relatives. Therefore, I am enclosing herewith a 'Call to Action,' which I, as chairman of the Civil Service Committee, am asking that you read carefully; and I hope that after you have read it you will sign the pledge contained therein and send it to me. I tell you frankly that it is my experience that the only way you folks are going to get justice, which has been long delayed, is by organizing and fighting for it politically."

The "Call to Action" is a copy of a speech the Senator delivered last month at the Roosevelt Hotel. Tens of thousands of his "Call to Action" letters will be sent out by his office staff to all sections of the country. Langer hopes to stage a national convention of his followers next year.

WHITE HOUSE: The President yesterday reached into the ranks of career employes to pick an administrative assistant to handle Federal worker problems. The appointee is 39-year-old Donald S. Dawson, personnel director of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. He is a happy choice.

Dawson, a native of Eldorado Springs, Mo., entered Government 15 years ago as a low-paid RFC clerk. He has had broad experience at RFC, having served as an administrative assistant to Jesse Jones before he went into personnel work.

He enlisted in the Army and was discharged as an Air Force major in 1946. His appointment will give veterans a strong voice in fixing Federal worker policies.

At RFC, Dawson will be succeeded as personnel director by Frank Elliott. William C. Fisher will move up to assistant director. At the White House, Dawson will succeed George Schoeneman, now Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

JOBS: The War Department has competitive exams open for jobs in its hospitals at Fort Belvoir, Forest Glen, and at Walter Reed. The tests cover the various grades of hospital and ward attendants and of stewards. Salaries range from 80 cents an hour to $2895 a year for stewards. The attendant jobs are restricted to persons with veterans' preference.

The department also has open tests for various types of helper jobs such as blacksmith, bricklayer, carpenter, electrician, painter, pipefitter, plumber, sheetmetal worker, welder, etc. The pay ranges from 87 to $1.07 cents an hour. Applications should be made to the Board of Civil Service Examiners in Room 2E-1030 in the Pentagon.

War's Office of the Quartermaster General also is recruiting men for overseas jobs in its graves registration service. The service will prepare and return here for final burial the remains of World War II dead.

Among the jobs open are: administrative assistant, $5187; embalmers, $3306 to $4246; chemistry technicians, $2992 to $2710; roentgenology technicians, $2992 to $2710, and photographer, $2710.

People being recruited here will be organized and outfitted at Honolulu. Additional information may be had by contacting the civilian personnel branch, Room 1-1025, Tempo A, 2d and R sts. sw.

Postoffice Death To Cost U. S. $5000

By The Associated Press

Legislation authorizing payment of $5000 as compensation for the death of Reuben Malkin, who was electrocuted May 28, 1943, while painting at the Cumberland, Md., postoffice, was signed by President Truman today.

The sum goes to Malkin's widow. He was painting electrical conduits at the postoffice when he touched a high tension feeder line carrying 2300 volts.

Rent Boosts Granted at 2 Apartments

The District Rent Control Administration yesterday granted rent boosts averaging 10 per cent at Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw., and 8 per cent at the Skyland Development, Good Hope rd. and 24th st. se.

At the same time, it received petitions for lower rents from tenants of 180 housing units owned by Wire Properties, Inc., in the 800 blocks of 20th and 21st sts. ne., and the 2100 block of I st. ne.

Sought Higher Rent

Ernest F. Williams, rent control general counsel, who heard the Westchester case as examiner last June, said the 10 per cent boost at the 558 apartment units would bring the owners approximately $63,312 more per year. The owners, the Realest Corporation, had asked a 17½ per cent hike to add $113,700 annual income.

Westchester tenants will pay $60.50 per month for one and one-half room units formerly renting for $55; $230 for seven-room, three-bath apartments which previously cost $120, Williams said.

Among those affected by the increased rents will be Commissioner Guy Mason, seven Senators, and a number of diplomats and high-ranking military and government officials.

The boost at the Skyland Development will mean rent increases ranging from $3.25 to $6 per month for tenants in 223 garden type apartments. Previous rents ranged from $45 to $75 per month.

Tenants in the Wire Properties, Inc., housing units, known as "Carver Terrace," asked the Rent Control Administrator to order lower rent ceilings and make the company supply additional services.

Levine Files Petition

Samuel Levine, attorney who filed the petition, said the owners had applied for a rent ceiling in November, 1945, when the buildings were nearing completion. Tenants occupied the housing at $52.50 to $62.50 rents, pending a ruling on the ceiling petition, he said.

The Rent Control Administrator granted ceilings ranging from $57.50 to $72.50 per month in November ,1946, but the owners didn't raise the rents until June, 1947, he explained. Tenants claim they weren't granted a hearing prior to the setting of the rent ceilings.

Moisture Shortage Causes Decline In Crop Conditions

Richmond, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Insufficient moisture caused a decline in crop conditions during the past week, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said needed for corn, late hay and pasture.

The corn crop is said to have generally reached the critical stage and is said to be very promising.

Unless there is ample moisture in the next two weeks, the yield of lespedeza hay will be below average the crop reporting service reports. Apples and peaches are said to be growing satisfactorily.

Peanut and cotton farmers noticed a decline in the number of boll weevils. In the northern part of the State, however, some corn fields were being dusted by airplane to prevent serious damage from Japanese beetles. Fruit crops in the northern section are also threatened by the beetles.

No Deaths Listed

Auto Victims In 5-19 Group Held at Fault

Nearly nine out of every ten traffic accidents involving children or teen-agers since school vacations began have been the fault of the victims.

This was revealed yesterday by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board in a first half report on its summer vacation traffic safety campaign for youngsters between the ages of 5 and 19.

No Deaths in Age Group

This year's record is slightly better, so far, than last year's, the board said. There have been no deaths in the 5-19 age group. Last year there was one. This year's traffic injury toll among children and teen-agers is 173, compared to 182 at the same time last year.

Youngsters contributed to their own accidents principally by running, hopping or skipping across the street in the middle of the block; darting out from between parked cars; or using tricycles, roller skates or wagons in streets or alleys, the board revealed.

Others were guilty of a variety of violations including playing football, baseball, handball or tag in the street; crossing against traffic lights; and hitching rides on moving vehicles.

Bicyclists A Headache

Bicycle-riders, who frequently ran into autos, earned the title of the "big traffic headache" in the 5-19 age group, the board observed.

A teen-age motorist, who went to sleep at the wheel of his car, and a motorcycle operator, who rammed a loading zone, were the only drivers in the age group who caused accidents.

Three adult motorists struck children and drove away without stopping, the board said. Other adult drivers failed to yield the right of way to children.

The Traffic Advisory Board's campaign will continue through the remaining month of school vacation. "Drive carefully and don't guess what a child will do," the board warns motorists. "Be prepared at all times for what they may do."

Steel Firm Contests Portal Suit in U. S. Court

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—D. H. Hubbard & Son, Inc., manufacturer of stainless steel products, filed today in Federal Court the first answer here to a portal-to-portal suit under a 1947 act which among other things relieved employers from responsibility for overtime considered negligible.

Local 3906 of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) had filed suit for $17,050 in alleged overtime. It claimed employes had to stand in line to punch a clock, to draw tools and had to wash on their own time. The company's answer said such time is so negligible it is not compensable under the 1947 portal-to-portal law.

Heckman Bid For Liquor Store Opposed

Thirty-one property owners and residents of the neighborhood protested an application for a liquor store license at 5104 MacArthur blvd., in a hearing before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday.

Heckman

The hearing, which lasted six hours in the board room at the Municipal Center, was on the application of Morris Heckman to move his liquor store from his present address at 1100 Connecticut ave. nw. to the MacArthur blvd. address.

Store Cost $33,000

Heckman testified that he was being evicted from his present premises on August 15, that he built the store on MacArthur blvd. at a cost of $33,000 and that he had $75,000 invested in his present business.

He argued that if his license was not granted he stood to lose his livelihood and his investment. He said that before making the investment he had solicited the wishes of the business and professional men in that area.

John Monteith, jr., 4852 Hutchins pl. nw., president of the MacArthur Boulevard Citizens Association, testified that the proposed site of the store was in close proximity to the Francis Scott Key School and the Palisades Jark field house, recreation center.

He pointed out that children coming to and from school would have to pass by the liquor store at least four times a day. The close proximity of the park, he said, would encourage drinking

Mrs. Shirley Green, 2216 King pl. nw., chairman of the legislative committee of the Francis Scott Key Parent-Teachers Association, testified that the store would be just over the 400-foot distance from the school as prescribed by law.

Store Held Menace

Marshall Hornblower, 2243 49th st. nw., attorney who acted as spokesman for the opposition to the application, pointed out that many people had moved into the neighborhood and bought homes just so that they could get their children away from an atmosphere such as a liquor store would create.

Michael F. Keogh, 4650 Garfield st. nw., attorney for the applicant, produced three real estate experts to show that the area was rapidly being commercialized.

Rufus S. Lusk, publisher of the Washington Business Review and real estate satistician, testified that there were 38,000 persons living in the area and that the closest liquor store in the District was three miles away.

Attorneys for both sides live in the area in dispute and acted not only for the parties they represented but as individuals with a direct interest in the dispute.

The board hearing the case was composed of Allan W. Payne, chairman, and William P. Meredith. The case was taken under advisement.

Airline Pays Coroner

By The Associated Press

Capital Airlines (PCA) said in Washington yesterday it had forwarded a $500 check to Dr. William P. Frazer, Loudoun County, Va., coroner, for services in a plane crash near Leesburg, Va., June 13 in which 50 persons died.

Dr. Frazer's request for payment was refused recently by a Jefferson County, W. Va., court. The crash occurred just within the West Virginia line.

Dr. Frazer said he had acted for Dr. G. P. Morison, Jeffeson County Coroner. James D. Henry, Capital vice president, said the airline had agreed to pay the bill if local authorities would not do so.

Veteran Gets Chief Post at Cheltenham

Calvin L. Kiah, 36-year-old World War II veteran, yesterday was appointed superintendent of the Cheltenham School for Boys, State Negro training school in Prince Georges County.

The appointment, effective August 15, will end an 18-month period during which the institution has been directed by H. R. Harris as acting superintendent.

Five applicants for the post were interviewed by the school's board of managers, but Kiah was top man on the State merit system eligibility list. Thomas B. Sprague, board chairman, said that Kiah, because he was a veteran, could not be passed over in favor of any of the other applicants.

The board had previously declined to appoint Kiah because of a lack of institutional experience. Kiah was a school principal in Cambridge, Md.

In approving Kiah for the post, the board, meeting in Baltimore, voted to ask the General Assembly to remove the position from the merit system coverage. The board said the heads of all correctional and penal institutions of the State—with two exceptions—are now out of the merit system.

Sprague notified the appointee in a letter that under the merit system his first six months on the job would be a probationary period, during which the board may pass on the permanence of his employment, according to the merit system rules.

Sprague said the board also decided upon a 30-day suspension for a cottagemaster, whose identity he would not disclose, accused of having whipped the juvenile inmates. He said that sanitary improvements in the facilities, previously termed "inexcusably filthy," were being continued.

New Cover Crop Plan Set Up in Md.

By The Associated Press

The State Production and Marketing Administration at College Park, Md., today announced a new soil conservation program under which farmers will not have to lay out their money in advance for seed to plant cover crops.

A farmer wishing to sow cover crops can go to his county AAA office, establish his eligibility, get a purchase order, and give the purchase order to a dealer for the needed seed.

To get the seed order, the planter must satisfy his local AAA committee that he is using a well-prepared seed bed, enough of the right kind of seed, and enough lime, phosphate and potash to assure a good stand.

Virginia Beach To Attack Erosion

Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 5 (AP). Responding to demands for immediate action to control erosion of the sand beach, the Virginia Beach town council last night agreed to invite bids for construction of three timber jetties as soon as plans and specifications can be drawn.

According to Clyde P. Nicholson, supervising engineer, the jetties are expected to cost $15,000 to $18,000, depending upon wind and weather conditions during the construction period. The cost of concrete and steel jetties earlier had been estimated at approximately $30,000 each.

Burglars Get Home Safe With $13,000 Cash, Bonds

Suspect in Purse Snatching Arrested After Pursuit by Blonde Secretary

Burglars lifted a 50-pound safe containing some $13,000 from the home of James K. Mahorney, 3027 Adams st. ne., while he was on a weekend outing at Beverley Beach, Md.

The money, $10,000 in cash, $3000 in War Bonds, represented his life savings, Mahorney told police. The safe was hidden behind a sliding panel in the closet of an attic bedroom. He said he discovered his loss on his return Monday night.

In another episode on the theft front, a 200-pound man was nabbed yesterday morning after a dramatic chase and charged with stealing a purse from a desk.

The suspect was caught at about 10:30 a. m., with the aid of a persistent 106-pound blond secretary who chased him through his floors and a basement corridor of the Agriculture Department South Building.

Modest heroine of the pursuit was Miss Dorothy Honeycutt of 1835 Phelps pl. nw., honey-haired secretary with the Farmers Home Administration. She and witnesses told this story:

She was walking with Miss Dolores Martin, 29, of 1502 Kearney st. nw. towards the latter's sixth floor office, room 6320. Miss Martin, spotting a man, hastily departing, screamed:

"That man has my pocketbook."

A dozen men and women popped out of adjacent offices. All pursued the suspect down the stairway, except Miss Honeycutt who took the elevator.

Espying the man on the ground floor, she tagged onto his heels as he sped into and through tortuous basement corridors.

When he pointed in an opposite direction and panted: "He went that way," she retorted, "You're the man I'm after," and greyhounded on in her high heels.

The suspect rushed out to Independence ave. and hopped into a passing cab. Miss Huneycutt still at his heels. A building guard arrived, stopped the cab and seized the man.

The suspect, identified by police as Arthur Clifton Hall, 47, of 224 H st. nw., was booked at the Third Precinct on a charge of housebreaking.

Guards found $8 in wadded bills in the cushion of the taxi; Miss Martin's red billfold, holding $1, in the basement, and her white pocketbook on the fourth floor stairway.

Truman Enables Ex-Captain to Get His $1800

By the United Press

Step up to the cashier's window, Sergt. Robert F. Parks. Uncle Sam is ready—finally—to pay you that $1800.

Parks, a Stanley, Va., veteran, was captured with the Fifth Air Base Force on Mindanao, Philippine Islands, in May, 1942. The men were required to feed themselves.

Parks, then a captain, had $1800 which he put in a pool for food. He was given a receipt by a United States Army finance officer. In a bombing attack he lost the receipt.

He survived the war in Jap prison camps and won the Bronze Star Medal for helping fellow prisoners escape a ship bombing. But he couldn't get his $1800 without the receipt.

President Truman cleared the way for payment yesterday by signing a private relief bill that cut through all red tape.

Late Pest Makes First Appearance On Tomatoes Here

The first late tomato blight to be discovered locally this year madee its appearance yesterday, agriculture research officials at Beltsville announced last night.

The first report came from a community garden at Bethesda, where the pest was discovered on a patch belonging to Mrs. Charles G. Ross, wife of President Truman's secretary. Later, more was discovered in an unsprayed control plot at the Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville.

Tomato blight last year caused widespread losses in all Eastern States, Dr. Paul Miller of Beltsville said last night. Spread of the disease can be halted with diothene and carbamate sprays, officials said.

Hecht Co. Asks Silver Spring Street Work

The Hecht Co. asked the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday to widen three streets around its new Silver Spring department store before it opens November 1.

Milton Schlesinger, store manager, said that unless the streets near the store are widened and improved a "traffic hazard" will result. Sitting in Rockville, the board ordered a survey.

F. Barnard Welsh, board attorney, objected, "It looks to me like the Hecht Co. is going to take over the county commissioners." He indicated he believes a proposed public parking lot near the store should be paid for by the firm, and not from public funds.

Land for the lot, directly across from the store at Fenton st. and Ellsworth dr., ultimately will cost $100,000 and will be financed by a bond issue paid for by a special tax levied on property owners in the Silver Spring commercial district. It will be one of 14 throughout the community's business district.

Specifically, Schlesinger asked for (1) widening of Fenton st. from Colesville rd. to Pershing dr. from 36 feet to 48 feet; (2) widening of Ellsworth dr. from Georgia ave. to Fenton st. to 41 feet and, (3) surfacing of Ellsworth dr. from Fenton st. to Cedar st. over a width of 41 feet.

Commissioners Brooke Johns, George Esworthy, Oliver W. Youngblood and Charles Jamison supported the road changes Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter indicated a belief that $100,000 was too much to pay for the parking lot.

Charles Prettyman, Baltimore & Ohio attorney, told the commissioners the railroad is willing to pay one third of the cost of a new bridge to replace the 50-year-old wooden span over the B. & O. tracks in East Rockville.

The commissioners will meet with the town council on the matter.

Sheet Metal Strike Goes Into 37th Day

The walkout of some 550 AFL sheet metal workers headed into its 37th day last night with no end in view.

Both management and union spokesmen agreed that negotiations appeared hopelessly deadlocked.

No contract talks were scheduled, but a spokesman for the 30 or more affected firms said another session "may be called" for the end of the week. The Conciliation Service has not entered the dispute.

The union, Sheet Metal Workers Local 102, is demanding a 25-cent Local 102, is demanding a 25-cent-an-hour wage boost—to $2.25. Its original demand, according to John T. O'Brien, business agent, was for $2.50 an hour.

Henry Norair, who heads the management negotiating committee, said the companies had offered to boost wages by 12½ cents up to January 1, with a furthre boost to $2.25 after the first of the year.

He estimated some 50 billion dollars in projects are being "seriously handicapped" by the walkout although no construction has been completely stopped. He listed the George Washington University Hospital, who installation of air condition and ventilation units has been deferred, and the White Oak Naval Ordnance Building at White Oak, Md.

Gipsy Smith, Evangelist, Is Dead at 87

New York, Aug. 5 (U.P.).Gipsy Rodney Smith, 87-year-old British evangelist who took the world for his congregation and was credited with countless conversions to old-time religion, died yesterday aboard the Queen Mary, it was learned when the ship docked here today.

The evangelist had undertaken the voyage in the hope it would restore his health, but ship physicians said he suffered several heart attacks en route and was fatally stricken after appearing to rally yesterday morning.

His second wife, 35-year-old former Mary Alice Shaw, a theological student when he married her, was with him when he died.

Mr. Smith, who was born in a gipsy tent in the Epping Forest of England, had come to the United States more than 30 times to preach in his soft-spoken but barbed style at revival meetings.

He was considered at his best in a tabernacle, but he had preached in some of Manhattan's largest churches, including the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Mr. Smith was one of the early officers of the Christian Mission, forerunner of the Salvation Army, but after 1887 he broke with General Booth, although he always remained a supporter of the Army.

His interest in religion began when a woman traded him a Bible for clothespins, which he was selling.

Mouth-Breeding Fish Is Zoo Attraction

San Francisco (U.P.).—The San Francisco aquarium is calling the attention of visitors to its female Egyptian mouth-breeding fish, whose mouth now is full of eggs being hatched.

William B. Richardson, tropical fish expert at the California Academy of Science, explained that the fish picks up her eggs after they have been fertilized and holds them in her mouth until they hatch.

During the 15-day incubation period, the little fish refuses all food. And after the young are hatched, the mother carries them in her mouth. They venture out occasionally, but when danger threatens they quickly swim back into their mother's mouth—until they get too big.

Deaconess Lillian Marie Arundel Yeo, 80, director of the House of Mercy for 44 years before her retirement in 1945, died Monday evening at her home at 4304 37th st. nw.

Deaconess Yeo

As the guiding spirit of the institution for unwed mothers at Klingle rd. and Rosemont ave. nw., she was widely known for her sympathy and devotion to the mothers and their children, and for her sparkling sense of humor. A staff member yesterday described the latter as "a chuckle, and a twinkle in her eye able to make any young girl feel right at home."

She was born in London in 1867, and came to America with her parents at the age of 21. After nine years in California, she entered St. Faith's Training School in New York, graduating in 1901 as a deaconess.

In 1901 she came to Washington to direct the House of Mercy at the request of the Right Rev. Henry J. Satterlee, first Episcopal Bishop of Washington.

Under Deaconess Yeo's leadership, the House of Mercy graduated more than 600 girls. They ranged in age from 24 to 24 and were sheltered for from 19 months to 2 years. They were taught cooking and sewing, and how to do laundry and housework. The majority of them have gone on to turning to thank Deaconess Yeo and her assistants.

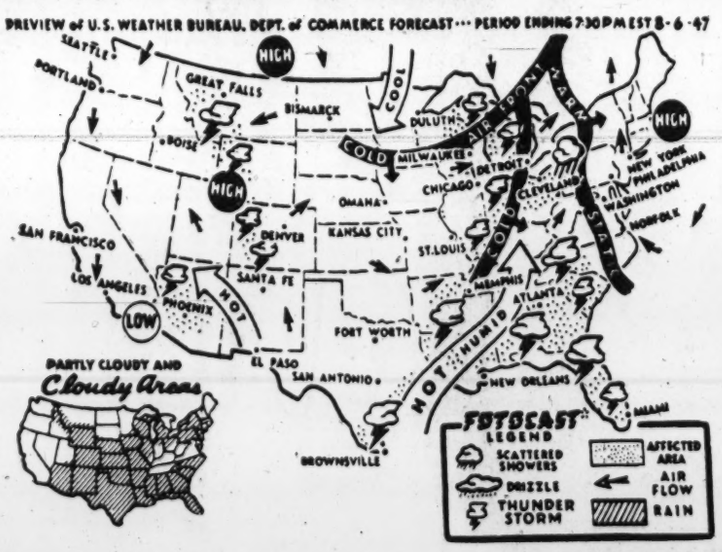
National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner



TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR FORECAST: Residents of the eastern third of the Nation will get the tag end of a modified version of the recent heat wave in the Plains States. Highest temperatures this afternoon will be in the 90s from Maine to the Gulf States, the southern Plains and the southern Rockies. Warm moist air from the Gulf of Mexico is streaming into these sections. Some parts of Kentucky and Tennessee will record readings about 100 degrees.

It will be decidedly cooler from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Dakotas, thanks to a cool air flow following in the wake of the cold fronts. Maximum readings in the Far West will also be in the 80s as cool air flows around the Pacific high pressure cell.

Today's Fotocast is typically normal for this time of the year in that high pressure cells are centered over the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific as well as central Canada. The scientists inform us cool temperatures in these sections generate the high pressure cells. Air flow takes place from high pressure cells toward the warmer inland low pessure centers and fronts.

Warm, moist air flowing around the "Gulf high" will rise into towering clouds, cool off and produce scattered thunderstorms from the Gulf States to the Great Lakes and along the east slopes of the Rockies.

A large, cold high pressure cell which has been building up over central Canada will send its cold air streaming down into the northern Plains and the Lakes region and without as much as a pardon me hold afternoon temperatures to the comfortable 80s.

Forecast maximum temperatures for this afternoon include Nashville, 102; St. Louis and Cleveland, 96; Detroit, 95; Tulsa and Atlanta, 94; Kansas City and Pittsburgh, 92; Buffalo, 91; Hartford and Washington, 90; Albany, 89; Boston, New York and Chicago, 88; Philadelphia and Milwaukee, 87.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Lad, 21, Feels Inexperienced and Unable To Cope With Mutual Attraction That Draws Him to Lovely Co-Worker Who's Been Married

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am an office employe, 21, highly regarded by the company, with an excellent future here. Recently our office hired several new employes, among them a lovely young lady who is constantly in my thoughts.

According to comments from coworkers, it seems the attraction is mutual, and we both over-do devotion to duty just as an excuse to be near each other. I've had other heart-interests, but none ever seemed as serious as this.

However, through casual conversation I've learned that the young lady was married for a year and has been separated for two months. I didn't show my alarm and am confident the office staff isn't aware of my feelings. Since this discovery I've cooled my attitude toward her which seems to confuse her.

She Bids for Date Via Mutual Friend

RECENTLY a trusted friend told me the young lady is very much interested in me and wants her—the mutual friend—to arrange a date. Does she sound senseless and irresponsible? I should think she would want to keep to herself, if recently separated from her husband. I myself don't think I could plunge into another romance as fast as she.

I've never had any experience along these lines; I'm not sure how to cope with the situation; but I do know I am miserable. Our short friendship has meant more to me than anything; but I'd hate to have a silly office romance ruin my chances for advancement here. Can you help me? Sincerely,

A. W.

Desire of Moth For Flame, Here

DEAR A. W.: Obviously you are a pretty conservative young man, now for the first time experiencing the desire of the moth for the flame—and seared by special fluttering anxiety due to the fact that the flame is pursuing you!

Does the lovely young lady sound senseless and irresponsible? Well, sexually predatory, frivolous and unstable, rather. Also unblushingly self assured on the basis of past experience in the game of hearts, I gather—to judge from (1) her perplexed reaction to your "cooling," and (2) the bid for a date she has issued via intermediary.

Her great haste to engage in romance with a shyly interested stripling co-worker, purposely made clear by divers devices, when the ashes of her marriage aren't yet cold,—when by legal reckoning the debris can't have been cleared away in two months,—is not to her credit. She is far from being a shrinking violet; also far from being circumspect.

Boy's Defensive Instinct Sound

SHE HASN'T your sense of the fitness of things, which suggests that in other respects your standards and values wouldn't dovetail with hers; and compatibility of social attitude is, after all, the bone and sinew of satisfactory substantial love-relatedness.

So, taking the long view, what's the point of drifting or letting yourself be ushered into an entanglement of sorts with another man's wife, mainly in response to sex attraction mutually felt? That's about what the heart-interest amounts to; and of course she is another man's wife, until a divorce decree is final.

In my opinion, your instinct is sound: A person who quits marriage somewhat with the air of dismissing one carriage and beckoning another hasn't much ballast. Likely his affectional capacity is warped and feeble and his philosophy of life quite superficial—so that he'd rather fare hand-to-mouth emotionally than strike anchor in one lasting monogamous relationship and patiently create treasure there.

For advice: 1. It's your privilege to like the girl and yet hold her at arm's length. 2. In response to her bid for a date, stand on principle with the suave rejoinder that you understand the lovely lady has an unfinished marriage in her background, which you feel puts you out of the running. Milk-Orange Punch Makes Cool Drink, Tart and Smooth Smooth, tart, and cool—that's milk and orange punch, a drink that's easy to make for afternoon or evening refreshment.

To mix enough for six persons, use the following ingredients:

1 cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
2 cups cracked ice
4 cups milk
1 cup whipping cream

Pour orange juice, sugar, and ice into shaker and shake well. Add milk and shake again. Add cream which has been beaten until it holds its shape, and give the mixture a few more shakes. Pour into glasses.

Fashion Accents Accessories

ACCESSORIES are an important part of any costume and this season they are designed to blend with the new silhouette. There is fashion importance in the longer pearls such as this extravagant 16-strand bib by Coro which highlights the off-shoulder neckline. Rounded look carries to the wrist with Aris' softly cut Pannier gloves of black doeskin used as background for pearl bangle bracelets. Criterion's hand-painted paisley suede cummerbund wraps high on the bodice of a cocktail dress accentuating rounded hips, while tasseled ends complement longer hemline

Don't Shout at Children

Try to keep your voice low and unexcited when correcting the children. We sometimes wonder why our children shout at us when they are angry and yet if we could hear both sides we could probably be surprised at the noise we are making ourselves.

Improving Outlook

Perhaps your window has a dreary or unpleasant outlook and you do not know just what to do about it. Have a window box built for it and as early as possible fill it with bright geraniums or cholea leaves. You will not see the view during the warm months and in the winter attractive curtains and draperies can shut out the drab outlook.

Avoid Glove Smudges

We frequently find unaccountable smudges on our clean light gloves when all we have done is to come down stairs after donning them. Take a look at the bannister rail if this is the case and you will find it needs a good washing and polishing. If there are young children in the house this is almost certain to be the solution.

Wool Jersey Smart for Home Drapery Uses

Women who make their own draperies find that one of the easiest fabrics to work on is wool jersey. Soft and colorful, it possesses unusual draping qualities and may be hung at the windows unlined. The light enhances its color and the texture adds to the quality of the rooms it is used to decorate.

Try wool jersey curtains in your living room, library or dining room, in chartreuse, dusty pink, yellow, green, blue or gray.

Bill Flies the Coop

War-Saturated Eagle Wins His Longest Siege

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

YESTERDAY Bill Taylor, reassuringly pink after nine hospital months downed by acute jaundice, gave a recovery-and-farewell party. Once commanding officer of the doughty Eagle Squadron of Americans who fought with Britain before our war entry, Bill has a unique war record—he's been in five aviation services, including two separate stints in the United States Navy.

Back in 1939 he was taken on as sublieutenant in the British Fleet Air Arm. After the Norwegian campaign, when British planes were outflown by Nazi aircraft, Bill was sent back to the United States to round up faster fighters. He had a few amusing ground skirmishes when overzealous snoopers reported him as a spy. He got the fast planes, returned to England where the Eagles were forming.

Billy Fiske, the St. Moritz bobsledding champion, was slated to command but was killed with the famous 609 City of London Squadron. So Bill transferred from navy to RAF, took up with the Eagles toward the end of the Battle of Britain.

Switching back to the United States Naval Reserve just before Pearl Harbor, he helped develop the single-seater night fighter for the Pacific, was routed back to Naples with Admiral Glassford, ended by commanding the African naval station at Port Lyautey. As Lyautey commander, one of his last jobs was supporting the Brady Commission (which helped supervise the Greek elections) with our planes.

Then, his chest armored from collarbone to rib with dazzling campaign ribbons, the survivor of blitzes, Arctic invasions, Pacific night attacks, Mediterranean dogfights, was ignominiously laid low with jaundice! Now Bill Taylor is returning to try his luck at living a quiet life in New York.

Muse Comes a Cropper

POET ARCHIBALD MacLEISH, former Congressional Librarian and short time member of Ed Stettinius' State Department team (which was semihumorously dubbed Snow White and the SIX Dwarfs), has melted from the news. But the redoubtable Archie, more active than ever, is swinging a mean rhyme at his Conway, Mass., farm. He's in the throes of composing a very, very, very long poem.

But the MacLeish efforts are somewhat curtailed by his newborn craze for driving a bulldozer. After a 6-year absence, he is improving the property inherited from a preacher grandfather by crisscrossing it with roads and yanking up superfluous trees. In fact the poet has become so enwrapped in the bulldozer's mechanical fascination, friends fear that unless frost sets in soon the MacLeish epic will never be finished.

Wallace stories going the rounds are usually very unfunny. But occasionally a faint ray of humor seeps from the rarefied editorial sanctum.

As a rule the soft-spoken liberal hope doesn't cuss, and only once on record has the Wallace coiffeur been let down. It came about when a certain famous news letter printed an item distasteful to Wallace. The offending journalist was invited around, given an explanation which Wallace believed rated a retraction.

When the next news letter arrived Wallace commenced to read it with pleasant anticipation. To his amazement the same item was repeated with embellishments. Outside the door his astounded staff heard an ominous rumpling of paper followed by a string of expert, hair-raising expletives. A few moments later all was serene. Since then the boss has uttered nothing more stirring than a "darn."

Amortizing By the Head

LLOYD GARRISON, onetime dean of Wisconsin's law school and later War Labor Board chairman, reports the neatest real estate dodge we know.

Out near the University of Wisconsin a young couple acquired one of the first modern houses designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. Curious would-be home builders soon began dropping in to inspect the unusual Wright architectural devices. The stampede became so great that rugs, paint, floors, ashtrays began to show wear and tear. Also, the strain on privacy was intense, the lady of the house seldom daring to relax in an old wrapper or leave cream on her face.

To stop it all she decided to ask a quarter admission. But the fee, instead of curtailing crowds, attracted more. Now the delighted couple are reconciled to the routine, for it won't be long before the last glass brick, the final sliver of aluminum has been paid for by their own private brand of sightseers.

India's Flag to Go Up At Embassy Ceremony

By Marie McNair

INDIA'S NEW flag will go up with elaborate ceremonies at the embassy on India's Independence Day, Friday, August 15. Invitations to the event have been sent out by Ambassador Asaf Ali to members of the Diplomatic Corps, the State Department and friends of India among nonofficial circles.

The tricolor ensign—saffron, white and green—will be raised atop the tall standard on the terrace at 10:30 a. m., while cameras click and newsreels record this history-making occasion.

On the same day in Indian embassies and legations all over the world similar ceremonies will be taking place and the Ambassador's speech, to be recorded today, will be heard on the discs which will be sent out this week.

Pomp and circumstance will attend the flag-raising ceremony which will be followed by champagne toasts.

Guests have been asked to "please present this card at the gate" of the hilltop embassy on Macomb st. And while they assemble on the broad terrace, a procession headed by the Indian Minister, B. R. Sen, and followed by members of the staff, will be forming indoors. The slender envoy will be last, as the line marches in state to the specially erected platform outside.

The flag which will fly from the embassy's highest point is a symbol of courage, faith and truth. The saffron band stands for courage and sacrifice; the white for peace and truth and chivalry is interpreted by the green. On the white field is the deep blue wheel of Asoka, one of the greatest of Hindu kings, who lived in a peaceful era 300 years before Christ.

The design appears on the abacus of the Saranath Lion, capital of Asoka. Mrs. Sarojani Naidue, Indian poetess and the only woman who has ever been president of the Indian National Congress, speaking at the flag-raising ceremony in India a few weeks ago, said of the emblem: "This flag stands for the integrity and honor of India. The whole represents the message of peace and modern ideals of fellowship and brotherhood and world cooperation. It represents the eternal wheel of time that never hesitates or stops. It represents the rising sun and the eternal emotions of the human heart!"

All Two-Year-Olds Cling to Parents

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It is at about the age of 2 that the baby becomes so dependent upon the mother. She can hardly walk out of the room without the accompaniment of his distressed screaming.

In the house the child follows her from room to room. He wants to be a part of all her activities, from bedmaking to dishwashing. He does not play with small friends but plays alone in the same room with them, or stands and stares while they play.

It would seem that now, as never before, he shows fear of strangers, for out of doors he holds fast to his mother's hand and disappears from sight behind her skirt, or hides his eyes when someone speaks pleasantly to him. "Oh, he's so shy," his mother explains. "I wish he would be more friendly."

When he goes to bed at night he is reluctant to part company with the family. Heretofore, he has been content to lie down, hug a pet toy and go to sleep. Now he leaps out of bed as soon as the parental back is turned and is down the stairs and into the living room again. Hauled back and told sternly to lie down and go to sleep, he bobs up with the plaintive pleas to go to the bathroom, or to be given a drink of water. He keeps this up until there is no longer a shred of an excuse for bringing a parent back to him again. By now he, too, is worn out and ready for sleep.

If he has been rocked before, it may now take hours of rocking to get him settled. If he has never been rocked he will fuss unless someone stays in the room beside him, holding his hand, singing or just talking to him.

Parents are unable to understand this complete dependency and grow discouraged thinking it will last forever. But in from six months to a year he will be so weaned from the parents that none of these attentions will seem important. He will have learned to play with small friends, be more friendly toward strangers and be well launched on the path of independence which ends in school.

None of this, in a word, is either unnatural or very individual, it is all part of the growth pattern; it is only the parent who looks upon it as unique in her child.

Serve All Dinners Family Style

Serve both your everyday and company meals informally ("English family style"), suggests Better Homes and Gardens magazine. Here are answers to common questions about family style dining:

HOW can I serve a first course with a family-style dinner? The host may serve a tomato or pineapple juice cocktail in the living room while the hostess places food on the table.

WHY are place or service plates used when no cocktail or soup course is served on them? Traditional rule of table setting is—never leave an empty space in front of a guest. If you don't have a separate set of service plates, let your dinner plates do the job, instead of being stacked in front of the host. Or, you can place the napkin between the knife and fork.

WHAT becomes of place plates when the main course is served? When the host passes the served dinner plate, the guest passes his place plate on to the hostess. When the hostess serves dessert, she may place the salad-size dessert plate on the service plate and return it. If dinner plates are used as service plates, the guest passes his empty plate to the host when he is served.

WHOM should the host serve first? The guest of honor, man or woman. He is seated at the hostess's right if a man, at the host's right if a woman. Then serve other guests in order, starting at the host's right.

IS the salad or main course served first? Both host and hostess start serving as soon as everyone is seated. Since salad is easier to serve, it is usually first to be passed to the guest.

WHERE is the salad plate placed when served with the dinner? To the left of the dinner plate, a little below the butter plate. Or, if the table is wide enough, directly above the dinner plate.

WHEN salad is served with the dinner, should the salad fork be placed to the inside or outside of the dinner fork? This is a matter of choice. If the salad course is served first, place salad fork outside the dinner fork.

SHOULD butter plates be used on an informal table? Not if you serve buttered rolls and your dinner plate is large enough to accommodate the roll without its touching other food.

IS coffee served with the main course or dessert? A thoughtful hostess will ask each guest whether he wants coffee with his dinner or dessert.

WHEN are ash trays placed on the table? Following the dessert and coffee service.

For Lovely Legs—Get In the Swim

By Ida Jean Kain

IT'S REPORTED that Esther Williams has a yearning to enact the life story of the famous Annette Kellerman, and is urging Metro to buy the story for her. Now there is one picture I sincerely hope comes to the screen. And Esther is a natural for the star role. Esther is to the American male today what Annette was 25 to 30 years ago. Ask your uncle!

This picture would not only reveal what swimming can do for the feminine form divine, but it would be a lesson in courage, too. For that part we have to go back to when Annette was a little girl, in Boston. She had a leg deformity, diagnosed as a calcium abnormality, and in order to walk at all she had to wear steel braces. The doctor's prescription, swimmming lessons, made Annette Kellerman famous. But she earned her fame. It wasn't easy for her to learn to swim, but she kept right at it, and swam summer, fall, winter and spring. By the time she was 13, her legs were almost normal, but she had to wear tightly laced, high shoes.

So, she kept right on swimming. You know the rest of the story. At 18, Annette Kellerman not only had a beautiful pair of legs, but was said to possess the world's most perfect figure.

Swims for Trim

AND SHE still has that perfect figure to this very day! Miss Kellerman has the same set of perfect measurements she had 30 years ago! She swims for a mile every day.

And by the way, there is nothing wrong with Esther William's measurement either . . . Bust 36, waist 26, hips 36.

But don't you see, girls, that if swimming can make a deformed pair of legs into beautiful legs, that it can certainly mend any little thing that might be wrong with your posture or figure. It can mend a crooked posture, strengthen a weak back, put curves on the right places and pull the bulgy muscles out long and smooth, and slim off bunchy fat. It can fix you up, inside and out. A swimming pool is a fountain of youth.

The stroke doesn't matter, as long as you push against the water. Of course, it's more fun to be able to flash through the water swimming the crawl, then the backstroke, and then just float lazily on the water.

Oh, well, if I can't sell you on swimming for fun and a perfect figure, maybe Annette and Esther can.

Bathing beauty, Esther Williams, yearns to make a picture of the life of the famous swimmer, Annette Kellerman. It would be a natural, and a lesson in courage as well as swimming

Your Questions On Homemaking

1. I am planning to buy a fur coat and wonder if you can tell me how the wearing qualities of sheared beaver-dyed Australian opossum compare with mink-dyed Northern Back muskrat. 2. How can formula stains be removed from white cotton baby shirts and gowns? G. W.

1. A recent booklet on buying furs, issued by a research organization, rates the serviceability of Australian opossum as "fair." Muskrat is rated as "fair" to "good." Of course, a great deal depends on the quality of the individual coat.

2. You do not mention the content of the formula, but if it's a milk solution the following may prove effective: Sponge the spots with cleaning fluid. Let them dry thoroughly, then sponge with cold water. Sprinkle powdered pepsin on the dampened stain, and let it stand for half an hour. Brush it off and rinse the spot well.

I stained a cotton and rayon dress with blood, which I washed out. The stains disappeared, but a large pinkish ring was left around the stained area, both on the printed top of the dress and the white skirt. The print (red and black on a white background) is not colorfast. How can I wash this dress and thoroughly remove the stain without having the red and black colors run into the white? E. Z.

Wash away the rest of the stain from the white skirt by stretching it over a folded bathtowel, and sponging with soap and water. Rinse by sponging with clear water. Don't let the water run into the printed part of the dress. However, if it seems safe to do so, dampen the spot on the printed part slightly and stretch it in the sun to bleach. This may be effective in taking out the ring.

Yes, the doughlike type of wallpaper cleaner is usually effective in cleaning this paper.

I dropped a mixture of mustard and onion on a brown chambray dress, and it made a stain. Can you tell me how to remove it. E. T.

Work glycerin into the stain. Rub lightly between the hands. Then wash the dress with soap and water. If a trace of stain remains, sponge with alcohol. Try this out on a scrap of the material first to be sure it won't harm the color.

I carelessly splashed water on the living room wallpaper and it made an ugly stain. Is there any way to remove it without harming the paper? M. P.

Water stains on wallpaper can sometimes be removed by the following method: Make a poultice of Fuller's Earth or commercial dry cleaning powder and carbon tetrachloride. Apply thickly to the spot, thinning out at the edges beyond the soiled area. Let it remain overnight until fully dry. Wipe off carefully with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. Test with carbon tetrachloride first to be sure it won't make colors in the paper run.

I have an unfinished pine hanging shelf which I want to give a mahogany finish. Is it possible to do this at home without having the job look amateurish? I have already filled all cracks and am sanding it down. M. E. B.

Yes, you can apply a mahogany stain, then finish with shellac and wax. Since the grain of pine and mahogany differ considerably, the shelf won't look like mahogany. However, if your chief purpose is to darken the shelf to match other furniture, the results should be satisfactory. A pigmented oil stain will obscure the grain more than other types. Purchase it at a paint store, and brush it on the cleanly sanded wood. Let stand 10 minutes or until the color is of the required depth. Then wipe off excess stain with cloth. The wiping must be done before the stain has dried in order to insure even distribution of color. Apply several coats of shellac to seal in the stain. Sand down each coat as it dries to give the wood a soft finish, then wax.

Eva's (Verbatim) Call to Peron Reveals Her Reason for Worry

By Drew Pearson

Vivacious, sensational Sra. Eva Duarte de Peron, wife of the Argentine President, now has received decorations from Dictator Franco and Pope Pius XII, and has toured the capitals of many European countries.

Sra. De Peron

During her tour, she conversed nightly by transatlantic telephone with her husband in Buenos Aires. Apparently she was worried about Peron's political situation. In order to insure maximum privacy for these talks, Argentine communications officials used a special high-frequency, ultrashortwave radiotelephone circuit. Despite these precautions, the Merry-Go-Round herewith presents a verbatim excerpt, in translation, from one of their conversations just before Senora de Peron left Italy:

Eva: "I want to make a donation to the families of the victims in that munitions ship explosion here; you know?"

Peron: "Yes—all right. Do whatever you like about that."

Eva: "Listen, I'm worried."

Peron: "Why?"

Eva: "About going to France. They tell me it isn't safe."

Peron: "No, no—don't worry. Everything has been taken care of."

Eva: "But everyone here advises against it. They say it would be very dangerous. I don't know . . ."

Peron: "I tell you everything has been arranged. I have been assured personally. It's perfectly all right; you can go ahead."

Eva: "Well, then . . . listen, how are matters there? Is everything going well?"

Peron: "Yes, of course. Everything's fine."

Eva: "You are deceiving me! You keep saying that everything is fine, but here they tell me that things are going very badly. You are deceiving me!"

Peron: "No, No! I am not deceiving you about anything. Don't let yourself be upset by stupid rumors without foundation. I am telling you the truth. Everything is all right."

Eva: "Well, I hope so. I have been very worried . . ."

Senora Peron had reasons to be worried. The Argentine military have been watching her husband carefully, have even been tapping his phone.

Summary on Marshall

With General Marshall now in office six months, it is fair to summarize his abilities in the all-important, highly complicated job of Secretary of State.

One fear expressed at the time of Marshall's appointment was that he might run the State Department as a military organization; forget that he was a diplomat, not a soldier. Military men are accustomed to giving orders and having them carried out; a diplomat cannot give orders to a foreign country.

This fear has proved entirely unjustified. Marshall has leaned over backward to be a civilian; has run his department on a civilian basis. There can be no criticism of him on this score.

Chief criticism of Marshall is that he has lacked confidence in himself, therefore has moved too cautiously. Unfortunately he had to take over a field in which—except for a brief experience in China—he was absolutely green. He had spent his life studying warlike matters; suddenly he was shifted to the problems of peace.

Therefore, Marshall has not moved with the same surefootedness as Jimmie Byrnes.

Pastmaster Byrnes

Byrnes was a past master at negotiation. And his many jousts with Molotov at Moscow, London, Paris and New York had given him an instinctive feel for foreign affairs. He did not have to lean on his advisers. He led and they followed.

To some extent Marshall has had to reverse this. He has had to learn the ropes all over again, could not entirely pick things up where Byrnes left off, has had to lean heavily on advisers, and has lacked the experience to be able to challenge their decisions. Sometimes the results have been excellent—as in the Marshall Plan, where Marshall leaned heavily on able George Kennan and was wise enough to adopt his recommendations.

But the results have not been good in Argentina and Latin America, where the new Secretary of State has leaned on other advisers.

Greatest setback the State Department has suffered is the exodus of top, trained personnel. Here, the turnover has been so rapid that the oldest Assistant Secretary of State, in point of service now is William Benton, in charge of propaganda and cultural relations, in office less than two years.

Time Is So Precious

As a military man, Marshall knows the difficulty of leading troops in battle with green officers. Today his Department of State is trying to win the battle of peace with some of the older and best-trained officers retired from the battlefield. The exit of Dean Acheson as Undersecretary of State, for instance, leaves a hole which cannot soon, if ever, be filled by Wall Street Banker Bob Lovett, charming and likeable as he is.

Training new men takes time. Training a new Secretary of State also takes time. And time in the battle of peace is just as important as in the campaign or war—just as important as the split seconds between an artillery barrage and an infantry charge, or the crucial days wasted while supply trains bring up ammunition.

Thus the time lost between the exit of Jimmie Byrnes and the education of George Marshall may have its effect on history 3 or 10 years hence.

Merry-Go-Round

After bombarding prospective Solicitor General Phil Perlman with questions at a Senate hearing, fair-minded Senator Donnell of Missouri went down to honor Perlman when he took the oath of office . . . Accidental omission from the Merry-Go-Round's recent list of efficient freshman Congressmen: Joe Evins of Tennessee, Democrat, a conscientious, fair-minded Congressman who stuck to his knitting and has a future.

How the Army wastes manpower: Maj. Gen Rosy O'Donnell, one of the crack wartime fliers, now is writing publicity ballyhoo for the Air Forces. He doesn't like the job, would rather be out flying, and the Army needs top-ranking officers—despite which O'Donnell is wasted at a publicity desk. . . . New Mayor Tommy D'Alesandro of Baltimore is attracting as much attention in that city as Fiorello LaGuardia when he was Mayor of New York. American cities seem to go in for Italian mayors—or perhaps Italo-Americans go in for politics. . . . Anyway, there's been Mayor Rossi of San Francisco, Mayor Maestri of New Orleans and Mayor Celentano of New Haven.

Capital Chaff

When Tanforan, Calif., racetrack officials protested they lost money, alert Judge Dal M. Lemmon quickly read a report from the California Racing Commission showing Tanforan grossed $4,491,000 during the 40-day spring meet. They were jailed for violating veterans' housing preferences. . . . It wasn't reported in the papers, but another "shooting incident" took place in the Capitol—this one about 3 a. m. A sharp report echoed through the still, marble corridors, coming from the direction of a public rest room. Jumpy Capitol police, remembering Senator Bricker's recent encounter with a gunman, rushed to the scene with draw pistols. Inside, they found a flustered visitor struggling with a screen. With a loud bang, he had kicked it to the floor.

Hungarian to Tell Md. Legion Of Living Under Soviet Rule

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—A former Hungarian diplomat turned college professor will deliver a principal address at Wednesday night's opening session of the American Legion's Maryland department convention.

Legionnaires from 192 posts began arriving in Baltimore today. Over 15,000 delegates are expected for the five-day convention at the Fifth Regiment Armory.

The former diplomat, Dr. Valentine de Balla, was recently appointed a member of the Loyola College faculty. He will relate his experiences in Hungary under Soviet occupation.

Meeting simultaneously with the Legion will be its ladies' auxiliary of 78 units.

Tomorrow night's inaugural ceremonies will include brief messages from Governor Lane, Senators Tydings and O'Conor, and Baltimore's Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro. A parade of Legionnaires on Friday and the election of officers on Sunday will be among the convention highlights.

Iowans Seek To Tighten Divorce Law

Dubuque, Iowa, (U.P.).—Iowa is planning to join Wisconsin, Oregon, New Jersey and Tennessee in passing a law providing for court appointment of lawyers to investigate uncontested divorce cases.

A leader of the movement is District Judge Milton J. Glenn, member of a five-man committee appointed by the Iowa Bar Association to study present divorce laws.

"The constantly increasing number of divorce cases coming before the courts is causing concern throughout the Nation," Judge Glenn said in an interview.

He said almost all of the recent divorce cases in Dubuque County—cases increased more than 100 per cent last year—were uncontested, with only one of the complaining parties appearing in court.

"That means the judge has little discretion in the matter of granting divorces if the party testifying states facts constituting grounds for divorce, whether or not those statements are true," Judge Glenn declared.

There is reason to believe, he said, that some people resort to perjury and collusion to obtain a divorce. However, he added that with no one contesting the case or cross-examining the witness, the court is virtually powerless to detect or prevent such practices.

Judge Glenn said the only solution is to follow the examples of other States in setting up divorce counsels.

"A number of States have provided by statute for the appointment by the court of a lawyer to act as 'divorce counsel,' whose duty is to appear in all uncontested divorce cases, primarily to aid the court in detecting perjury or collusion between the parties," he explained.

"This procedure is based on the theory that the public and the State have an interest in the matter of divorces."

Judge Glenn said he believed that if Iowa courts had the assistance of such a divorce counsel, it would help not only to discover and deal with perjured testimony, but also would counteract the prevailing notion that marriages can be dissolved legally for little or no reason.

"The divorce counsel also could secure information which would aid the court in the matter of awarding the care and custody of children," he added.

Da Vinci Work Moved Again In Legal Tangl

Cleveland (U.P.).—"The Lute Player," supposed sister to Leonardo da Vinci's famed "Mona Lisa," began another round of travels and controversy when Judge Adrian G. Newcomb released it to its owner, Baroness Ally von Magnus Schwartzenburg," by court order.

Settlement of $60,000 in earlier court judgments, interest, and assignment fees for $6000 was made by Edward Funccius of New York, a friend of the Baroness.

She has now offered to sell the painting for $500,000.

Classically known as "Portrait of Cecelia Gallerani," the da Vinci was said to have hung at one time beside the "Mona Lisa" in the Louvre. The portrait's sad story began when it disappeared from this spot.

About 80 years ago a painting alleged to be "The Lute Player" turned up in New York, but was found to be a 100-year-old impostor.

In 1926 the Baroness, whose title dates back to Austrian Emperor Franz Joseph, brought the picture to this country. She attempted unsuccessfully to sell it for one million dollars and charged an international art combine with trying to prevent its sale by casting doubts on its authenticity.

Critics said the lady with the lute was wearing a hair ribbon, an accessory unknown in da Vinci's day. But, Baroness Schwartzenburg countered, a paint analysis revealed the ribbon had been painted in 100 years after its creation, probably to disguise it after the theft.

Then the portrait ran afoul of legal troubles when Gordon Bently, Inc., an art dealer here, filed suit against the Baroness for $2,353.01. Other claims were filed by the Guardian Trust Co., Bank Fuer Deutsche Beame and Otto G. Zuck. The court allowed $30,000 against the painting. Meanwhile, Bently and the two banks went broke and receivers took over the claims.

Clarence Congdon, Detroit art dealer, took over the painting and some of the claims later. "The Lute Player," then in the Wabeek State Bank vault in Detroit, was ordered moved to the Chase National Bank in New York.

Baroness Schwartzenburg said she has two prospective customers, one a princess and the other unidentified.

Bunch Inquest Will Follow Police Probe

A coroner's inquist will be held in the death of Forest J. Bunch, who died at Gallinger Hospital of a skull fracture after being arrested for intoxication.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said yesterday the inquire would be held on completion of an investigation by the Police Department.

Bunch, a 59-year-old carpenter of 18 3d st. ne., died Monday morning of a basal skull fracture and a cerebral hemorrhage, Dr. Richard J. Rosenberg, deputy coroner, announced following an autopsy. The man was picked up about 12:45 a. m. July 29 and taken to No. 9 Precinct.

He complained of feeling ill later in the morning and was taken to Gallinger Hospital, examined and returned to the precinct station with a diagnosis of acute alcoholism. Later, he was returned to the hospital and admitted with a fever of undetermined origin.

He was re-examined after suffering convulsions so violent, police said, he had to be held in bed.

A police investigation was ordered after a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young had been received from Bunch's estranged wife and family.

Dr. Rosenberg said his autopsy disclosed the skull fracture, at the base of the brain. He said it was well-covered with neck muscles and was about one week old.

Bunch had a police record dating back to 1906, showing three arrests for disorderly conduct; 11 for drunkenness; one for intoxication and one for assault with a dangerous weapon.

Wren Likes Church

Blue Ridge Summit, Md., Aug. 5 Jenny Wren today had a church blessing to hatch her eggs in a glass lamp globe at the parish house of the Episcopal Church here.

The Rev. Canon A. G. W. Pfaffko said he disconnected the light switch when he found the mother wren had crawled into the light globe, built a nest, laid several eggs and was patiently sitting on them.

Cap and Gown Is Bathing Suit Beauty's Goal

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Rated tops in a bathing suit, "Miss Maryland" today had her heart set on a higher education.

Jean Dixon of Cumberland, 18, youngest of eight competing last night in the Maryland division of the "Miss America" pageant, clinched the State title when she appeared in a one-piece black satin bathing suit.

The 1500 spectators in Fort Hill High School auditorium agreed with the judges' decision, although Miss Dixon, representing Cumberland, placed behind Miss Lonaconing, Betty Lou Rankin, 21, in the talent division, and behind Miss Baltimore, Ramona Mae Wilson, 19, in the evening gown contest.

Miss Dixon, a June graduate of Allegany High School, said she entered the contest primarily because of the $25,000 in scholarships awarded to the National winner. She will compete next month against 15 other girls in the finals at Atlantic City, N. J.

Governor Lane placed the crown of "Miss Maryland" on the Cumberland brunette and presented her with a silver cup.

Ex-Convict Says He Drove Car for Killer of Siegel

Waurika, Okla., Aug. 5 (AP).—County Attorney John Hannah said today a man who "feared for his life" signed a statement declaring he drove a car for the man who killed gambler Bugsy Siegel in Beverly Hills June 20.

Hannah identified the man as Virgil Clark Manning, 28, of Los Angeles. He said Manning told him he had served a term for forgery in the Missouri Penitentiary. (Records at the penitentiary show a Virgil Clark Manning served four years on a forgery conviction and was released in February, 1945.)

Siegel was shot to death through an open window as he sat reading a newspaper. Nine slugs ripped into his body.

The killer is still at large.

In Beverly Hills, Police Chief C. H. Anderson said he had wired for a copy of the man's complete statement.

50 Jewish DPs Abduct, Beat Up 2 U. S. Soldiers

Frankfurt, Aug. 5.—An estimated crowd of 50 Jewish DP's abducted two American soldiers last Wednesday on the streets of Ansbach, took them to the Bleidorn barracks and there beat up one soldier and manhandled the other in the presence of the DP camp population of 1300 people.

Pvt. 1/c Robert C. Kennedy of Randolph, Utah, and Pvt. 1/c Thomas W. Ulrich of Houston, Tex., students at the Theater Signal School in Ansbach, were saved from further maltreatment by officers of the school who broke into the DP camp and rescued them.

Military headquarters explained tonight on the basis of preliminary information that the Jews were reportedly taking a reprisal for an alleged earlier attack that evening made on several DP's by two unknown American soldiers. However, it was stated here that Kennedy and Ulrich had no connection whatsoever with the earlier incident.

400 Ky. Truck Mine Operators In Unusual 'Strike'

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 5 (AP).—An unusual "strike" of nearly 400 truck mine operators, employing some 6000 miners was called today by the Lecher Truck Mine Operators Association.

Operator spokesmen said the strike was unusual in that it involved the operators and the ramp owners entirely and did not involve the United Mine Workers Union except that the miners were out of work while the operators were striking.

Luther Bates, operator of four mines near here, said the association voted today to call a general strike against the ramp owners, who buy coal from the operators, load it and sell it to the market.

Bates said the operators asked for a higher tonnage price to meet the cost of the recent nation-wide coal contract between the UMW and the operators.

Alaska Soldiers Start Gold Rush

Fairbanks, Alaska (U.P.).—There is a new gold rush in Alaska which rivals in enthusiasm, if not in rich strikes, the famous rush of '49.

Today's prospectors are soldiers stationed in Alaska. Their gold rush is sponsored by the USO and is classed as off-duty recreation. But that doesn't keep the GI "sourdoughs" from hoping to strike it rich.

Confronted by soldiers freshly arrived from the United States for postwar duty and demanding "the shortest way to an undiscovered gold mine," the USO leased eight old mining claims near Fairbanks. There the off-duty miners pan for gold and dream of the day they become millionaires.

USO hostesses, most of them native Alaskans, drive the soldiers as far as possible over rough mountain roads in station wagons. On the last part of the trip to the claims, the GIs have to pack their pans and shovels through the gorges just as the old-timers did.

Living nearby is a veteran sourdough who supplies the novice prospectors with advice on panning techniques, between tall tales of the Klondike's history.

The servicemen, however, will never get rich at the rate they're going. The best of them have been unable to pan more than $5 worth of gold a day.

Speed is Comparative

Fort Wayne, Ind. (U.P.).—Harry Osborn was charged with reckless driving because his antiquated auto could make only eight miles an hour. State Tropper John Morgan said Osborn's car was crawling along over the hills of highway 427 with a block-long line of automobiles creeping along behind him.

Warns of Pacific Trade Rivalry

Berkeley, Calif. (U.P.).—An industrial revolution in Asia will cause political, economic, social and cultural changes in the next 50 years which will eventually menace the United States' interests in the Pacific area.

Russian economic power will shift from Europe to Asia during the next 50 years, he says, and unless the United States meets its challenge, the Soviet Union will dominate an area vital to U. S. security.

"Russia's backbone will be the region from the Urals to Lake Baikal," Dr. Kerner added, "and eventually Russian foreign policy will put its emphasis upon the Pacific. Similarly, in the United States the economic center of gravity will shift westward, with the emphasis centering on the Pacific area.

"Whether this will be a peaceful rivalry remains to be seen," he said. "There can be no such peace if Soviet Russia practices a policy of world revolution."

Zoo Gets Hitch-Hiking Smoot-Billed Ani

Philadelphia (U.P.).—A smooth-billed ani, which "hitch-hiked" a ride on the tanker S.S. Fredericksburg far out in the Gulf of Mexico, is the latest addition to the Philadelphia Zoo's collection of unique birds.

The ship's master, Samuel Brown, presented the scrappy feathered creature, which has a big appetite and an even larger bill.

He said the ani had flown aboard exhausted while the ship was plowing through the gulf and that crewmen caught it with ease. Somewhat larger than a robin, the ani is tailored in jet-black plumage and wears a bill equipped with a large, grotesque hump. Zoo officials say he has a fondness for cockroaches.

Blondes Have More Hair Than Brunettes

Chicago (U.P.).—Blondes have more hairs on their heads than brunettes, red-heads or brownettes, according to Samuel Grant, director of the Helene Curtis Laboratories.

He said some blondes have as many as 140,000 hairs on their skulls, brunettes and brownettes an average of 120,000 and red-heads only 90,000.

On the average, he said, one square inch of scalp contains about 1000 hairs.

Rare Grass Sprouts

San Francisco (U.P.).—A new grass species has been found north of here on a pinpoint of land less than an acre square. California Academy of Science botanists say no other place in the world grows the species. It is called agrostis aristiglumis.

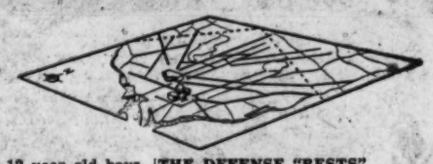
THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Drop Another Nickel, Joseph, and Try Again



Nobody's going to believe me—but this is a true story. Only the names are fictitious.

One day Joe got to thinking about Betty, whom he hadn't dated for several months. From the dim recesses of his memory, he extricated a phone number.

"Is Betty there?" he asked the woman who answered.

"No, Betty doesn't live here any more."

"Oh—she finally went back to New York?"

"Yes, she didn't like her job at Agriculture, so she finally went back to New York."

"Do you happen to have her address there?"

"Why, yes—I just got a letter from her. She sent me a picture of her new baby."

"Baby? Betty Johnson had a baby?"

"Betty Johnson? Her name was Endicott before she married Mr. Harrington."

"Excuse me," sighed Joe. "I think I have the wrong number."

Joe is currently trying to compute the odds against calling a number at random and finding another girl named Betty who has quit her job at Agriculture to return to New York.

LONG MAY THEY WAIVE

G. B., of the 1500 block of New Hampshire ave. nw., brings this gag back from England with her:

The financial accounts of the classically educated (but completely unmathematical) librarian were undergoing an annual audit.

Previous audits had made cynics of the accountants. The current examination confirmed the suspicion that the librarian would never be a good bookkeeper. So one of the auditors scrawled a note to his colleagues:

"Wave accounting ability of librarian."

When the auditors had gone to lunch, the librarian found the note on the conference table and serenely left this reply:

"Waive spelling by auditors."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Robert Emmet Burke, of 4345 Ellicott st. nw., was passing a group of 11 or 12 year old boys when he overheard:

"Yeah — that's the trouble. Vacation comes along and then we don't have anything to do."

THE DEFENSE "RESTS" BY VACATIONING

William F. Prettyman and Clifford H. Robertson will leave Friday for an eight-week cross-country tour.

Both are lawyers and both are past presidents of the Montgomery County Bar Association.

SAD POEM

The Nats have a hitter,
But one won't do.

Grin and Bear It

"Tell the senator to stick to his speeches and stop telling folks he's just like anybody else—it makes 'em mad!"

Leonard Lyons

Out of the Mouth of a 9-Year Old:

Hollywood—John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony" is being filmed by Lewis Milestone at the Republic lot. One of the most touching scenes is that of Robert Mitchum carrying 9-year-old Peter Miles after the boy learns that his pony is dead. The camera photographed Mitchum's anguish as he cradled the boy in his arms. The anguish is real and is the result not only of Mitchum's acting ability, but also of his natural reaction to the 9-year-old boy's whispered complaint: "This is supposed to be my scene. I notice, though, that you're careful to carry me with my back to the camera so they won't see my face."

Irving Reis, the young director whose most recent movie is "The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer," was the best-dressed soldier in the Normandy invasion. Reis was a captain in the film unit headed by George Stevens. In London, one day, Stevens told Reis to report with his crew at the Ministry of Information for "some preliminary briefing." Captain Reis asked about the uniforms to be worn at this briefing. Stevens told him that, inasmuch as other Allied officers would be present, the American representatives should wear their best. Reis donned his finest $165 uniform, tailored by Oviatt in Hollywood, affixed all his ribbons to his blouse and headed his spic-and-span film crew to the Ministry of Information. As soon as he arrived a British officer shut the door and announced—on June 3, 1944—"Gentlemen, you are sealed until we see the coast of Normandy."

A Hollywood screen writer approached Edna Ferber about contributing to a committee of which he is a member. Miss Ferber said that she first would want a frank answer to a frank question. "Will you answer truthfully, on your word of honor?" said Miss Ferber. The screen writer raised his right hand as if taking an oath. "Are you a Communist?" she asked. The man replied: "On my word of honor, no." Miss Ferber continued: "There's another part to the question. If you were a Communist, would you tell me?" The man answered: "No."

Howard Hughes has little regard for cost when he's anxious for a project to succeed. One of his early ventures into the motion picture business was a movie called "Hell's Angels." He scrapped it after it was completed and started anew. It cost him millions. Later, when someone said: "Do you know there's a lot of money in pictures?" Hughes nodded and said: "Yes—mostly mine."

Jack Warner gave a party for his granddaughter, and Nicola Lubitsch was one of the guests. When Nicola came home she described the Warner house and Lubitsch told her: "Mr. Warner is a rich man." "You're as rich as Jack Warner," Nicola suggested. Lubitsch said no. "You're as rich as Jack Warner," Nicola repeated. Lubitsch said no, and added: "Money isn't the important thing. Some of the greatest men in the world have little money." Nicola asked: "Name one." Lubitsch named Einstein, and Nicola asked: "Who's he?" The father said: "Einstein is a great scientist," and Nicola asked: "What did he do?" Lubitsch said: "He . . . er . . . er . . . discovered the theory of relativity." Nicola asked: "What's that?" Lubitsch stared at his young daughter and conceded: "I'm as rich as Jack Warner."

France's foremost church expert on the history of St. Joan was brought to America to examine the script of "Joan of Lorraine" to counteract possible objections by religious groups. He approved the script and suggested only that Joan's attacks are not strong enough . . . Mervin Leroy, who was one of the first here to wear elevator shoes, likes to ride horses, and his friends report that Leroy employs a blacksmith to make elevator horseshoes for his horse. At the Huston-Milestone party, Georgia Gibbs saw a tall, distinguished-looking stranger and asked her escort, "Is he a civilian or is he in the picture business?"

On Sunday afternoon the Irwin Shaws usually entertain a few dozen people, both for luncheon and for dinner, at their beach house above Malibu. Huge platters of friend chicken are devoured by the guests at both meals. Donald Ogden Stewart was startled by the large number of chickens and said: "At last I know why a chicken really crosses the road. A chicken crosses the road to get to the Shaws" . . . Stewart's new play, "How I Wonder," will be presented on Broadway this fall. His last play, "Rebound," was produced about 20 years ago, and Stewart is anxious for his new one to be a hit. "Do you, when everything seems to be going all right, get a feeling of impending tragedy?" asked Stewart. "I have such a feeling. I hope it's something trivial, like T. B., which I can handle," sighed the playwright, "instead of the play flopping."

Reluctant Trader

My wife will buy most anything . . . She sees upon the shelves . . . If it is something useful for . . . The children or ourselves . . . And that is quite all right with me . . . And she may carry on . . . Provided that our bank account . . . Will not be overdrawn . . . But I am never happy when . . . She has a change of mind . . . And wishes that the thing she bought . . . Had been some other kind . . . Because she somehow figures I . . . Possess the perfect knack . . . To trade the merchandise for her . . . Or get our money back . . . When actually I find it most . . . Embarrassing and strange . . . To go to any merchant for . . . A credit or exchange.
